Graded School News

Last week I failed to hand to the editor four names that belong to the fourth grade honor roll for September: Carrie Jobe, Corinna Jobe, William Anthony and Grace Long.

W. L. Cooper, Jr., Supt.

Misses Morrow-Bason and Green change their ad in this issue to which we direct your attention, you will find much in the way of ladies head dresses to interest you.

Hot and Cold Baths

J. T. Terrell the new white barber is a progressive in his line. He has recently had placed in his shop a nicely equipped arrangement for a hot and cold bath. Mr. Terrell should be commended for this spirit of enterprise, and we hope well patronized. He has recently added an other barber to his force, so there will be no necessity for waiting.

Senator Simmons to speak in Durham

Hon. F. M. Simmons will speak in Durham Friday night, and the indication are he will have a large audience to hear him.

Speaking in Mebane

Hon. Francis D. Winston will deliver a Democratic speech in Mebane next Saturday night, October 12th at 7:30 Mr. Winston is an able and interesting speaker.

Raising Campaign Fund

Our patriotic Mayor John Shaw started out Wednesday morning to see if he could not aid in building up the contributions for the Wilson fund, in about two hours he had raised $30, and expects to add much to this, but the announcement will be too late for this issue.

To The Juniors

The Junior Order members can get some interesting, and valuable information from Senator Simmons speech found in Congressional Record 62 Congress Mar. 13th. we have a copy of it and would have given more details, but for lack of space.

Good Farm For Sale

Mr. Erastus Cook is offering a nice little farm for sale about two miles North West of Mebane. The place has good dwellings with ample out houses. It is a desirable neighborhood, with an excellent school near by. Good land and good water. See ad elsewhere.

The Great State Fair.

NEXT WEEK OCTOBER 14-19. The occasion brings together each year the biggest crowd in the State. Keeping full pace in wonderful growth with the rapid advance of North Carolina, her State Fair is the index of her endeavor, the pendulum of her progress.

High Point Defeats Mebane

The High Point football team defeated Bingham, of Mebane at Thomasville, Saturday, by the score of 18 to 0. Ingram's work at quarter back coupled with the Hoffman Brothers long end runs featured the game. High Point plays their second game of this season with Reidsville seminary, Saturday, October 12, on Reidsville gridiron.

To Loose Your Pocket Book is a Misfortune

But to lose your eyesight is a tragedy. The lack of proper glasses is a fruitful source of eye troubles. Dr. N. Rosenstein, the eye specialist can fit you with the proper glasses, or if you don't need any, say so. Dr. N. Rosenstein will be in Burlington on his regular third Tuesday stopping at the Burlington Drug Co. Tuesday Oct. 15th, and at Mebane Wednesday Oct. 16th at the White House. Don't forget to see him about your eye trouble.

Enlarging Store.

Messrs. Green and McClure of Graham are adding extensive improvement to their store. They have built, an addition which will make the store quite an hundred feet long, with a ninety foot front. By the first of November the work will be complete when they expect to place one of the largest stocks of furniture ever seen in Alamance Co. These gentlemen are doing a thriving business. They have been advertising with the Leader since it began publication. We wish them well.

How Much Would You Take For Your Eyes?

The biggest fortune in the world wouldn't buy 'em, would it? Yet many people use their eyes in such a way that they are destroying them for nothing.

It's thoughtlessness that does it, but that's no excuse; proper glasses are easy to get. Come and see Dr. N. Rosenstein; He has a long experience, and it's at your disposal. Dr. Rosenstein will be at Burlington Tuesday Oct. 15th, stopping at the Burlington Drug Co., and at Mebane Wednesday Oct. 16th, stopping at the White House, for one day only in each place.

The Tomato Girls

The members of the tomato girls club of Alamance county had at the fair at Burlington a most excellent exhibit of their manufactured product. It would not be possible to speak too highly of the work of these young ladies. Their can goods, preserves, and pickles, stands at the head of the list. All of their products are made from the best vegetables grown, put up in the most scientific way after being prepared in the most toothsome manner. The Alamance girls are great. Miss Margaret Scott had this department in charge.

A Nice Exhibit

One of the best exhibits we noted at the Alamance Fair at Burlington is that department was made by Mr. Chas. F. Cates, our Pickle Manufacturer. It consisted of a great variety of sweet and sour pickles chow-chow, and preserves. In the quality of goods made they equal in excellence the best made by Hentz, or other pickle makers. Mr. Cates understands his business thoroughly, and is always trying to excel himself. We learn that Mr. Cates has recently placed a number of large orders for his goods sold to a number of state colleges, and among them some of our highest female institutions. There is one thing that might be said, college girls are the best judges of good pickles and preserves of any class of people known. A college girl has a tooth for something nice.

The Death of Miss Margaret Sellars

The sequel to a most distressing accident was the death of Miss Margaret Sellars of Burlington Sunday, the sixteen year old daughter of Mr. B. R. Sellars. Miss Sellars had with a number of friends been accidentally caught on a high trestle near Old Port in the mountains of the West some weeks past. Seeing the utter impossibility of escape she leaned as far out on the edge of the trestle as possible, but not sufficiently to escape the engine. She was knocked down quite a distance, receiving injuries that finally resulted in her death.

Miss Sellars was a young girl 16 years of age, of a bright and sweet disposition, and was loved by all who knew her. Her death, coming as a surprise has cast sorrow over the entire city. The bereaved parents have the sincere sympathy of their host of friends.

Eiland Items.

Mrs. Lizzie Dickey and baby who have been spending some time with her parents Mr. and Mrs. James Pratt left Eiland Saturday to join her husband in Tampa, Fla. They will make that city their future home.

Mrs. Sallie Horner and little daughter Bessie are visiting Mrs. Horners parents in Hillsboro Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Riley.

Mrs. Thomas Tapp and son Master George have gone to visit her sister Mrs. Joe Pickard and attend the bedside of Mrs. Julia Pickard mother of Mr. Joe Pickard who is in a dying condition, she was stricken with paralysis last Monday week ago.

Miss Bessie Baity and Mrs. Emmie Squires spent last Thursday with Mrs. Talitha Roggs.

Mr. Frank Scott of Durham is spending a few days at home with his father Mr. Thomas Scott who is confined to his bed with chills.

Miss Mattie Stanford is spending some time with relatives in Durham.

We are sorry to note the illness of Mrs. W. W. Smith. Hope she will soon recover.

Mr. D. E. Forrest, post master has a severe case of neuralgia. Dr. Jones was called in Saturday to attend him.

Back Creek Itenis

The tobacco growers of this section still have the blues owing to number of common curring tobacco made on last go-round a farmer being asked the difference in wrappers now and forty years ago, in answer to his reply he said the only difference he could see forty years ago Mahogany wrappers was made and now black wrappers and fitters is being made.

Mr. John Tate called to see Mr. Allen Hayes Sunday who have been on the sick list for quite awhile is better.

Messrs Robert Wilkins, Allie Wilkins, Henry Tate, John Tate and Strashorn attended the Burlington fair and reports a nice time Ask the boys how they would like to see Jessie again.

Leap year has been rather dull in this section until recently, ask Mr. Will Tate how about it.

Mr. Jack Lynch failed to call on his best girl Sunday.

Ask Mr. Robert Wilkins how he would like to call on that little girl dressed in blue again.

Mr. Allen Workman called on Miss Annie Lynch Sunday.

Wonder how Mr. Byrd and Claud McAdams how they would like to go deer hunting again.

I will ring off for this time.

Liveling the Dead.

Col. P. M. Pearsall, Ex-Governor

Aycocks private secretary proves the falsity of many of Kitchins statements alleging what the Governor thought and said. It is a pretty tough thing to tell a falsehood on the dead. Here it is. His mind was clear and positive as to these matters, Col. Pearsall said:

"I recall distinctly the morning the papers announced the first vote on Lorimer. I remember we (Governor Aycock and myself) had been to the Supreme Court room and were walking across the Capitol grounds and were naturally discussing the Lorimer vote. We stopped at the West end of the Capitol; Governor Aycock placed his foot on the lower step and told me that he had done what not many people had done, that is, he had read every word of the evidence in the case, and upon the evidence, he said, Lorimer was not guilty; that no honest jury in North Carolina would convict him on this evidence. He said that Senator Simmons had voted right, as he (Aycock) thought, and if he had been in his place he would have voted as he did.

"I also remember on this occasion, as on others he told me, as he had told others on other occasions in my presence, that Senator Simmons' votes on all the questions he had been criticised about were as he (Aycock) would have voted if he had been in Senator Simmons place.

"Therefore, instead of Governor Aycock being against Senator Simmons on these votes and as to his policy, he was with him.

"Governor Aycock became a candidate because of the persistence of his friends and because he wished the great office of United States Senator.

"Before the death of Governor Aycock, the charge was made, which could always be traced to the supporters of Governor Kitchin, that he was running in the interest of Senator Simmons. This charge was denied by him and hurt him because such a falsehood would have been disingenuous, entirely out of course with his life-long record for candor, open and frank dealing with the people, and that any suspect him in assuming any other attitude or being a party to any deception, however remote, was galling to his pure heart and sincere soul.

"This charge of course was denied by Governor Aycock and what he said the people believed, so that this charge has been abandoned. Now that his voice is silenced by the icy hand of death the charge has been exactly reversed by alleging that Governor Aycock would not stand for Senator Simmons political record. He is not here to deny this falsehood, would to God that he was, but he has friends living who can and who do deny it.

Kitchin said in his speech that the reason Aycock and Chief Justice Clark came out for the Senate was because they could not stand for and were opposed to Senator Simmons political record. Judge Clark can speak for himself.

"As to Governor Aycock," he said, "I am sorry his name has been brought into this controversy, it was the wish of his friends that it should not be, but Governor Kitchin has brought it in, and he, so to speak, is his witness. In the interest of truth, and in justice to the whole people of this State. I feel that it is my duty as a close personal and confidential friend of Governor Aycock to give the facts.

"As you know," said Colonel Pearsall "I was with Governor Aycock as his private Secretary while Governor and after he left the office of Governor until the day of his death we were in almost constant communication either personally or by correspondence. As many of us know, Governor Aycock had the question of becoming a candidate under advisement for many months before he declared himself, and in that time talked fully and freely with his friends. I would be safe in saying that he talked and wrote to me about this matter fifty times. I feel I know, indeed, I know I know, his feeling with reference to Senator Simmons. Personally they were kind and cordial, and I know if he had not become a candidate himself he would have certainly supported Senator Simmons to succeed himself.

Laymen's Missionary Movement Convention at Durham

Durham is now busy preparing for the great Laymen's Convention to be held there Oct 31st and Nov. 1st, to which the laymen in all the churches, as well as the ministers, are cordially invited, in all the territory from Randolph and Guilford, on the West; Halifax, Wayne and Harnett counties on the East; Granville and Person on the North; and Chatham and Lee on the South. It is expected that several hundred christian men will be registered to participate in this meeting of church men to deliberate and plan for larger and better things in the work of advancing Christs Kingdom on earth.

This conference will be led by men of large christian experience and well known ability. J. Cambell White, general secretary of the Movement, and W. E. Doughty, educational secretary will be there and give the laymen the benefit of their rich experience, and forward Misiorary spirit in the church, and especially among the men of the church, to arouse them to greater efficiency in the work of the church, and world-wide evangelization. It will be a meeting every male member of the church should attend for his own benefit and training, and carry back to his church the great blessings that will flow from the concerted actions of these men or to who want to be something, and do some tangible in the Master's Cause.

Hunting and Fishing reserve.

Mr. J. E. Latham who purchased the W. A. Murray farm a short distance West of Mebane, is having surveyed a most eligible site for the location of a large lake. Mr. W. E. Ham who understands the location pretty thoroughly believes they can dam back fifty acres of water with an average of ten feet. It is not known what these gentlemen contemplate, but it is thought, they will establish a club house with a large hunting, and fishing reserve.

It's an Appaling Record.

"It is an appaling record of corruption. To say that Mr. Roosevelt's own hands are clean in this scandal is to deny truth itself. To be sure, he did not put this corporation money into his own pocket, as a Tammany boss might do. He did not blackmail these corporations for his own financial profit. But he clubbed the money out of them to buy place and power for himself. He abused his great office to promote his own political fortunes. Nobody knows better than he that if he had not been President of the United States, with this tremendous power of life or death over trusts and corporations, the Harrimans and the Morgans and the Fricks and the Goulds and the Standard Oil people and the life-insurance people and all the rest of this Wall street crew would never have poured their millions into his campaign chest."—New York World

GOVERNOR KITCHIN

He Attacks the Democratic Party and Spends Two Hours Denouncing Senator Simmons.

The Lexington Dispatch has the following account of Governor Kitchin's speech in that town.

Governor Kitchin spoke here Wednesday night to an audience of about 150 voters. His speech lasted for two hours and was a glowing eulogy of himself and his record and a tirade of abuse for Senator Simmons. There was nothing new or startling about his speech. It was the same old line of cheap sophistry, wilful misrepresentation and skillful juggling of facts that marked his campaign for the governorship four years ago and probably twenty-five of his followers sat and cheered him occasionally. The remainder of the crowd heard him in silence, except when he displayed the picture of Senator F. M. Simmons on the back of the American Lumber Journal, and then there was some cheering. It was plainly a Simmons crowd and they could not resist the temptation to stick in a rousing cheer for their great leader.

It riled the governor. He grew red in the face, leaned far over the railing of the bar and went for the men who had cheered the picture. He declared with great heat that the performance of the Simmons enthusiasts was disgraceful; that it showed how far Simmons had been able to republicanize democrats; that they ought to be ashamed of Simmons and of themselves, and a great deal more to the same general effect. He promised the cheerers that he would give them something else to cheer about and later in his speech, when he had accused Senator Simmons of one heinous offense or the other, he would pause dramatically shake his locks, fix the crowd with a glare from his eagle eye and demand that the Simmons folks cheer. They merely laughed.

Altogether, the governor made a disgusting spectacle of himself. His eloquence fell on deaf ears. Even his satellites, who clustered round about him in the bar, did not cheer. Once in a while they put up a feeble demonstration, but it was very feeble. He is a practiced campaigner and more than once he worked up to a peoration culminating in the name of Woodrow Wilson, but the crowd did not rise to the occasion. The spectacle of a man holding high office in the party, ridiculing and abusing one of the state's most gifted and trusted democratic leaders and at the same time delivering himself of eloquent praises for the democratic leader in the nation, did not set well with the crowd.

Beginning his series of charges against Senator Simmons, he said "These are serious charges, made by the governor of North Carolina against a North Carolina senator." Mr. Kitchin intended that this should deeply impress every man who heard him, but it fell flat.

There was not a man in the audience but that thought that in addition to their being made by the governor of North Carolina, those charges were being made by a designing and dangerous politician against a servant of the people who happens to hold an office that the aforesaid politician wants.
