

STATE PRISONERS USED ON ROAD CONSTRUCTION

Raleigh, June 11.—Faced in a single month with an increase of 51 new prisoners and 88 returned by a quarry contractor because of a shut-down, the state prison board, meeting here today, turned its attention to placing the surplus prisoners at gainful occupation.

The situation took on an optimistic tinge with the announcement by Chairman Laroque that 20 convicts had been assigned to highway construction in the second district under District Engineer Snowden and that their work was of such quality that Highway Commissioner Claude Wheatley had called for 20 more.

Superintendent George Ross Poul said an additional 106 had been placed with quarry operators but that the surplus continued at an alarming level.

OFFERS EXPERT HELP IN PELLAGRA FIGHT

Raleigh, June 17.—Since pellagra is controlled by food habits, the continued spread of the disease in North Carolina may be checked by more attention to better nutrition.

"To aid the medical authorities and those suffering with this disease, we offer the aid of our expert group of home demonstration workers," says Mrs. Jane S. McKimmon, state home agent at State College. "We find that pellagra is increasing at an alarming rate. In 1928, the records of our State Board of Health show that 847 persons died from this cause and this does not take into account the large number of others suffering from the disease in all of its stages. The number of deaths in 1928 was an increase of 23 percent over 1927 and if proper diet is the main factor in wiping out this scourge, we shall be glad to assist both doctors and sufferers in any way that we can."

Mrs. McKimmon says that Miss Mary Thomas, nutrition specialist in the home demonstration department has prepared a diet sheet based on the recommendations of Dr. Joseph Goldberger, who is an authority on the disease. When the diet is improved by the addition of fresh lean meat, eggs, eggs and milk, the disease is controlled. Mrs. McKimmon says that her home agents will aid any family in selecting such parts of a pellagra-preventing diet as might be produced on the farm. The agents will also aid in making plans for the garden, the family cow and poultry flock so that the health of the children, the mother and father may be insured for the future.

Pellagra may occur anywhere and in anyone but it is the poor man who is the chief sufferer. This explains why hard times, especially when accompanied by rising food prices, are likely to be accompanied by an increase in the disease. Starches, fats and sweets, at these times, furnish a large part of the poor man's diet, because they are the less costly foods, says Mrs. McKimmon.

PROGRESS MADE IN UNIONIZING MILLS

Raleigh, June 16.—The Union Herald, labor publication printed here as a "champion of the principles of the American Federation of Labor," in two articles signed by Alfred Hoffman, Southern representative of the United Textile Workers, announces this week that there have been 89 local textile unions organized in North Carolina, South Carolina and East Tennessee since March 1st.

The articles by the union organizer, pleading for the co-operation of the textile workers on the "mountain Piedmont sections" gave the names of Hoffman, John Peel, president of the Piedmont council; Gooch of Georgia; President Aymon of the Tennessee State Federation; Vice-President Kelsey of the United Textile Workers; Nellie Andrews, of Louisville, Ky., and Mathilda Lindsey, of Richmond, Va., as leaders in the work in the various fields being organized. Dowell Patterson, president of the South Carolina State Federation, and G. C. Courtney, of the typographical union, are also named.

At East Marion

The articles do not list the mills where the locals have been organized but mention is made that at East Marion, N. C., local No. 1659 was organized May 1 as the 29th local placed after the organizing at Elizabethton March 1.

Marion and Charlotte are given as the basis points of the drive in North Carolina; Spartanburg, Greenville and Union are the principal centers named in South Carolina, and in East Tennessee a drive is going south and north through through Knoxville and Chattanooga, the article says.

FRIENDS BACK KANIPE FOR ENFORCEMENT POST

Asheville Citizen.

J. Ed. Kanipe, of Asheville, Federal prohibition agent, is being advocated by his many friends throughout the Western North Carolina district for the position of deputy administrator of the Prohibition service to succeed the late Ben C. Sharpe.

Brownlow Jackson, state chairman of the Republican Executive Committee, has stated that he personally is in favor of Mr. Kanipe for the post. Congressman George M. Pritchard of the 10th North Carolina district, has endorsed the Asheville man.

His friends feel that Mr. Kanipe has a good chance to obtain the appointment. His chief opponent for the position is said to be Evan L. Houser, of Dallas, N. C., an agent of many years' experience in prohibition enforcement under the late Mr. Sharpe. The appointment is to be made by R. Q. Merrick, of Richmond, Va., administrators of the Carolinas and Virginia.

Mr. Kanipe is at present in the prohibition service, having had about six years experience in the work and with the tax department of the Federal government.

He is the son of the late Dan Kanipe, of Marion, N. C.
