

CALOMEL DYNAMITES A SLUGGISH LIVER

Crashes into sour bile, making you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money. If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

Five Hundred University Men Will Enlist.

Four hundred students showed their interest in practical preparedness for war at the University of North Carolina last week by coming out to the first military drill held in old Commons Hall of the University. The large number was a little unexpected. It is now practically certain that at least 500 men will enlist for the training at an early date, and the drill will be carried on out of doors, with experienced officers in charge. Efforts are being made to secure an adequate number of guns from the government. The patriotism of the alumni is just as pronounced as that of the student body, as shown by the immediate replies to the queries sent out by the Intelligence Bureau of the University. These are being classified and filed by the committee as rapidly as possible. Alumni from 20 to 68 years of age have enrolled and stated their special qualifications. As this census has been the first of its kind to be held in the State it is significant that it shows the typical North Carolina patriotism in the present crisis. Everyone has offered himself as ready to be called on and uphold past traditions.

GRAPHIC STORY OF THE GERMAN INVASION.

Priest of Voyennes Lives to See German Spirit Broken. Women Put in Slavery.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Associated Press British Headquarters in France, March 26.—This is the story of the priest of Voyennes, who stood today in the shadow of the still hot walls of his church, which had been set alight by the Germans the day they slipped away from this plain little village perched above the valley of the Somme. Flashes of passionate protest mingled with a spirit of proud resignation in his recital of the life at Voyennes during the two and a half years of German control. Looking through field glasses from the loft of his presbytery last Monday the priest who was also acting mayor, saw four khaki-clad horsemen on the road and knew that the Germans had gone and British relief was at hand.

A few minutes later a French cavalry patrol appeared and the allies had formed a new link in the pursuit of the common foe. Today the booming of the gun in this pursuit could be heard over a stretch of 80 battle miles. The cure told how a few narrow scars in the earth, known as German trenches, ribbons of barbed wire behind them and a bit of shell-torn waste called "no man's land" had isolated a section of the French people from their country as effectually as if they had been suddenly transplanted to another hemisphere. He told how in Voyennes women, children and old men lived and toiled for the invaders in utter ignorance of what was going on in the world about them. They were told long ago that their beautiful Paris was to fall within a week and would be pillaged and burned.

Later they were told "Paris is dead," and the Germans added insult to injury, the old priest exclaimed, by pronouncing it "Paris" instead of "Paree."

Asked if the people suffered much, the cure replied: "Ah, yes. Our food did not last long. Then we had to work for the Germans and take what they gave us. Sometimes it was so bad that even the cats refused to eat. Then the Americans began to feed us, and that saved thousands of lives. Our people are very grateful."

"But let us not dwell on the physical side today, but speak of the mental and moral anguish we endured, for it seemed like the span of a hundred years. It has left us all but imbecilic. I scarce can keep my vagrant thoughts together."

Last Sunday when early mass was over, the German commandant at Voyennes appeared at the church with a party of soldiers bearing petrol cans, he bluntly told the priest that he was tired of the war and, as one means of bringing the end nearer, he was going to burn the church.

The priest thought it was a cruel jest, until he was escorted to his house and held prisoner there. He was compelled to look on impotently while the inflammable liquid was sprayed about and the torch applied in a dozen places. Of all the ancient interior, only the wooden crucifix against the altar wall, by some strange freak, escaped the flames.

Late at night the Germans rode away. Not another building in all Voyennes was touched. "But," said the old priest, "I lived to see the German spirit broken, from the unspeakable arrogance of their first onslaught and threat toward the parish, until a few days ago an officer met me in the street and said: 'Father we are lost. I have done much in this war that rests heavily on my conscience, but I have done it under orders. I dare not disobey.'"

"I told him that he surely would be absolved, for he was not to blame. There were others of higher station who must make answer to their God." "When the Germans first came, the commander sought me and said that the people of Voyennes had fired on his troops and that reparation would be demanded. It was the same old story, and I told him it was a lie; that we had no arms; that if shots were fired it was done by Germans as an excuse to make us suffer. The commander did not carry out his threat.

"We have had many commanders since then and, one and all, they have ruled their men with a discipline of iron. Some of the officers treated their subordinates like dogs; they said the men were their slaves, as the French would be. I saw an officer one day, without reason whatever, cuff his orderly so hard that the man's eye was black for a week. The soldier's only reply was to click his heels together and come to salute.

"Some of the villagers asked the men why they submitted to such treatment. They replied that they were helpless now as part of a military machine, but when the war was over their time would come. For a long time now the German soldiers have had no coffee and their rations have been growing less and less. I tell you with all solemnity that when the war is ended there will be reckoning and Germany will know a blood-red revolution.

"The best commander we had was the one before the last who spent 15 years in America and married an American girl. He had tasted the joys of liberty in a free country and his every act, no matter how stern, was touched with kindness. He spared us much. For two years and a half we have been out of the world and probably will never catch up.

"The Germans distributed a paper they printed, called the Gazette des Ardennes, but we would not read its extravagant falsehoods and accusations against our country. One day we obtained a French paper. We knew then that Paris had not fallen and would not fall. We knew the glory of Verdun. Of America we knew only that Roosevelt was urging the great nation to come in.

"We knew last autumn of the battles of the Somme, for we saw wounded Germans coming back until the roads seemed choked with mangled men. We saw other thousands going back to the trenches after a brief rest and heard them cry out: 'Jesus have mercy! Jesus save us!'"

"We heard wounded men tell of the maddening fire of the British and French guns and we heard the tumult of those guns ourselves. Our situation too, was maddening,—we who could only be saved by our brothers' devastation of our beautiful France.

"Many of our girls were taken from time to time. Now all women able to work and have no children dependent on them have been carried away slaves to Germany. We pray that they suffer no sadder fate."

KAISER OWNS MILLIONS HERE.

Government May Probably Take Over his Holdings in Case of War.

Washington, March 30.—Ten million dollars worth of United States stocks are owned by the kaiser and members of his family and may be confiscated by the United States government in case of war.

Facts just made public indicate Wilhelm's concern over reaffirmation of treaties guaranteeing Germans' personal property against seizure may have been caused by personal rather than national reasons.

The kaiser is one of the greatest of American property owners. He had a fancy for railway securities. When the war began he is said to have possessed $4,000,000 in stocks and bonds of the Sante Fe, Union and Southern Pacific, and other Western lines.

These shares were held in the name of dummies or German brokerage houses in New York.

The kaiserin herself holds half a million in American securities. Prince Henry while in this country is said to have made investment for himself totalling several millions.

There is evidence that agents of the kaiser have made stock market clean-ups on strength of advance information from Berlin.

The kaiser is said to have large land holdings in America, much more valuable now than when bought 20 years ago.

He is part owner of the North German Lloyd and Hamburg-American lines, which have $20,000,000 in ships tied up in American ports. Without these ships, re-establishment of German commerce after the war would be hampered.

The kaiser is the majority owner of a silk mill in Paterson, N. J., which by the way, was shown by the commission on industrial relations to pay the lowest wages and compel the worst working conditions in the district.

As a stockholder in a Chicago packing company, the kaiser is reputed to have piled up wealth at the expense of the allies and the American republic.

It is rumored the federal government is investigating the extent of Wilhelm's holdings, with the idea that if the government should not confiscate property of individual German citizens, exception should be made in the kaiser's case, on the ground that his autocratic relations to the government make his holdings, in effect, the property of the German state.

This property, if confiscated, would be converted into the United States federal treasury.
