It is said that Mr. Daughtridge is expecting the assistance of big politicians at Washington in his gubernatorial aspiration, we should think less of Mr. Daughtridge's capability and fitness if he gets their assistance. It don't work with clean hands.

The South should not bank too strongly upon the fact that the four million bale cotton crop of Egypt will be largely reduced this fall on account of the disordered conditions produced by the war. This four million bales is much of an item in the cotton supply, but it may not cut near the figure in the aggregate you are thinking it will.

Its an encouraging sign to learn that President Wilson is studying the war maps of Europe with a view of giving intelligent aid in the event he is called upon to give council and advice in a peace conference. The supposition is that Mr. Wilson has inside information to the effect that condition are getting ripe in Europe to consider peace, and that he would assuredly become an important factor in bringing the powers to amicable terms and a satisfactory adjustment of their differences.

Twenty million dollar order to a powder plant for powder indicates big business, if not the character that would be helpful to us, an order for that amount of powder has been given to the Hercules Powder company by a country at war in Europe.

The Dupont, and the Atlas and all other powder mills are making big money on the sales of powder. These people are growing immensely rich, but it is not helping in this section, and if you can not see the point you are dull.

Perhaps we should be thankful that Italy has not offered her sword to assist the German aggression, as was persistently sought in the early stages of the war, but it is true according to our thinking that Italy has not played a very creditable part in her waiting game to try to coerce Austria into giving her certain territory, as a price for her neutrality, by holding a standing army waiting. While if Italy must strike we would prefer her striking an Allev of Germany, we can not view her demand in any other light than one mean and mercenary. Only all things are fair in love and war.

A BITTER STORY, IF TRUE.

The Philadelphia Press of Sunday in an Editorial of some length has the following to say of the French territory held by the Germans, since their retreat from Paris. It is somewhat a surprise to us.

"Behind the German army at the present time is nearly fifty per cent. of industrial France. The invaders have taken country populated by one-tenth of the people of France. In the territory held by the Germans are the mines, the factories, the foundries, the dairies and the farms which have supplied France with most of her wealth. They have been the especial pride of the Gallic republic; they contribute to her treasury a majority of the taxes raised; they represent in value fifty per cent.

of the entire wealth of the nation; they produce most of her industrial riches.

Their loss has sent France into the open market for most of her munitions of war that could have been made in her own land; now they are supplying the German invaders with them. Seventy per cent. of all the coal mined in France is in German possession. This sends the republic to other nations for fuel to supply her war vessels, when she might mine it at home if her subjugated departments were under her control now. Ninety per cent. of all the iron produced in France is in German hands. This means that the republic is forced to spend huge sums for iron in her warfare that otherwise could be produced on her own soil. Now it goes to the Germans.

The steel industry lies in back of the German trenches. Here the invaders can manufacture cannon and ammunition without having to transport it from the great Krupp factories in Essen. When it is noted that France stood fourth among the nations in the production of pig iron and steel, it can be readily seen what a treasure the Germans have secured in the conquered departments. With these in the possession of the Kaiser's minions, together with the iron and steel industries of Belgium in their grasp, Germany now controls a monopoly of the iron and steel industry of Europe, which is no small item in warfare.

Coal, iron, steel—these three great factors in decisive warfare are found in German possession on French soil. It means that the invaders have an opportunity to manufacture arms and ammunition taken from the enemy's own workshops. It means that the French republic must spend inconceivable sums to secure the essentials that could have been obtained from their own factories and foundries. It means a serious financial problem for France to face. It means, too, that Germany can husband her own monetary resources and utilize French industrial strength to withstand the assaults of the Gallic troops. It gives Germany an advantage that is not to be despised, and it adds one hundred fold to the burdens of the allies in seeking to drive the Teutons from the soil of the Gallic republic and Belgium. It also means a prolongation of warfare that cannot be estimated in months, but must take years in its comprehension.—Philadelphia Press.

The Accursing Gold

By Edwin Markham.

It was when Ferdinand was king in Naples, back in a little ring Of noisy years, forgot and gone, A whirl of mist across the dawn. A little legend of those years Stays to proclaim their toils and tears—

One little legend that, I wit, Is in the Book of Judgment writ. And now the accusement of this time Will cry it into the ear of Time.

The king, to bind with crafty hold St. Francis of Castellamare, Flung to the friar a purse of gold (You should have seen the courtiers stare),

A thousand ducats as an aim To lay within God's empty palms But Francis, friend of man, stooped down,

And snatching a coin from the impious purse (Stamped with the Prince's royal crown,

But stamped more keep with the people's curse) He bent it till it broke; and lo, Blood tickled out for all to know!

"Take back your gold," the friar cried "The gold that props your pomp and pride,

Behold the peoples blood you draw Through stealthy treasons of the law, This blood proclaims the griefs and wrongs

Of them to whom the god belongs. Give all to them, if you would give The gold into God's hand live."

COULD SCARCELY WALK ABOUT

And For Three Summers Mrs. Vincent Was Unable to Attend to Any of Her Housework.

Pleasant Hill, N. C.—"I suffered for three summers," writes Mrs. Walter Vincent, of this town, "and the third and last time, was my worst.

I had dreadful nervous headaches and prostration, and was scarcely able to walk about. Could not do any of my housework.

I also had dreadful pains in my back and sides and when one of those weak, sinking spells would come on me, I would have to give up and lie down, until it wore off.

I was certainly in a dreadful state of health, when I finally decided to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I firmly believe I would have died if I hadn't taken it.

After I began taking Cardui, I was greatly helped, and all three bottles relieved me entirely.

I fattened up, and grew so much stronger in three months, I felt like another person altogether."

Cardui is purely vegetable and gentle-acting. Its ingredients have a mild, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution.

Cardui makes for increased strength, improves the appetite, tones up the nervous system, and helps to make pale, sallow cheeks, fresh and rosy.

Cardui has helped more than a million weak women, during the past 50 years. It will surely do for you, what it has done for them. Try Cardui today.
