BONDING COUNTY OFFICERS

The folly of permitting county officers to give as sureties on their bonds private individuals instead of requiring them to furnish bonds secured by accredited surety companies is again emphasized by the transaction in Dobson last Monday.

If Mr. Eldridge upon assuming office had been required by the county Commissioners to give a responsible bonding company as surety then when the bank crash came some 2 or 3 good citizens of Surry County, his bondsmen, would have escaped a world of mental agony and possible financial loss.

We are told that the state law authorizes county Commissioners to accept any bond deemed by them sufficient and consonant with the amount of funds handled by the officer making the bond.

Here is a good man who either has political ambitions or whose friends persuade him "for the good of the party" to run for office. He is elected. He dislikes to pay out good money to a surety company for providing him with a bond, so he goes to these same friends who induced him to run for the office.

Then the unforeseen happens. A bank breaks; a highwayman robs the officer; his worthless son loots the office—any one of a hundred things happens to throw the bondsmen into hot water and the county into financial embarrassment.

In the absence of a statute requiring it, the leaders of both political parties in the county before giving a candidate their support, might require him to put himself on record by way of declaration that if elected to office he will not ask his friends to go on his bond, but will pay his money like a man to some approved surety company to provide such bond.

Crazy Stove Peddler Comes to Grief

J. N. Hundley, alias J. W. Dudley and formerly an inmate of the Southwestern Sanitarium for the Insane at Marion Va., was last week arrested by local authorities on a charge of forgery.

But last week he found himself in the toils of the law. He employed Oeler Wolfe to defend him. Oeler, after looking over the calendar of crime with which he was accused, exclaimed: "Why, Man, you are crazy!"

It was done and the defendant's brother, who is a prominent life insurance man of that city, came to Mount Airy and left sufficient funds with Judge Leavelle to cover all of his brother's crooked deals.

Inquiry revealed the fact that the man was not representing any stove manufacturing concern and that he was conducting a skin game pure and simple.

CONCERNING DRUG STORES

(We are glad to print the following article by Mr. Hynton who thinks a story in last week's paper was unfair to his business.—Editor)

I feel that it is fair to the drug profession here in general and especially to the store whose name appeared recently in connection with the proceedings of Police Court, to give the public some information concerning the drugs or medicines in question.

In meeting our responsibility to the people as retail druggists, we have to carry preparations containing alcohol from a very low to as high as 60 per cent and occasionally even higher.

It has been my observation and information that during the past few years, several different drugs or medicines have served their turn in helping to gratify that blighting thirst for alcohol which annoys many of the people of our town.

But the point which I desire most to correct is the reference to the "So. da Jerker" quitting the store.

The reporter for The News, drawing partly on his imagination, and endeavoring to write more between than on the lines, tried to see a vital connection between the making of a certain sale to one Walter Mahone and the termination of his services with the store.

J. W. Hynton, Sec. Treas. Mount Airy Drug Co.

PAYMENT OF $1,000 COUNTY FUNDS SECURED

Ex-County Treasurer Eldridge Gives Notes Maturing Over Two Years to Secure Funds Lost in Defunct Bank.

F. S. Eldridge, Ex-Treasurer of Surry county, Monday gave the county commissioners his notes endorsed by his bondsmen covering $12,000 of county funds which were lost in the crash of the Farmer's and Merchant's Bank of Elkin. All of Eldridge's bondsmen numbering twelve or fifteen endorsed the notes. The notes are timed to mature inside of two years.

Mr. Eldridge executed deeds of trust on all his real estate and chattel mortgages on all his personal property to secure his bondsmen. This arrangement was entered into for the purpose of making a final settlement of the unfortunate affair, and the notes were so timed as to permit Mr. Eldridge to dispose of his property and meet the obligations as they come due.

It will be recalled that in 1920 when the Elkin bank went to the wall some $20,000 of the county funds were on deposit with that institution. The county suffered considerable financial embarrassment as a result of the tying up of this sum of money, and it is not known even at this late date whether the affairs of the bank will ever be got in a position where the depositors will receive even a small per cent of their deposits. The present arrangement safeguards both Mr. Eldridge's bondsmen and assures the county of getting its money within the two year period.

Mr. Eldridge is a farmer living in the Zephyr settlement in the western part of the county and is said to be the owner of some 600 acres of good land. This unfortunate affair happening while he was treasurer of Surry county is said to have so embarrassed him financially that he is liable to lose most of his property in making the county whole. And the affair is a shining commentary on the folly of office-holders who embarrass their friends by asking them to become sureties for them on their bonds to the county.
