When Doctor Orr says shake hands friends, at the conclusion of his sermon, he does not mean to shake hands with your friends but your enemies. They may be the Doctors friends, but not yours. A Boost for the Scuppernong.

(From The Sanford Express.) We understand some of the grape growers in Moore County are preparing to engage in scuppernong culture on a large scale. There was a great demand for these grapes last year at good prices. A gentleman who is preparing to engage in grape culture near Wilmington was in town last week and informed The Express that some of the growers in the Chadbourn section made from $400 to $500 an acre on scuppernongs.

A Lobby

There is, after all, a lobby. Col. Mulhall's story is too detailed and specific to be poor-poohed. Those who have been demanding that proof of the existence of a lobby be adduced should now rest fairly satisfied. Their demand has been compelled with. The Mulhall statements are sufficient justification for President Wilson's anti-lobby pronouncement, if any specific justification were ever needed.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Needn't Pay For Foul Tip.

That the plaintiff assumed the risk of injury when she took a seat in a baseball field grandstand, and that the managers of the club are not responsible for injuries to spectators at a game, was the opinion of the Minnesota Supreme Court in the case of Miss Echo L. Be Polite

—A stranger came into The Dispatch office the other day. He said he didn't have anything to sell and it didn't make any difference about what his name was, but he had just dropped in to say that we have a dandy good town here and we ought to be proud of it. Said he: "You've got a sociable town, too. I stayed here last night and this morning I walked up the street to the court-house. Between the hotel and the courthouse I met four men that I had never seen in all my life and every one of them smiled and said "good morning." It made me feel good clear down to my toes. Geo, I like a town like this." And he walked out. It pays to treat strangers like they are human beings. Try it. It won't cost you a cent to greet the stranger within our gates with a cheery "Good Morning," or "Howdy Do."—Lexington Dispatch.

We do not like to tell unpleasant truths about our town, but perhaps an unpleasant truth is better than to silently encourage a wrong impression. It was not long ago that one of our most profound preachers here felt called upon to admonish our people from his pulpit, or some of them at least against that mean habit of not speaking to each other on passing. It had attracted his attention, and he deplored it, it is still a habit, but fortunately it is a habit largely confined to a class of individuals, long on conceit self, glorification, and haughty pretensions, but who are exceedingly short on the higher and nobler qualities out of which the world conceals gentleman, and ladies are made.

People with good common sense, and ordinarily decent breeding will stop this thing, the other crowd of well headed simpletons will go on to the end of the chapter, they have not sense enough to stop it.

A Big Meeting Sunday

There is expected in Mebane a large crowd next Sunday. People who will come to attend the protracted meeting now being here, Dr. Orr will interest you unless you are hard to interest.

THE BIG MEETING

Now Being Successfully Conducted Here by Dr. Orr

The protracted meetings long anticipated, began Sunday morning in the Piedmont Warehouse by an able sermon from Dr. W. W. Orr, the evangelist of Charlotte. After a song service covering selections, and the announcement for the week, the Doctor arose, he made a preliminary talk of some minutes, then read his text from the 27 Chapter and 42 verse of St. Matwevs. "He saved others himself he can not save." We have the statement of three facts (1) He did save others (2) He could not save himself, why? (a) He was the gift sent of the Father (b) His covenant with the Father (c) He bore our sins (d) He loved men (3) A universal principle If you save others, you cannot save yourself. You must give your self to God and good if you expect to be saved. He gave a number of lucid illustrations to illuminate his text. He suggested a dialogue between two grains of wheat, one selfishly said it would save its self, and remain in a little dark corner, the other said it would loose its self for humanities sake. It would be sown in the field, grow and multiply until it could feed thousands, to help make the bone and sinew of men and women, it would make their arms strong, their eyes bright and their cheeks glow with the crimson flush of health. It would give its self for goodness, and Gods glory. The Doctor told of a selfish man, an old bachelor of his acquaintance. He had grown rich, and held selfishly everything he had. This man had two sisters, who lived by toiling with their needle, in an humble home. The old bachelor would contribute nothing to help his dependant sisters, but the time came at last for this old stingy, selfish bachelor to die, and before dying he expressed the wish to have all of his property in greenback so he might burn it up before he went, but it was in land and when he died his sisters shared in it and lived comfortable.

The man who would save his life must loose it. If you expect a home in heaven you must be ever ready to make sacrifices for your fellowman. The man who lived for him self had no hope held out to him for rest and happiness hereafter.

Take Ye Away The Stone.

Dr. Orr preached an other helpful and interesting sermon Sunday night from St. Johns Gospel eleventh chapter and a sentence in the thirty ninth verse. Take ye away the stone. Martha had communicated with Christ twenty miles distance, that Lazarus whom he loved was dangerously sick, and she wished him to come, and see if he could not relieve him, Lazarus died soon after this and was buried, four days later Christ came, Mary fell at His feet and saying unto Him Lord if thou hadst been here my brother had not died, Jesus only answered her by asking where hast thou laid him, He was directed to the tomb in which Lazarus lay. Christ commanded that the stone be removed The Apostles who stood there and heard his commands did not ask to know the reason why. They knew that Lazarus had been dead four days, and that decomposition had already set in, but their implicit faith in Christ did not permit them to hesitate, they removed the stone, and Christ cried out with a loud voice, and said Lazarus come forth, and he that was dead came forth a living reincarnated man. Faith an indispensable necessity to seeing the glory of God.

While these are all interesting facts in connection with the most interesting character the world has ever known. Dr. Orr sought to impress a lesson upon his hearers upon the main fact that Christ had said remove the stone. There lays atwath the path of each unforgiven individual a stone, that stone must be removed before the individual finds full and complete peace and pardon from God.

With some it is one kind of a stone with others its an other. With you it may be criticism. It does not require an artist to be a critic, in fact to criticize the efforts of an other is the easiest kind of a job, but it often takes intelligence and experience to emulate It required the efficient work of an eminent architect to plan, and construct a Westminster, a collier can criticize the work. May be with you its the stone of prejudice, you have a wrong impression in regard to your brother, your sister, you misjudge them, quit it and learn with Gods help to be charitable, roll the stone away. It may be the stone of unforgiveness, you may feel you have been thereby wronged, unjustly treated, but you must forgive if you hope to be forgiven. May be it is the stone of pride, that haughty, arrogant feeling, so much of a characteristic with the very imp of predition. This is a common sin, it is too common for nice people to be afflicted with it. Your presumption does not create merit, it only directs attention to your other faults that might have been forgiven, and forgotten, but what ever your faults, what ever the stone that lays across your pathway get it out, it is an obstruction to your higher, and better life.

A sermon Monday morning, and night, and each succeeding morning and night during the week will follow. The services are sure to grow in interest and value as the meetings progress.

64,500,000 BARRELS OF BEER TO QUENCH YEARS THIRST

American People Also Drank 143,300,000 Gallons of Whiskey--7,707,000,000 Cigars and 14,012,000,000 Cigarettes Smoked.

The American people drank more whiskey and beer; smoked more cigars and cigarettes and chewed more tobacco during the fiscal year ending 1913 than in any other yearly period of the nation's history, according to estimates based upon the record-breaking internal revenue receipts of the Government for the twelve months ended June 30.

The drinkers of the country consumed the enormous total of 143,300,000 gallons of whiskey and brandy, an increase of 7,500,000 gallons over the previous year and breaking the former high record of the fiscal year 1907 by 7,300,000 gallons. Sixty-four million five hundred thousand barrels of beer flowed down the throats of lovers of the amber brew, exceeding 1911's great record by more than 1,000,000 barrels.

Smokers-puffed into space 7,707,000,000 cigars and 14,012,000,000 cigarettes during the year just closed. This was 217,000,000 cigars and 2,790,000,000 cigarettes more than ever before had been consumed in a single year. Patrons of the pipe smoked 403,200,000 pounds of tobacco, or 9,400,000 pounds more than the consumption of 1912.

Users of snuff likewise held their own, disposing of 33,200,000 pounds, an increase of more than 3,000,000 pounds over the previous year.

Despite the high record consumption of intoxicants, returns to the Internal Revenue Bureau show without exaggeration that the number of saloons of the country decreased by 18,000 during the year, the retail liquor dealers numbering only about 450,000.

THOUSANDS FALLING IN BALKAN WAR

Servians Admit Losing 6,000 Men in Three days and Bulgarians Suffered Even More.

Telegrams from the Balkans indicate a state of affairs that hourly grows more alarming. From a mass a contradictory reports it may be considered established that the losses among Greeks and Servians on the one side and among Bulgarians on the other are much heavier than the published figures indicate.

The Swiss Red Cross Society has been asked by the Servian Red Cross Society to send doctors and nurses to the front to care for the 3,000 wounded which have sent from the Servian lines. The Bulgarians have suffered losses equal to if not heavier than their antagonists and fighting continues.

The Servian Legation has received a despatch from Premier Pachitch, stating that the Servians captured 2,000 prisoners and 300 guns in the first three days' fighting at a loss of 6,000 Servians killed or wounded. The Bulgarians suffered even more severely and sixty of their officers were captured. The arrival of 2,000 wounded at the Servian capital confirms the story of heavy fighting.

BULGARIANS CLAIM VICTORY.

LOSS APPEARS HEAVY

After 10 days fighting, more severe than anything in the last Balkan War a little light begins to break upon the obscure operations. The Servians have lost more than in the whole previous campaign, and semi official statements from B-igrade have the appearance of preparing the public for news of a disaster.

Desperate fighting with fluctuating fortunes is proceeding along the Vardar and Bregalinitz Rivers, apparently to Bulgaria's advantage. News has been received of the Bulgarian invasion of Servia through Belogradchik. The Bulgarians claim to have defeated the Servians and captured five guns and a quantity of other material, and by the occupation of the passes, to have opened the road to Nish, Servia's most important fortified town.

There is heavy fighting between the Servians and Bulgarians south of Istip and in the neighborhood of Kotchana. About 200,000 men are engaged and the losses on both sides appear heavy.

Bulgaria's strategy appears to be to hold the Greeks in check, probably with comparatively small forces, while she deals with Servia.

Judge Cooke Talks Plain to a Wake Co. Court.

In his charge to the grand jury at the one-week criminal term of Wake county Superior court. Judge C. M. Cooke, of Edinburg, urged that men place their duty to the State on a higher plane, and charged the grand jury to present all persons who in the last two years have sold cigarettes to minors, called particular attention to the laws governing the securing of goods by false pretense and misrepresentation, and the carrying of concealed weapons, and asked the jury to make a formal request of the Legislature that a law be passed stipulating just how much room the holder of a ticket on a passenger train shall be entitled to, his Honor declaring that remedial legislation of this character is badly needed.
