

SAVING MONEY.

A Dollar a Week Put into the Bank is a Good Investment.

"It is mighty hard," said an unfortunate workman some time ago to the writer, "to save up a thousand dollars by laying aside a dollar or two a week and then to take it out of the savings bank and lose it to a get rich quick swindler, as I have just done." The poor fellow could work and save, but he had not had even a kindergarten education in finance, else his story would have been different. He had never given a thought to interest and so was absolutely ignorant of growth through compound interest and, of course, had never heard of that wonderful process of accumulation known as "progressive compound interest."

One dollar deposited in a savings bank that pays 4 per cent will amount to $2.19 in twenty years. This is simple compound interest. Now, if you deposit $1 every year for twenty years, or $20 in all, the sum to your credit will have grown to $30.97.

Any wage earner can put by $1 a week. That money deposited in a savings bank for twenty years will have increased to $1,612. A deposit of $5 a week will have grown to $8,000, and this at 4 per cent will be $320 a year. There is no secret, no mystery about this. It is as clear as the cloudless sun, and the method is just as clean and honest.—Christian Herald.

CAN'T READ THEIR LIPS.

When Actors Do Not Face the Audience It Bothers the Deaf.

"Time and time again we've asked to have our actors face the audience squarely when speaking lines that are of great importance," a theatrical manager said recently. "The explanation for the request is generally the same—that deaf people in the audience who depend on lip reading rather than hearing lose the run of the play if some important lines are spoken by a person whose lips can't be read. An actor or actress who's stuck on posing in profile is always the despair of the deaf people in the audience, as they say it's almost impossible to read lips in profile."

"Out ticket agent hears another side of the same question. People tell him when buying tickets that some one in the party is stone deaf and must read the lips of the actors in order to follow the play. Then they ask him on which side of the theater these particular seats should be located to make this lip reading the most satisfactory. Often the stage setting decides which way the actors must face, and if a deaf person gets on the wrong side of the house the play is practically lost."—New York Sun.

Too Late.
Mr. P. drove up in a limousine and entered the jeweler's shop accompanied by his valet, who carried an oblong box of steel. Mr. B. asked for a private interview, and on being shown into the office he opened the box, exposing a splendid array of diamond and pearl necklaces, earrings, tiaras and rings.

"Mrs. B.," he said, "is now abroad. Before she returns I want you to extract these stones and replace them with good imitations, selling the real jewels and giving me the money. This, of course, is to be a confidential transaction. Mrs. B. is to know nothing of it."

"My dear sir," said the jeweler, "I should be glad to do as you ask, but it is impossible. Two years ago Mrs. B. called here on the same errand that now brings you, and this errand in her case was successful. The paste jewels that you offer me are worth little more than the hire of the limousine awaiting you outside."—London Tit-Bits.

Thackeray and Colonel Newcome.
Mr. Louis Melville tells a characteristic story of Thackeray's fondness for his greatest hero. "It was outside 'Eran's,'" he writes, "that Lowell, being on a visit to London, met the novelist looking so haggard and worn that he asked if he were ill. 'Come inside, and I'll tell you all about it,' said the latter. 'I have killed the colonel.' At a table in a quiet corner Thackeray took the manuscript from his pocket and read the chapter that records the death of Colonel Newcome. When he came to the end the tears that had been swelling his lids trickled down his face, and the last word was almost an inarticulate sob."—London Chronicle.

Pretty High Hills.
A distinguished astronomer once took the trouble to measure in several paintings the size of the moon and to deduce from it the height of the mountains shown in the same picture. He found that the average height of the hills was about forty-three miles, while one giant peak raised its head more than a hundred miles above sea level. Turner, who was one of the greatest masters of landscape composition and coloring, frequently exaggerates the height of his hills with the intention of conferring upon them a majesty which otherwise they would not possess.

Happiness.
That all who are happy are equally happy is not true. A peasant and a philosopher may be equally satisfied, but not equally happy. Happiness consists in the multiplicity of agreeable consciousness. A peasant has not capacity for having equal happiness with a philosopher.—Johnson.

The bread of life is love; the salt of life is work; the sweetness of life, poetry; the water of life, faith.—Mrs. Jameson.

SUGAR DUTY WICKED

Uncle Sam, Declares, Is Stealing Candy from Children—Makes Comparison of Import Duties.

Just before sailing for Europe Thursday last John Arbuckle, the sugar refiner and coffee manufacturer, issued a statement strongly attacking the tariff on raw sugar, declaring it to be a wicked tax, "for the benefit of the best sugar interests." In his statement Mr. Arbuckle said:

"I have not been well and am going abroad to rest and recuperate in preparation for the fight to be made in Congress at its next session for free sugar. I propose to devote all my time and all my ability and all my strength to the abolition of all import duties on raw sugar, a most wicked tax on food necessity of all our people. It taxes the man who works for a wage of a dollar a day as much as it taxes an Astor or Mr. Morgan or Mr. Rockefeller. Each eats, or at least needs, the same amount of sugar, and they pay, not according to their ability but according to their needs, reversing an elemental rule of taxation."

Read Radical Whirlwind

Out in California political corruption flourished to such an extent for years that the state was made a-by-word. The seeds of the radical whirlwind reaped there last Tuesday were sown long ago. The people, instead of laying the blame for shameful conditions to their own individual neglect of civic obligations and patriotic responsibilities, made by the system of government under which they lived the scapegoat and sought eagerly for some panacea that would work a miracle of redemption. They probably think they have found it.

But time will disillusion them. In such cases it is no trouble to find promising panaceas. They are always at hand. Demagogues have no scruples about encouraging the delusion that when an official yields to temptation and betrays his trust the system is to blame, not the individual. No greater fallacy was ever conceived. It is not necessary to hold the recall like a sword over the head of an honest judge. An honest legislature is always responsive to the will of a sane intelligent electorate. A dishonest legislature is the fruit of the tree—not the root of the evil. Those who are so eager to find fault and to place the blame for unwholesome laws should get that fact well rooted in their minds.—Va. Pilot.

How To Select a Jury

The Statesville Landmark and Charlotte Observer are justly alarmed by "the wave of murder which is sweeping over North Carolina." After deprecating the mushy gush that goes in the guise of mere now-a-days, the Landmark says:
The first effort, we believe, should be directed to securing a change in the law which permits counsel for the defense in capital cases to select the jury. Numerous attempts have been made in this direction, all of which have failed because lawyers in the Legislature would not permit the bills to pass. If anything is to be accomplished we should begin now to agitate the question and urge the people to see to it that candidates for the Legislature next year, whether lawyers or laymen, are pledged to this reform and pledged in no uncertain terms. The people can force the change if they will, and it should be the purpose of the newspapers, the preachers and all those who recognize the serious nature of the situation, to constantly urge upon the people the importance of the change.

Attendance of 45,000

The crowd at the fair has been estimated at 45,000, the great majority of this number being present Thursday in view of the fact that Tuesday and Wednesday were marred by rain, this is a wonderful record and shows better than words that the efforts of the managers of the fair have been appreciated. The crowd were liberal in praise of the various features of the fair and generally the opinion was that the exhibits eclipsed in excellence any previous years. The farm, stock and poultry displays showed in splendid manner the marvelous progress and awakening in interest throughout this county and section in these lines.—Greensboro News.

They Do Here.

"Pick your men for the Legislature" urges the Jacksonville Metropolis. In this reck of the woods such advice is also rather supererogatory. The organization leaders are careful to see to it that nobody goes to the General Assembly except such as are picked by them.—Columbia.

Don't Make it a Farce.

Judge Bordwell who is now hearing the cases against the McNamaras at Los Angeles Cal., has ruled that attorneys for the defendants may exercise the widest latitude in questioning jurors to determine their opposition to trades unions. The judge tries to save this thing over by allowing the plaintiffs to ask questions to ascertain whether or not the jurors are members of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association of Los Angeles. If Judge Bordwell wanted to write himself down as a narrow minded donkey he could hardly adopt a more successful method than such rulings as Clearance Darrow might suggest. The judge in a vain effort to save this over permits the plaintiffs attorneys to ask questions to ascertain as to whether the juror was a member of the Merchants and Manufacturers club. Neither of these propositions ought to come in to question in the trial of these cases any more than that of enquiring as to whether a man was a Republican or Democrat. It is murder that the McNamaras are being tried for and not for being members of a trades Union. We trust that Bordwell will not make of this trial a national farce.

When you have a bad cold you want the best medicine obtainable so as to cure it with as little delay as possible. Not False But Fickle.

Says President Taft: "I want the people to know where I stand." This wish can be easily gratified if the man who cherishes it will only stand on any one question long enough to be counted. Sometimes, for a few hours, or a few days the people have thought they knew where their amiable Chief Magistrate was "at," but in every case his attitude changed before the time for conclusive action had arrived. Comparisons are always odious and sometimes odorous—according as one quotes from Fortescue or Shakespeare,—but we mean no disrespect in likening Mr. Taft to Napoleon's flea: Put your finger on him, and nine times out of ten he isn't there.—Va. Pilot.

Here is a woman who speaks from personal knowledge and long experience viz. Mrs. P. H. Brogan, of Wilson, Pa who says, "I know from experience that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is far superior to any other. For cup there is nothing that excels it." For sale by All Dealers.

During the week Chicago has celebrated the fortieth anniversary of the most destructive fire the country has ever recorded, if, indeed, not the most damaging in all history. The resurrection of this vast metropolis from the ruins of that flame is a marvel of American achievement. Hardly before the heat had passed from the worthless waste of the fire, the business of rebuilding was begun and within almost two years, tremendous progress had been made. Forty years from the date of that conflagration, the great Western city stands forth now as a tribute to the architectural genius of the country and its attainments in wealth trade and general expansion are altogether wonderful.—Charlotte Observer

LAFOLLETTE GUN FIRED.
Progressive Republicans Endorse His Presidency.
Two hundred progressive Republicans here at Chicago Monday in their first national conference endorsed Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin for President and declared in favor of a direct primary as a means for the expression of a presidential choice. The endorsement came in the shape of resolutions framed in the part by former Secretary of the Interior James R. Garfield, who it was held by the delegates appeared as expressing the views of Theodore Roosevelt and who it was feared would oppose a declaration of any individual. Mr. LaFollette's endorsement went through without a hitch however.

The resolution followed a day of LaFollette enthusiasm in which his name was cheered repeatedly as it was mentioned by a dozen speakers. Contrary to expectation the conference was concluded in one day, most of the delegates left the city, and the progressive program outlined for tomorrow will be devoted to support of State and local candidates and conditions.

The Reidsville Reviews partizan expression in the interest of Governor Kitchen leads us to believe, there is a reason.

This Is a Howdy-Do- Ain't It?

Very grave disorders occurred Monday at Segni a town of 7,000 population one-half hour of rail from Rome. The rioting was caused by the action of the municipality in adopting measures to stamp out cholera. Believing that the government intended to poison quarantined cholera patients, a great crowd marched to the city hall and demanded their release.

The mob broke in the doors of the municipal building seeking the mayor, but failing to find him the rioters sacked the building and then burned it.

A woman seized the municipal flag from the burning structure and cried: "To the hospital, to the hospital, death to the doctors." This suggestion caught the fancy of the crowd and the mob of shrieking men, women and children rushed to the hospital. The doors were forced, attendants swept aside and the cholera patients lifted from their cots and carried to the street.

Meanwhile others broke into a house where suspects were quarantined and took them from the place. A procession was then formed and the sick were borne to their homes. Two of the patients who were at the point of death were passed from one to another embraced and kissed by their half-mad friends.

The local authorities managed to send a message to Rome and the troops hurriedly sent from the capital restored order after many of the mob had been arrested.
