JAP EXCLUSION HANDICAPS MISSIONARIES

Church Council Says Allons Insist Its Contrary to Gospel. Problem Gets Attention.

Atlanta, Dec. 1.—Opinions of Japanese leaders on the recent exclusion act of Congress will be given delegates attending the quadrennial meeting of the Federal Council of Churches, which convenes here Wednesday, it was announced tonight.

Dr. A. K. Reichsauer, official representative of the National Christian Council of Japan to the meeting, will outline these opinions, federal council officials said. The organizations which he represents consists of both missions and native Christian churches of all denominations in Japan.

"The way in which Congress recently acted regarding Japanese exclusion has made the work of the Christian missionary in that country more difficult, according to Dr. Reichsauer" the Federal Council announcement states "because the Japanese feel the discriminations practiced against them by the United States are not in accordance with the gospel which the missionary preaches."

Notables to Attend. The meeting of the Federal Council will last six days and many prominent speakers will appear before approximately 500 delegates here from many parts of the United States and the world. Governor Sweet, of Colorado; William Jennings Bryan; R. Willoughby Dickenson, of London, and Dr. Robert E. Speer, New York, president of the council are among those on the program.

"American churches have gained great influence throughout the world during the past four years," Dr. Charles S. MacFarlane, New York, said today in discussing plans for the fourth quadrennial meeting. As a result of the work of American churches, federated bodies have been formed all over the world, he said. These now exist in Great Britain, Ireland, Switzerland, France, Germany, Belgium, Spain, Australia, Japan and China, while another is being formed in Czechoslovakia.

Effect World Pact. "No work of the federal council has been more significant or made greater advance during the past quadrennium than its international influence," he continued.

"This has taken two forms—first, that for service through the relief of needy churches in other lands; and second, the development of national church federations. This coming quadrennium will, in my judgment, undoubtedly witness some kind of simple but effective and serviceable world organization of these forces."

Many of the delegates expected to attend the meeting were arriving in the city today. "What the churches can do to get rid of war, to secure international justice and peace, to develop brotherhood in industry, to promote fraternity among the races of the world, to win the final victory over liquor traffic"—these and other subjects will be discussed during the meeting, according to officials.

AUSTIN CARTER GETS CLEMENCY

Man Who Slaw Wife Not to Die in Electric Chair

Raleigh, Dec. 1.—Austin Carter, 35, with gray hair and wrinkled brow and face described as kindly, went from the hopelessness of "death row" into the sunshine of the prison yard today through the consideration of a judge and the mercy of a governor.

All morning Carter spent in the darkened cell on the row that leads to the chair, hope gone and expecting to make his march tomorrow. His appeal for executive clemency had been turned down on Saturday; 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning had been set as the hour for his execution. He had murdered his wife, a jury of 12 men had decreed the maximum punishment and a judge had passed sentence.

One thing concerned him. "Where is my brother?" he appealed to visitors in his cell. Telegrams had been dispatched to several cities seeking his brother and asking him to come and spend the last hours in the cell with Austin. But they brought no response. That was this morning.

Brother Sees Governor. Before the afternoon got well underway, the brother came though Austin Carter did not know. He and former State Senator Howell Glidewell, of Reidsville, came to the governor's office with two important documents. The governor read them and dictated a short order that meant life to Austin Carter.

One of the documents was a letter from Judge T. D. Bryson, who had sentenced Carter. It expressed doubt as to the prisoner's mental responsibility and recommended the commutation of sentence to life imprisonment.

The other was a petition urging a clemency and signed by 11 of the 12 jurors, who last May had decreed the maximum punishment. The twelfth did not sign. He could not be found.

Austin Carter had left "death row" and was changing to the clothes of a prisoner who is to live, when his brother came. There was the embrace, tears and the display of affection between brothers. Austin Carter's brother, who is Captain J. D. Carter, a Southern railway conductor, would not have to keep the last watch with Austin. Life was before him. And the two manifested great happiness. Then the explanation came.

Judge Determines Issue. While Austin Carter sought his brother, J. D. Carter, with Attorney Glidewell had been speeding toward Raleigh with the letters that meant life. They had spent Sunday trying to locate Judge Bryson and make the appeal for the recommendation, for the governor had declined to interfere unless the judge was willing to recommend it.

Sunday night they found him in Greensboro. Judge Bryson had been giving Austin's case deep thought and, doubting his mental responsibility, he had decided to ask the governor to commute his sentence.

Austin Carter killed his wife and shot his brother-in-law and sister-in-law at Reidsville last December. He was tried last May in Rockingham county and sentenced to death. There was evidence to indicate that he thought his wife had been untrue to him, but it was not sustained.

At the trial Dr. Anderson, superintendent of the state asylum at Raleigh, declared him mentally irresponsible. The judge did not accept the statement of the time, but the later petition to the governor and the recommendation of the judge evidenced the growing doubt as to Carter's mental condition.

Carter had been a traveling man selling insurance, and had lived well during his life until the day when, as he described his condition to newspaper inquiries, his "reason snapped" and his wife paid. The brother-in-law, whom Carter is alleged to have suspected of influencing his wife, and his sister-in-law recovered from wounds inflicted by his gun.

MRS. YOUNG ENTHUSIASTIC

Cannot Praise Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound Enough. Sick Women Read This Letter

Charleston, S. C.—"I was completely run-down and not able to do my housework. I just dragged myself around and did not have energy enough to get up when I sat down. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound in your books and learned about it. I got benefit from the very first bottle. I continued to take it for some time, and now I am doing all my own work, even washing and ironing, and never felt better in my life. I tell all my friends that the change in my health is due to but one thing and that is Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound. I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. ANNA YOUNG, 16 Amberst St., Charleston, S. C. The reason for such a letter from Mrs. Young is apparent. She got well and is grateful. Recently a nation-wide canvass of women purchasers of Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound was made, and 98 out of 100 reported that they received benefit from taking it. Just because the Vegetable Compound has been helping other women is a good reason why it should help you. For sale by druggists everywhere.

For All the Family. WE have used Black-Draught ever since we had a family and that was shortly after 1874," says Mr. E. A. Branstetter, of St. James, Mo. "It is my first remedy when any of us gets sick. . . . We use Black-Draught for torpid liver and stomach complaints. "When I get sluggish and don't feel so good, I take Black-Draught—and you have to show me that there is a better medicine in Missouri. I think it is fine for indigestion or for headache. It is a splendid family remedy. My wife uses it for any stomach ailment, indigestion and biliousness. We never let the house be without it if I know it. We also give it to the children for children's complaints, colds or fever." Keep a package of Black-Draught in the house for all the family. Your dealer will sell you a month's package, containing six of the regular-size packages. It's cheap.
