Enforce the Law.

Green-boro Record.

It takes a Philadelphia lawyer to keep up with the action of a legislature and then he often slips up. The law prohibiting smoking cigarettes by boys under 17 years of age, passed in 1891, amended by the last legislature in a way that puts it up strongly to the officers to enforce its provisions. If they see a youth under the age named, smoking a cigarette, it is their duty to at once investigate the source of the cigarette, and if the smoker refuses to tell where he bought the smoke or who gave it to him, he himself is guilty of a misdemeanor. If an officer has information that a person under 17 is smoking cigarettes, it is his duty to discover the source of the cigarette. The law covers smoking tobacco and cigarette papers, and one who gives either cigarette or "the makings" to a person under 17, is as guilty as he who sells the same.

In every case the smoker is either obliged to tell who sold or who gave the smoke to him, or be punished for misdemeanor. Upon finding the source of the tobacco or the cigarette, the officer shall proceed to take out a warrant for the offender and he must be punished as the law directs.

The old law was never enforced, but now, if a boy smokes in public, the officer cannot escape proceeding as directed, for the evidence is handed to him in a neat package. He doesn't have to work it up.

Speaks in Shcps.

Thomasville, April 15.—Over 1,200 workmen of the city heard good roads talks by H. B. Varner of Lexington here today, the editor of Southern Good Roads visiting all the local manufacturing plants and making 11 pleas for the bond issue of $300,000 which the county will vote on next Tuesday.

The different shops stopped work for the time required by the addresses, the loss of time amounting to over $400 to the manufacturers, who thus displayed their interest in the cause.

The Automobile in North Carolina.

News and Observer.
The estimate that there is now invested in automobiles in North Carolina very nearly six millions of dollars. The first law regulating the use and registration of automobiles in North Carolina became effective on July 1, 1909, and there are now over 7,000 automobiles, with an average estimated value of $800 each.

For the first year the registrations were 1,681 machines, which included all in operation in the State at that time, and all purchased for the first year. In 1912 from January 1st to December 31st, approximately 2,400 machines were registered. In 1913, the office of the secretary of state, where they are registered, expects at least 4,000 registrations.

The old law required a registration fee of $5 to be paid to the secretary of State, and $1 for renewal each year thereafter. Under the new law, the registration fee is graded according to horsepower, being $5 for machines of 5 horsepower or less, $7.50 for machines of from 26 horsepower to 40 horsepower, and $10 for all over 40 horse-power. These fees are payable annually. Under the old law $3 of the $5 registration was returned to the counties for the road fund. Under the new law, eighty per cent of all funds is returned to the counties for the road fund.

The principal feature of the new law, is the feature of identification—that is, heretofore the State did not furnish numbers, each registered owner furnishing them for himself. There was no uniformity in these numbers, some being painted on the machines, others being made of metal, etc. Under the new law, the secretary of state will furnish to each registered owner a display number of uniform size, to be changed in style and color each year, so that the officers of the State can tell at a glance whether or not a machine is registered. The date of the expiration of the license will be stated on the plate and it is expected that by this means all owners who have heretofore by one means or another "dodged" registration, will easily be apprehended.

The new law requires also the registration of motor cycles, which was not required under the old law. It also provides that no person under the age of 16 years shall operate a machine. Non-resident owners are exempt from the registration provisions of the law for a period of fifteen days in each year.

The present registration amounts to about 7,000 machines, which should average about $800 each, a total of $5,600,000. Requests for application cards, and the unusual number of new registrations coming in from the "R. F. D.'s." As the registration law only went into effect in 1909, there are no figures as to the amount invested before that time.
