GASTON FARMER REFUSED TO PRAY

Didn't See Any Use To Help Out the Cotton Mills When No One Did Anything To Help the Farmers (R. E. Clark in Greensboro News.)

The Gaston county farmer who declined to join in a prayer meeting for rain in Gastonia, on the ground that while the farmers had suffered for rain all summer the town folks were not moved to pray for showers until the cotton mills had to shut down for lack of power, may have been a trifle over-sensitive, his criticism may not have been in the best of taste. But at that he called attention to an outstanding human weakness that has manifested itself to the propriety of petitions for rain. There is some difference of opinion, even among the preachers, as to the propriety of petitions for rain especially the manner of presentation and the pressing of the case only after the point of desperation is near reached. This discussion has nothing to do with that phase of the case.

But it is an outstanding fact that the urge for rain prayer meetings did not take hold in urban settlements generally until the shortage of water began to pinch. Cars couldn't be washed, at some points the use of water for domestic purposes was curtailed, and then industries were shut down for a couple of days for the lack of electric power.

All summer, as the Gaston farmer said, crops had suffered for rain, parched under a burning sun. If the prayers of the righteous avail to break a drought then the prayers for rain should have begun 2 months ago or more if crops were to be benefited. But it was not until after the crops were past saving that the urge for rain moved to prayer in urban communities and in response to the clamor governors were proclaiming days for special petitions for rain. So far as farmers herabouts are concerned, it is of no consequence to them, so far as this year's crops can be affected, if no rain fall until Christmas.

Of course there was no conspiracy against the farmer in this respect. Town folk who gave it a thought were concerned about the crops, for of course town folk who give thought to these matters know that crop failures affect the towns as well as the farmers. Furthermore the farmers could pray for rain in their own behalf; they didn't need to wait on the town folks and probably did not. But it is a conspicuous and glaring fact that there was no urge to present united petitions to Jehovah that the drought be broken until the urban settlers demand that the power of the state be invoked to call the people to prayer. If the drought had continued a month longer there might have been a demand that the state compel folks to attend on occasions for public prayer. By that time the alarm would have created a feeling that would have urged drastic measures. Thus it was that the Gastonia citizen was calling on the Gaston farmer, whose crops were already lost, to assist in their prayers so the town's business could go on. Certainly the town folks don't feel that way about it. But we are so constituted that we can't really get interested in a matter until we are personally affected. We sympathize with the other fellow—we really wish something could be done for him. But so long as our own affairs go well we can't feel his troubles as he feels them. But when it comes our turn, why that is different. The militia must be called out or what.

NOTICE

Under and by virtue of an order of the Superior Court of Surry County, made in the special proceedings entitled Mollie Brower Meeks, Administratrix of J. W. and R. D. Harris, dec'd vs. Mrs. O. R. Moore and husband O. R. Moore, Glenn Belton, E. S. Belton, Mrs. Robert Johnson and husband Robert Johnson, and Mrs. R. C. Griffith and husband R. C. Griffith.

The same having been sold on the 5th day of Sept. 1925, the selling price being ($3,225.00) and an upset bid having been made in said course as provided by law, the undersigned commissioner will, on

on the premises in Mount Airy Township, N. C., offer the property for sale again, to the highest bidder, the bid beginning at ($3,386.25) on the following terms to-wit 1-3 cash, 1-3 in twelve months and 1-3 in two years, that certain tract of land lying and being in Mount Airy township, Surry County, N. C., and more particularly described to-wit:

Beginning on the North edge of Taylor Avenue in the town of Mount Airy and on South west corner of a lot sold Satterfield and Parker by this company and runs with edge of Taylor Avenue S. 71 deg. W. 66 ft. to a stake; thence with edge of a new street curving out 15 ft. to a stake set on edge of said new street at N. 64 3-4 deg. West 125 feet straight line; thence with edge of new street N. 29 1-2 E. 100 ft. to Iron Pin; thence W. 51 1-2 deg. East 246 feet to Satterfield and Parker's line; thence with said line S. 8 3-4 deg. East 264 feet to beginning.

This the 21 day of September, 1925. H. O. Woltz, Comr.

over it is that is needed; even a special session of the legislature if that will break a drought. Come down to the root of the matter, it would be almost a joke but for the reverence with which any sincere appeal to Jehovah should be treated, when we think that we didn't get enough concerned to demand a universal praying for rain until after the crops were past saving.

It was too much to expect the Gaston farmer, after his crops were ruined, without a word of prayer from the city dweller in his behalf probably, that he should journey to town to assist in praying the cotton mills back to business. The town folks just didn't realize the seriousness of it so long as it was only a matter of the destruction of the crops. But when they were about to be put out of business, why everybody should stop and pray for them. Probably the farmer should have overlooked the selfishness, as it was not really premeditated; in which event Daily News readers might have been saved these remarks. But that was a little too much to expect of ordinary human nature; and in giving voice to his feeling the Gaston farmer laid bare a human weakness that should make us all ashamed. But it probably will not. Most of us are so steeped in selfishness and narrowness that we will see the narrowness only in the Gaston farmer.

S. C. Teacher Training

Pilt Mountain Poute 2, Sept 21.—Rev. John D. Smith, Miss Bettie Cook and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Taylor and Miss J. D. Johnson finished one unit of teacher training for Sunday school work last week under Miss Kate Duhose. The work was done at Pine Ridge church.

H. E. Taylor principal of East Mount Airy graded school reports a fine opening of the school. The school opened Sept. 14 with twenty-five per cent more pupils than it opened with last year, he says.

The farmers on this route are about three-fourths done pulling and curing tobacco. The recent rains held them up in pulling.

ADS AT LAST HIT EIFFEL TOWER

Creator in Lifetime Opposed Such Course Until Cathedral Also Adopted It

Paris, Sept. 19.—When Gustav Eiffel, engineer and creator of the Eiffel Tower, was asked to allow the tower to be used for commercial purposes he replied: "I agree, provided the towers of Notre Dame Cathedral are first so used."

Eiffel died before seeing the nineteenth century creation which he ranked with Gothic masterpieces, used to advertise an automobile. Engineer Fernand Jocopazzi first proposed the illumination of the tower as part of the Decorative Arts Exhibition, but the Exhibition Company took fright at the cost. A further suggestion by Jocopazzi that the tower be covered with advertising aroused the indignation, first of the Exhibition Committee; second, of the Eiffel Tower Company, and third, of the Paris Municipal authorities, who exercise aesthetic control over Eiffel's masterpiece.

Eventually, however, Jocopazzi succeeded in persuading all three that art and advertising were not necessarily irreconcilable. The result has been what the illustrated weekly illustration describes as "a luminous poem."

At first the tower-at-night is outlined in white lights. Then a rain of small stars from its summit. The signs of the zodiac follow and an immense red flame lights up the highest point and the dates 1889, when the tower was completed, and 1925 appear in fire below. This is followed by enormous white stars of 600 candlepower, apparently suspended between heaven and earth. These suddenly become comets by the addition of gold-colored tails.
