G. O. P. FEARS FROST MAY BLIGHT CROPS AND VICTORY TOO

Republicans Place Last Hope on Kindly Providence—Cold Snap Will Help Davis

Washington, Sept. 12.—Hoping for a kindly interposition of Providence that will defer the frost season in the Middle West, Republican leaders today were anxiously studying the weather maps and endeavoring to work out an average calculation of when frost may be expected.

Reports coming in from the Mississippi Valley have brought consternation to the Republican leaders and are to the effect that La Follette is making inroads upon their forces—in normally Republican States.

Increased prices for wheat have encouraged the Republican strategists, but in the corn belt there is already a crop shortage and experts say an early frost will spell disaster to the Coolidge cause.

It is for this reason that recourse is being had to the Weather Bureau, where little comfort is offered, on the ground that the bureau does not indulge in long-range forecasting. What the Republicans leaders are mostly interested in is an actual frost, but they fear it will be accompanied by a political frost if it comes within the next ten days.

The corn belt extends over Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota and Nebraska, while Kansas is sometimes caught within the early frost area. Without a frost Coolidge has a chance, is the slogan, while an early frost will work to the advantage of La Follette or Davis. Accordingly the slogan, "Keep cool with Coolidge!" has assumed a new significance.

Senator Brookhart of Iowa was a Washington visitor. Reports brought here by him and other visitors to the West all tell of increasing La Follette strength. The Iowa Senator, who is believed to be giving quiet encouragement to the La Follette cause was significantly silent on the Coolidge issue.

The Senator is devoting himself entirely to his own campaign and says there is keen interest in his section, evidenced by the innumerable meetings which the farmers are holding. Senator Brookhart said he had addressed 130 of them already, while he had declined invitations to address 200 more because of lack of time.

The La Follette forces deny the increased prices for wheat or corn will affect the political situation in the Mississippi Valley States. They say their reports are to the effect the farmers are saying that if the food speculators can gamble up the prices of grain now, why didn't they do it long ago.

Price Rise Won't Swing Results. Senator Brookhart joins with the avowed La Follette followers in believing the rise in the price of wheat and corn will not affect the political results. Out in Iowa, however, the Republicans are pinning their hope on having the already depleted corn crop mature.

An early frost will deplete it by about 50 per cent, which they fear will spell disaster for their cause.

WAR METHODS NOW OBSOLETE

Bombing of Cities by Unmanned Airplanes and Putting Population to Sleep Described

Philadelphia, Sept. 17.—New developments in aerial warfare that render certain world war methods of strategy obsolete, were described today by government experts before a gathering of scientists here in honor of the centenary of the Franklin institute.

The end of transportation of great armies overseas, bombing of cities by unmanned automatically operated aeroplanes, a new aerial camera, that nullifies camouflage, wiping out of a battleship with a single air bomb, and the possible paralyzing of an entire nation by a combination of new chemical discoveries were among the new weapons of war discussed.

Referring to the "manless" aeroplane, General Squire asked, "who shall say what limits to impose upon new ideas of attack, if unhappily, war should come again.

"Just as we now give a harmless anaesthetic to an individual for a surgical operation, so we may be able in future to put a whole nation to sleep for 48 hours by a combination of new chemical discoveries with radio-controlled, manless aeroplanes."

HALL-MILLS CRIME 3 YEARS UNSOLVED

Anniversary of Double Murder Finds Most of Those Involved Moved From Scene

New York, Sept. 14.—Two years ago today the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. James Mills, choir singer and wife of the sexton of his church, were murdered in New Brunswick, N. J. Finding of their bodies two days later under a crab-apple tree, near their homes, brought to light one of the most baffling and sensational tragedies in modern crime. It is still unsolved.

Official activity in the case has ceased. The authorities lone hope is that some day the slayer, or slayers, may confess. The principal surviving characters in the tragedy are forgetting or striving to forget.

Mrs. Frances Neal Stevens Hall, widow of the slain minister, left New Brunswick about a month ago with the announced intention of living henceforth in Italy. A few months after the crime, and shortly after she had received a $75,000 legacy from the estate of an aunt, Mrs. Hall went on a year's trip to Europe, from which she returned last April.

The Hall home in Nichols Avenue, New Brunswick, is in the hands of a caretaker awaiting sale, its only visitor being Willie Stevens, Mrs. Hall's brother, who stops there when in town.

Charlotte Mills sixteen at the time her mother was slain, became of age about three weeks ago and promptly moved away. She is now living with an aunt in Newark, where she is employed as a clerk.

There is one quarter, however, from which a steady breeze is blowing to keep alive the embers of the Hall-Mills case. The Ku Klux Klan, in using as a recruiting argument the allegation that anti-Klan interests were behind the failure to solve the crime.

Prospective members in Northern New Jersey are told an exhaustive inquiry into the case by the Klan disclosed the real secret why the murder or murderers never were brought to justice. The tale, it is said, hints of corruption fostered by opponents of the Klan.

At least one of the surviving principals confesses to a somewhat similar opinion. That is Mills.

"Well, it is two years now," he said, "and nothing has been done. I am just as ignorant of the 'inside' of the affair as any one. I am convinced of one thing, however. A lot of money was spent to hush it up."

Last of Family To Lead Life of Idleness

A Charlevoix, Mich., dispatch says. The last of the Lucias to live a life of ease and idleness will be Richard slayer of Robert Franks. Parents of the young murderer have determined that never again will the family include a member of the idle rich and they have carried this determination to the point of placing their son, Thomas, twelve, at real work on their 1,500-acre farm near this city. His older brother, Ernest Loeb, has been given the managerhip of the farm, and spends his entire day directing the work on it.

Too much idle time, the parents believe, put Richard behind the bars of Joliet state prison, and the schedule of work laid out for Thomas is as harsh as that enforced upon the son of the poorest farmer.

Thomas, under the new plan must rise at dawn, and report at the model dairy where before breakfast he must carry milk from the stables to the churnery, and do whatever other task the superintendent may assign.

This work done he goes to breakfast and then reports to the farm where he works with the other hands digging potatoes, husking corn, pitching hay or doing whatever may be required.

Clarence Darrow, chief of the defense counsel, who is retiring from active legal practice, arrived at the Loeb home here today with Allen Loeb, the oldest son. It is understood he will remain here for some time.

Wants Pay For Caring For Sprenging Man

Mrs. Jeanette Beck has begun a suit in Mecklenburg superior court against the estate of Benjamin Ward Heath, claiming $10,000 for services rendered Mr. Heath over a period of three years prior to his death last March.

Defendants in the action are Henry B. Heath, Gilbert B. Heath and William J. Heath, executors of the will with whom the plaintiff filed a claim for her alleged services.

Mrs. Beck contends that Mr. Heath agreed to pay her and provide for her in his will if she would look after him while he was on drinking spree and would drive his automobile for him. These duties she faithfully performed, but received no recompense, she complains. Mrs. Beck lived with her husband at the same hotel where Mr. Heath resided, the complaint states.
