

The Game Of Games.

Richmond Times-Dispatch.
While eight thousand people or more send up applause that would have drowned the tumult of the Roman coliseum, the rival elevens of the University of Virginia and of battle today for foot ball supremacy. It ought to be a great game. It has been well said that it is a football classic, it ought also be said that it is an institution. It is an interstate affair, which two rival States watch with breathless interest. Thousands of welcome visitors are in Richmond by reason of this game, whether they wear the Orange and Blue or the White and Blue we are glad to have them here, and are glad to welcome back those who make this an occasion for an annual journey to the football Mecca of the two States whose pride is involved.

The heart of a good man is the sanctuary of God in this world.—Mme Necker.

Overpaid Him

"Yes," says the large man with the heavy watchguard, "I paid Jugrins $1,000 for his vote in the Legislature and I'm mighty sorry I did it." "Why?" asks the man with the red and green striped shirt. "Did he turn State's evidence?"

"No; but I learned afterward that he only wanted $200 for his vote in the first place."—Chicago Post.

Opportunity.

And this I saw, or dreamed it in a dream;
There spread a cloud of dust alone a plain,
And underneath the cloud, or in it, raged
A furious battle, and men yelled and swords
Shocked upon swords an shields. A prince's banner
Wavered, then staggered backward, hemmed by foes.
A craven hung along the battle's edge,
And thought: "Had I a sword of keener steel,
That blue blade that the king's son bears—but this
Blunt thing!" Ae snap and flung it from his hand,
And, hovering, crept away, and left the field.
Then came the king's son, wounded, sore beset,
And weaponless, and saw the broken sword,
And ran and snatched it, and with battle shout
Lifted afresh, he hewed his enemy down,
And saved a great cause that heroic day.
