Don't listen to the howler who claims his election was stolen. Usually the election officials are honest law-abiding citizens.

No wonder the banks will not make any loans in the face of the fact that they have to pay about 7 1-2 per cent for currency from New York.

Gov. Craig should keep up his fight that he begun for good roads. We are not throwing off on the Governor, but we really mean that he should not lose courage, but continue to fight.

Hon. Lee S. Overman seems to be very much elated over the fact that he will be the first United States Senator from North Carolina to be elected by a direct vote of the people. The Senator will come home to vote on the 3rd of November.

Some people have said that they would wager their bottom dollar that before the time came for Virginia to go dry, the wets would have caused another election, and that the State would go wet. There is no logic in making such absurd predictions. Virginia is dry to stay dry.

The war. Yes the war, we have heard and heard it until we would now be glad to hear something else. It is to be hoped we will soon hear the people begin to talk prosperity. We think, however, that within a very short time the war will have ceased and that we shall have such a revival as never heard of before. What we Americans want now is business, we don't care so much about what party is in power in the United States we want good business. The people up North, the majority, don't give a rap for the party. The question with them is will my business be effected.

Colonel Roosevelt told Princeton students in an address today that he had seen the plans of two Empires now involved in the European war to capture great American seaports and hold them for ransom. "It is this country's duty," said Colonel Roosevelt, "to put itself in such shape that it will be able to defend its right if they are invaded. I have seen plans prepared to take both San Francisco and New York and hold them for ransom that would cripple our country and give funds to the enemy for carrying on war."—Charlotte Observer.

We don't ever recall a time in the history of North Carolina when the people were manifesting so little interest in politics. The fact is the time has come when the people have found the folly of making so much demonstration over politics. There was once a time in this Commonwealth when the people would begin to order whiskey (or buy it rather, for in those days we had it right at home,) about a month before the campaign would open, and the politicians would all meet and drink and let drink. We suspect that they thought more of the good times that they would have in snorting over the country drinking than they did of showing their patriotism for their State, or nation as the case might be, anyhow we know that times have changed and changed considerably.

President Wilson has issued his Thanksgiving proclamation, and it is indeed a day that should truly be set apart for this purpose. A great many people think that they do not have anything to be thankful for, but when we come to think of it sanely we find that we have been blessed in many ways. The Almighty in his love and wisdom has spared our lives and certainly we should be thankful for that. It is true that hard times, in a measure, have confronted us, and consequently it has made it rather hard for some of us to pull through our difficulties. It could have been worse. We should be thankful that these United States of America has not been involved in this dreadful European war. But how many of us are going to be as appreciative as we should, we sometimes wonder why the good Lord has spared our lives. Let us all be thankful.

THE CALL FOR FEDERAL AID.

"Unless the cotton situation in the South has been improved meanwhile, the first thing that will be taken up when Congress meets in December will be the matter of cotton relief legislation, as it will come in the privileged order of business. It is to be hoped, however, that the Federal reserve bank and emergency money will have so improved the situation that there will be no necessity for taking up again the many schemes for abstracting money from the Government. It has been noted that other interests taking courage from the stand made by the advocates of Federal aid to the cotton farmers, are shaping plans to board the same boat. The politicians have always made a great howl against the ship subsidy and for which they have claimed political preferment as reward, and these are going to find some embarrassment when it comes to voting various agricultural subsidies which will be promoted."—Charlotte Observer

In our opinion the whole matter is wrong. The cotton farmer and his situation has been so agitated that the farmer himself has come to believe that he must have ten cents for his cotton, and that his creditors have small rights in the matter. In view of the large crop, it is extremely doubtful if it could have been marketed at ten cents under normal conditions. We are aware that it is heresy to advise people to sell at six cents; but if the business life of the merchant who has carried the farmer is dependent upon the farmer's paying his store account and this is the case in many sections of the South, then there is nothing else to do. The whole commercial fabric of the South is dependent upon the farmer's paying his bills. The merchant and the manufacturer cannot carry the cotton crop for the farmer. Those who advise him to hold his crop indefinitely should provide him a credit system at once, so that he can pay his debts and not pull the whole business interest of the South down upon his head by holding at the expense of his creditors.

The Fool

There were two men who trod the way—
The weary way of Life;
The path that is hemmed in by woe,
And clamorings, and strife,
But one went straight on his course
And held his head in pride.
"They fall?" he asked. "Why should I stop
To raise them to their feet
Is not the battle to the strong,
The race unto the fleet?
Each goes according to his strength;
Some lead, and some are led—
The goal is yet afar, far off,
And I must press ahead."
The other passed to comfort them
That feared the storm and stress;
Where sorrow was he left the glow
Of sturdy cheerfulness,
And lo! he came unto the goal
With him that forged ahead;
And there an angel with a book
Alternate wrote and read.
"We wait for you," the angel said,
"In this our paradise,
You twain are entered in the book—
One as a fool; one wise."
The first man said: "To win the goal
Alone has been my rule"
The second sighed: "I never thought
Of that; I am the fool."
Yet as they stood, there came a press
Of those they left behind—
They gave the second all their praise
As gentle, brave and kind.
They bore him in with song and shout,
The wise man, standing by,
Turned to the angel: "Write again."
He said, "The fool was I."

Despondency Due to Indigestion.

It is not at all surprising that persons who have indigestion become discouraged and despondent. Here are a few words of hope and cheer for them by Mrs. Blanche Bowers, Indiana, Pa. "For years my digestion was so poor that I could only eat the lightest foods. I tried every thing that I heard of to relief, but not until about a year ago when I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and got a bottle of them, did I find the right treatment. I soon began to improve, and since taking a few bottles of them my digestion is fine." For sale by Mebane Drug Co.
