IN another column we print a statement from Supt. Otto Katzenstein relating to sales of plants, etc., at the Pinehurst nurseries. Mr. Katzenstein is known as a horticulturist of the first class. He was born in Germany and educated there, and for some time held a responsible position in the Imperial gardens in Berlin. After coming to this country he was employed by Olmsted, Olmsted & Eliot, of Boston, and came to Pinehurst on their recommendation. We take pleasure in saying that any orders given him will be intelligently and faithfully filled.

THE second anniversary of the death of Rev. Samuel Francis Smith, D. D., the 15th instant, and the presence in our midst, for the winter of General H. B. Carrington, of Hyde Park, Mass., the intimate friend of Rev. Dr. Smith, and the editor of his "Poems of Home and Country," give special fitness to producing the facsimile of the original draft of "America," which we print on our first page.

The earliest discovery of iron in this country was in Western North Carolina, and the first manufacture of it was made in Virginia in 1619. The foundry was destroyed by the Indians in 1622.—Popular Science News.

NEW ENGLAND ENTERPRISE.

A Former Somerville Man's Business Undertaking in North Carolina.

James W. Tufts, of Medford, who was formerly a resident of Somerville, has spent a great deal of money in the past few years in establishing a village, with all the progressive ideas of a live New England community, in the pine region of North Carolina. "Pinehurst," as Mr. Tufts has named the village, all of which he owns, comprises a large modern hotel, with every conceivable convenience; a "Casino," or boarding-house, equally comfortable, but less fashionable, perhaps; about forty cottages, fitted with electric lights, running water, and other modern conveniences; a new village hall for entertainments and church services, stores, and a post-office; a schoolhouse with an up-to-date northern teacher, a circulating library, an extensive nursery filled with a great variety of trees, shrubs, plants, flowers, and fruits, 50,000 of the trees and shrubs having been brought from abroad; a complete system of water works, a sewerage system, a power station furnishing besides electric lights the motive power for a private line of electric cars running for six miles from the railway station at Southern Pines to Pinehurst,—the whole village having been beautifully laid out and adorned by Olmsted, Olmsted & Eliot. Altogether Mr. Tufts bought 5,000 acres of land for the purposes of his village, which has already grown so that it occupies 100 acres of it. No land or houses have been, or will be, sold, the place being designed to afford rest and recuperation for those who need the benefits of a Southern climate, at prices which, while they are high enough to cover necessary expenses, are still so low as to make the enterprise one of practical philanthropy.

The latest addition at Pinehurst is a bright weekly newspaper, THE PINEHURST OUTLOOK, published by F. T. Spinney, formerly postmaster of Medford, and ably edited by Arthur H. Spinney, recently of Portsmouth, N. H. It is an attractive, small quarto, printed with new type on fine paper, and illustrated with half-tone pictures, showing the attractions of Pinehurst and vicinity. In a word, the paper and the place match each other perfectly, and in both New Englanders should take more than ordinary interest.—Somerville (Mass.) Journal.

Anecdote of Rev. B. A. Goodridge.

The following anecdote is related of the Rev. B. A. Goodridge, who formerly edited the Pine Knot at Southern Pines. Like many children in Puritan New England, his mother had taught him to dutifully say, when asked whom he loved best, "God first, and mama next." One of his greatest likes at the table was tomatoes. While enjoying them one day, when about two and one-half years old, he suddenly exclaimed: "Mama, I love 'matoes best I do Dod." We have good reason to believe his taste has since undergone a change.

"Gentlemen," wrote the editor of the Boonville Terror, "the Klondike fever has hit this community hard. Please send me at once, by express, four pounds of cap Ks and the same amount of lower-case ks. Can't get this paper out till they come."—Chicago Tribune.

Dr. Benbow's Opinion of Pinehurst.

EDITOR PINEHURST OUTLOOK:

DEAR SIR,—I take pleasure in referring to my late visit to Pinehurst—one of the most complete ideal winter resorts anywhere to be found. The soil and subsoil furnish dry walks even when rain is falling; the more it rains the firmer the ground. Then to nature all the comforts are so lavishly supplied one could hardly suggest additions.

I desire especially to express my gratification in visiting the farm and dairy, for no department is more essential. With plenty of milk all things good and pleasing can be placed upon the table; without it nothing can be properly prepared except bacon and greens. The cows look well and are fed on the best, consisting of corn ensilage, wheat bran, cotton seed meal and dry pea vines. No better food for cattle can be found anywhere, and your beautiful, broad acres have produced an abundance, all of which has been properly cared for. I congratulate you not only for the ideas but for the careful management. Your land is especially suited to the growth of corn for ensilage, pea vines for hay and rye for green feed, and under the system I found there I am sure each year will show increased crops, and, of course, milk products.

Only prudent use of a large outlay of money could show such strides in so short a time. May the good work on, for nothing is so educating as object lessons, success and profit.
