IF I MIGHT ASK By GRACE E. HALL. IF I might ask of God one precious gift To bless my life and make it strong and fine, To help me from the chase ever off These things which are immortal and divine; If it were granted that one blessing fall Upon my earthly path, my joy increasing, I'd ask a broader charity towards all, And it would be a tender faith unceasing. If I might plead a second time, and gain The favor that I craved all else above, I'd ask the power to soothe another's pain, And warm some hopeless heart with human love; Then, when these gifts had both been granted me, And God the best and choicest one was sending, I'd ask once more—still broader charity, And in my fellow-men a faith unending. Patsy Ruth Miller As a rule, it takes long, hard work to get to the top in the "motion" picture business. But it was easy for Patsy Ruth Miller, a beautiful seventeen-year-old St. Louis girl. Miss Miller has dark brown hair, brown eyes, and is five feet, two and one-half inches tall. She has a vivacious manner and keen mind which give her decided personality.

MORE GOOD THINGS TOMATOES are usually in season, somewhere; but the canned variety may be procured.

Tomato and Celery Salad. Turn one can of tomatoes into a saucepan, bring to the boiling point and let boil five minutes; then force through a strainer. Add two and one-half tablespoonsful of granulated gelatin soaked in one-half cupful of cold water 15 minutes, one teaspoonful each of salt and powdered sugar and one-third of a cupful of celery cut into thin slices. Pour into individual molds to chill. Remove to lettuce leaves, garnish with curled celery and accompany with mayonnaise.

Baked Bananas, Currant Jelly Sauce. Loosen a section of skin from each banana. Put the fruit into a baking pan and bake until soft. Remove from the skins and roll in chopped nuts. Surround with currant jelly sauce. To prepare the sauce take one-half cupful of jelly and add two-thirds of a cupful of boiling water. Thicken with a teaspoonful of arrowroot diluted with two tablespoonfuls of cold water; then add one tablespoonful of butter and one teaspoonful of lemon juice.

Bisque of Lobster. Remove the meat from a two-pound lobster. Add two cupfuls of cold water to the bones and end of claws; bring to the boiling point and cook 20 minutes. Drain, reserve the liquor, and thicken with one-fourth cupful of butter and the same amount of flour cooked together until smooth. Scald a quart of milk with the tail meat of the lobster, finely chopped; strain and add to the liquor. Season with salt and cayenne; then add the tender claw meat, cut into dice, and the body meat.

Praline Ice Cream. Put one-half cupful of sugar into a small omelet pan and stir constantly until caramelized. Add two-thirds of a cupful of chopped pecan meats and turn into a buttered tin. Cool and pound and pass through a coarse strainer. Make a custard of two cupfuls of scalded milk, yolks of three eggs, one-half cupful of sugar, and a pinch of salt. Add the prepared nuts and cool, then add one cupful of heavy cream beaten stiff and three-fourths of a tablespoonful of vanilla.

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because— By ETHEL R. FEYSER. You Never Pass a Mirror Without Looking Into It! Let them laugh! The chewing-gum stand with its tiny mirror held straightened out many a girl's looks! Why shouldn't you look at a mirror? Aren't we always told to look well, aren't we always told to look our best? Don't we know that we can't get jobs unless we look well? Aren't the magazines always showing us how to look well-dressed, don't the langhans probably make their fortunes out of our appearances? What would we look like if we never looked in a mirror? Crushed as we get in trolleys, hung as we are in trains. Look well at yourselves; it is perfectly easy. If you have other interests rather than how you look. Look at the mirror; it has its place, but it hasn't every place. (Copyright, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

IN BUSINESS HOURS Labor to keep alive in your heart that little spark of celestial fire—conscience.—George Washington.

IF YOU want to impress your employer as being a thoroughbred, never let him see you adding little finishing touches to your toilet. If you must re-coat your face with powder, adjust your hair set, manicure your nails or add more carmine to your lips, be clever enough to do this where he cannot possibly see you. There are very few employers who would willingly forbid their employees from using the telephone for any personal matters whatever. Where there is such a strict ruling it is usually because some few employees have taken advantage of telephone privileges and have spent considerable time making and receiving calls of a purely personal nature during business hours. Not only is it unfair to use the time for which you are paid to work in this way or to make your employer pay for your personal calls—this is a trifling matter—but it really is unfair to make him listen to your telephone small talk. You know how stupid this usually is to a third person, and how annoying to overhear Mamie Brown's coy telephone remarks to her "best young man" when you are attempting to transact some really important business. If you are employed in some one else's office, remember this: If you are allowed to receive 'phone messages during business hours see that they are brief. It is quite possible to be brief to persons over the 'phone without being rude. Many an office worker seems to be quite unable to get through the morning or afternoon without the taking of almost constant nourishment in the way of candy. Really this probably does often help. Business lunches are too often inadequate and office work is fatiguing. Doubtless the craving for sweets is based on perfectly normal appetite, and sometimes it is easier to get through a hard day's work if we have this additional nourishment. But it is in very bad form, nevertheless, to munch candy during business hours and the young woman who does so is not acting in her own best interest. O, Solomon! The judge adjusted his spectacles. "In this charge against Mrs. Bunnaphy, of sticking a hatpin in Mrs. Busybeigh's eye, the case is dismissed." Mrs. Busybeigh snorted and turned red with rage. "But," continued the court, "for the future protection of Mrs. Bunnaphy, the court orders that Mrs. Bunnaphy plug up her keyhole."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY SYSTEM The march of Southern industry The South is still the world's cotton producer, but as a result of the development of the vast natural resources of this rich territory in the past few years the prosperity of the South no longer depends on a single product of the soil. Agriculture has been greatly diversified, live stock husbandry has increased, cotton manufacturing has gone ahead with giant strides, and the uncovering of great mineral deposits has supplied the raw materials for many new industries. The growth of the Southern Railway System has kept pace with the march of industry. We have double-tracked more than a thousand miles of main lines and installed automatic electric block signals; increased the weight of rails, the tractive power of locomotives and the carrying capacity of cars; and increased yard and side tracks to 40% of road mileage—a development that has called for the investment of $285,000,000 in twenty years. Originally built to serve an agricultural South, the lines of the Southern Railway System today are hauling an ever-increasing tonnage of raw materials and manufactured products of the industrial South. Agriculture is still the foundation of our Southern prosperity, but a greater South is being built out of the rich stores of underground resources that Nature has been holding in reserve for us.
