MAKING THE HOME BEAUTIFUL

We never will forget the little lecture a man delivered around a camp fire in this city some years ago on the subject of tobacco. The old fellow had positive ideas about a man who will befool his breath with a weed that not only but a filthy worm will eat. The outstanding idea that he had was that no woman should be compelled to live with a man who had the foul breath of a tobacco user carries.

But really there is no connection between this lecture about the camp fire and the subject we have in mind, which is that of beautifying the home.

A dozen years ago but few people had made any effort at beautifying the home about here. The yard grass and some shade trees seemed to satisfy the most careful people. Now there has swept over the country a spirit of the beautiful, if that is what it is, and most people of ambition are making efforts to beautify their homes. To one who has studied the subject and cultivated a sense for the beautiful, it is a sad sight to see a home on a beautiful, natural location with nothing about it to make the grounds look like a home. Hundreds of such houses are all about here with not even the shade tree.

Here in our own town there is a wave of sentiment strongly in favor of more beautiful homes. It is in the minds of the folk to plant out things. One sees it on every hand. And it is as catching as the mumps. Let one woman begin to beautify her home and her neighbor gets busy at once and tries to do likewise. That is human nature. We are prone to fall in line and do like those about us even to imitating the bad.

A drive about the country districts will convince any one with eyes to see that this disposition to beautify the home needs to get a new life in the country. Many really pretty homes about the country are woefully lacking in shade and lawn and such bushes as are often seen about a well kept home.

A woman has a just cause for complaint against any man who fails to make her as beautiful a home as he can afford to make. It requires no money to plant out a few rose bushes and cultivate them. It requires no money to find a few blooming shrub bushes and locate them about the home where they will add a touch of the beautiful to the surroundings. Women are much more inclined to appreciate these things than men, and women have to remain about the home all the time. They have a right to a beautiful place if it can be provided for them.

Now is the time of the year to touch up the home and make it a place of pride as well as comfort. Make it a place that the good wife will take pleasure in calling her home.

Nursery Plant Sale At Whitman's Next Tuesday

Ladies will be prepared to take orders next Tuesday at Whitman's Music store for all kinds of nursery stock including fruit and shade trees, shrubs, evergreens, hedge plants, flowers and any other nursery stock you may want.

The finance committee and the permanent planting committee of the Woman's Club have secured a nursery agency and for the day are willing to sacrifice much of their commission in order to increase interest in beautifying Mount Airy and community.

The rose colored crape myrtle is being offered at cost; while they last ever blooming hydrangeas, altheas and a few other plants on which a nursery is over stocked will be sold for less than wholesale cost.

If you need anything in nursery stock buy now while choice plants can be secured.

Specimen plants and pictures will be on display so you can see what you are getting.

Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson Coming

A real treat is in store for Mount Airy woman's club members Friday afternoon when Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson, of Raleigh, will address the club.

Mrs. Johnson is not only a leading member of the State Federation of Women's Clubs but is Commissioner of Public Welfare for the State of North Carolina and is authority on the subject which she will present to the club.

DISAGREEING TO THE CHILDREN'S HURT

It has long been a fixed and settled policy of this state to furnish free education for all the people up to a certain point. It has also been the policy of the state to require each community to provide its own school building. Working along these lines the people have built up a great educational system that now provides educational opportunities for every boy and girl within the boundaries of a great territory that comprises the whole state.

Not so many years ago the people for lack of means, and more for lack of interest, were satisfied to get along with the crudest kind of cheap buildings, unfit of them, to be exact, were log cabins built in the style of the back-woods home of pioneer days. But the time has arrived when the people are no longer willing to put up with such unsatisfactory buildings and the spirit for better buildings has swept the state to that degree that a fund has now been provided with which any district can build, provided it wants to. This state fund is loaned to a district on the most liberal terms, for twenty years to be paid back in twenty equal payments at an interest charge of only 4 1/2 per cent. But before a district can secure this loan from the state it must hold an election and decide to secure the loan and levy the tax with which to repay it.

There is now available of this state fund enough for this county to erect several school buildings.

It is interesting to note that in several instances where an effort has been put on foot to erect a new building the issue was defeated for the reason that the location of the new building became an issue on which the people could not agree. There never has been a time when all the people could see things alike, let the issue be what it may.

It seems that we are so constituted by nature that about half of us will line up on one side and the other half oppose. This disposition to oppose each other all along life's way blocks the wheels of progress on many a hill that humanity must climb. And it does seem that the wheels so often become blocked at a time when so much is at stake.

Think of a community made up of intelligent and liberty loving people, every one of whom are interested in good schools and the highest welfare of their children and their neighbor's children, and yet these good people allow a difference to arise among themselves to a degree that they are not able to arrive at a decision that must be reached before a better school can be had. Four times in this county has this been the case within the past few months, and today there are some communities where a new and creditable building would be erected at once only for the fact that it is known that no agreement can be reached as to where the building shall be located.

If it will do any good to call attention to all this and thus let folks see themselves as others see them then our purpose in writing this article will be accomplished.

GOOD HOME BURNED

R. W. George, Agent Citizens of States, Lease Home By Fire the Third Time

The new 12-room residence of R. W. George, of Francisco, was destroyed by fire last Friday about noon, the entire building and its contents being a total loss. The smoke house with a large amount of provisions and the chicken house were also burned. The home was practically a new one, was equipped with a modern plant for water and lights, had two bath rooms, every room was completely furnished with new furniture and the home was one of the best in the county. The loss is estimated at $20,000 with $5,000 insurance.

The fire originated from a spark on the roof. No one but Mr. and Mrs. George were present at the time and their efforts to prevent the loss were fruitless. Mr. George is 78 years of age, while his wife is a year younger.

This is the third time the home of Mr. George has burned and he has always rebuilt at the same place. He is already planning to rebuild, being undaunted by the loss.

Special School Elections Fail

At Dobson last Monday the County Board of Education called off the election at Ararat that would provide for a new 12-room school building. Since the calling of the election a dispute had arisen among the patrons of the school over its location and feeling had reached the point where it was realized it would be fruitless to hold the election when the people were so divided on the location of the building.

The election for a new building in Bryan township recently held was defeated by 32 votes. It was planned to build a large consolidated building near Mountain Park which would care for five schools in that section, but here also differences arose over the exact location of the school and the measure was defeated.

Woman Gets Shot in Hand

One day last week Mrs. Geo. Parker who lives near the quarry, suffered a painful injury when a load of shot accidentally discharged from a shot gun passed through the palm of her hand. It seems her small son wanted the gun to go hunting and when she declined to grant his wishes he endeavored to get it any way. The gun was standing behind a trunk and when Mrs. Parker lifted it from the floor to hide it from the boy the trigger caught on the trunk allowing the hammer to discharge the load into Mrs. Parker's hand.
