HE WANTED A "STAKE."

The Most Atrocious Murder Ever Committed in Maryland.

BALTIMORE, MD, Sept. 9 .- John Thomas Ross, colored, was hung at 12.40 to-day for murder of a white woman named Emily Brown.

The crime which John Thomas Brown expiated on the gallows today was one of the most cold blooded and atrocious ever committed in the State. It was the murder of an old white woman named Emily Brown on December 10, 1886, and the crime was committed so that the murderer might "get a stake," as he confessed the motive, by selling the body of his victim to a Medical College for the paitry sum of $15. Ross made a full confession of his crime and impl.cated Anderson Perry, assistant janitor at Maryland University, and Albert Hawkins, both colored. as follows: Emily Brown was 55 years old and had seen better days. Dr. Herbert Harlan, the demonstrator, next morning noticed the wound on the head and body and notified the police. This led to Ross' arrest and subsequently to Perry and Hawlins. The trial resulted in the conviction of Ross and the acquital of Perry and Hawkins in the face of Ross' testimony against them.
