

A Booklet of Real Value.

Have You Read It.

A Surry County boy, Rev. H. L. Atkins in spite of great difficulties, made his way to a place of honor and usefulness in the ministry of the Methodist Church, but who has been now nearly twenty years in the mountains of Texas, in a life and death struggle with tuberculosis, has written a valuable booklet. The title of the work is, "Our Dead, or The Life After Death."

It is a fine Scriptural statement of the immortality of the human soul and of the folly and dangers of modern Spiritualism.

It will do much to enable you to understand just what the Bible teaches about this sacred, important and ever present subject. It will bring you comfort, encouragement, strength and a new insight of God's Word.

Thousands of copies of this booklet should be bought and read by Surry County people. It is not a denominational work, but is just as suitable for Baptist, Friends or Presbyterians as for Methodists.

Florida "Comes Clean" by Ending Convict Camps

Literary Digest.—"The stain upon the name of Florida, placed there by the brutal murder of Martin Tabert, who was flogged to death at the camp of the Putnam Lumber Company, can never be expunged, but the name of Florida has been cleared from the charge of wilfully being a party to this crime against humanity, through the action of the Legislature in the abolition of peonage and the flogging of convicts." This declaration of the Peninsula News is echoed by newspapers throughout Florida in comments on the passage of bills to abolish the leasing of convicts to private corporations and the employment of whipping-houses. One of the owners of The News is State Senator John H. Stokes who led the fight against the leasing system and who has been retained as counsel by interests representing the Tabert family.

The tragic fate of Martin Tabert, a twenty-two-year-old boy from North Dakota, aroused the sympathy and indignation of the entire country when brought to the attention of the public last winter. The youth was taken off a train in Leon County, Florida, on December 15, 1921, arrested as a vagrant, and sentenced to pay a fine of $25, or become a convict for ninety days. He, wired home for the money, but never received the registered letter containing $75 which his parents sent to him immediately. He was farmed out to work for a lumber company and was flogged frequently with a heavy whip. He died in a delirium after an especially severe thrashing, and the company doctor gave malignant malaria as the cause. It was not known whether he had been given a regular burial, or merely had been thrown into a swamp.

More than a year and a half later the suspicious circumstances surrounding his death were called to the notice of the North Dakota Legislature, which passed a resolution calling upon Florida to investigate. The resulting inquiry showed that those in control of the prisoners had been guilty of wanton cruelty and callous disregard for the health, and even lives, of their charges.

Nevertheless, several State Senators balked at putting an end to the leasing of county prisoners, which was of immense benefit to private corporations. The retention of the whipping boss over convicts also was defended on the ground that discipline would be impossible without this threat of torture. One by one, they are told, even the most reactionary Senators felt the growing force of public sentiment against the old practices. The great work finally accomplished by the Legislature is summed up thus by Samuel D. McCoy, staff correspondent of the New York World:

The sheriff who caused Tabert's arrest was discharged. The county judge who sentenced him was discharged. The prison physician who was responsible for the care of prisoners in the camp where Tabert died was denounced before the entire State as "a disgrace to the profession." A prison inspector accused of whitewashing conditions in another of the leased-convict camps was denounced publicly and will presumably be discharged.

These were accomplishments affecting particular individuals. The abolishing, by special act of the Legislature, the system of leasing misdemeanor convicts to private corporations; and the abolishing, by another statute, the practice of whipping prisoners.

This Florida has already done, and done whole-heartedly, with a white heat of righteous indignation at its own past failings. True, there were reactionary interests who opposed what the great majority of Florida's citizens demanded, but they opposed it in vain, and those politicians who did oppose it have written, unless the memory of Florida's voters is very short, the death-warrant to all their hopes for future advancement.

Youthful Rancher Visits His Vast Hawaiian Estate

Honolulu, June 12.—The high cost of living is one thing that need not cause much worry for the next year to 10-year-old Richard Stuart, who is now on his annual visit to his domain, the great Parker ranch of about 300,000 acres on the island of Hawaii.

On the petition of his grandmother and guardian, Mrs. Elizabeth Knight, who was Mrs. John Parker before her second marriage, Judge John Decha of Honolulu has just increased the youngster's annual allowance from $9,000 to $18,000. This sum is divided as follows—general maintenance, education, upkeep of automobile, groceries and chauffeur, $12,000; provision for annual gifts to employees of the Parker ranch, $1,800; special fund for his annual vacation in Hawaii, $4,200.

Few American boys attaining their majority will control the wealth that lies in store and is piling up for young Stuart. He will be a multimillionaire, with an annual income of more than $200,000, and the ownership of the ranch, one of the largest and finest in the world, which is estimated to be worth between $5,000,000 and $5,000,000.

The ranch has played a prominent part in island history and was one of the few places in the territory which did not pay homage to "King sugar." In the early days of the huge estate, life was as wild and care-free as on any cattle ranch in the mainland west. The Hawaiian cowboys were considered of the finest in the world and took many trophies and prizes at mainland rodeos.

Most of Richard's time is spent upon the mainland, chiefly on the Pacific coast, but his annual visit to the ranch is marked by a huge celebration, dodoo and barbecue in which the countryside participates. It is at this time that his gifts to his employees are distributed.

The Home of the Soul

In olden times, it was believed that the seat of the soul was the stomach, most likely for the reason that a man is never so completely used up as when his stomach is out of order. For the cure of ordinary stomach troubles, there is nothing quite so prompt and satisfactory as Chamberlain's Tablets. They strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Give them a trial. They only cost a quarter.

Recommends Chamberlain's Tablets

"Chamberlain's Tablets have been used by my husband and myself off and on for the past five years. When my husband goes away from home he always takes a bottle of them along with him. Whenever I have that heavy feeling after eating, or feel dull and played out, I take one or two of Chamberlain's Tablets and they fix me up fine," writes Mrs. Newton, Vreeland, Minoa, N. Y. Take these tablets when troubled with constipation or indigestion and they will do

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (New Jersey)

What is "STANDARD"?
—that by which others are compared

It is as true of "Standard" Motor Gasoline as it is of the Government yardstick and Troy pound. "It is as good as Standard," says the dealer who does not know where his gasoline comes from. And maybe it is—but you can safely stick to the original. A distillation test will reveal the uniform high quality which has established "Standard" as the all-round pacemaker in quick starting, smooth acceleration and big, economical mileage. "Standard" specifications mean that uniform satisfaction can be bought at thousands of Standard pumps.
