WOMEN'S WAYS.

A girl never tries to extinguish the spark as long as a man has money to burn.—Chicago News.

A woman enjoys herself best when she is making something out of old bread crust.—Washington Democrat.

We have noticed that for some reason it is never demanded that a girl who wears a cheap dress and an old style hat should be accompanied by a chaperon.—Atchison Globe.

Nine women out of ten carry their purses in their hands when they go shopping and leave them at home when they go out to buy something.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Whether or not women are fitted to discuss questions of the day, the married ones with husbands who keep late hours know something about questions of the night.—Philadelphia Times.

JEWELRY CONCEITS.

Combinations of colored stones are a leading feature in jewelry.

Gems set in platinum form jewel produced to appeal to class trade.

Diamond brooches wrought in Persian patterns are new and effective.

The fashion is increasing in finger rings with cabochon stones in close settings.

A dove and olive branch afford an effective design for a brooch made of diamonds and olivines.

Fashionable among finger rings are the French hoop, the princess and two stone rings with overlapping ends.

LULLABY.

A dear little head of golden hair
Pillowed against my breast,
A dear little smile on her face so fair—
My darling, sweetly rest!

Two dear little eyes of bonny blue,
With their lids to my lips close pressed,
A dear little heart that beats so true—
My darling, sweetly rest!

A dear little face has my little boy,
A dear little form to caress,
A dear little life that gives me joy—
Sleep, darling, and take your rest!

Evolution of the Educational Ideal.

Let us place ourselves apart from the tumult which rages on both sides, and, closing our ears, question ourselves whether a new educational ideal may be evolved from this strife of contending factions and what the general character of this ideal would be. If we assume that the three features which I have mentioned may be combined, we should have a popular, realistic, individualistic ideal of education—popular, not exclusive or aristocratic in the narrower sense of the word; national, not foreign or international, but rather the result of an evolution from the national life itself; realistic, characterized by strength and action and not by mere thought and æsthetic sentiment; individualistic—i. e., aiming at the development of the individual and not at the establishment of dull uniformity; not democratic, therefore, if this word imply a general reduction to a dead level, but rather aristocratic, in the sense of an individual, not a class, aristocracy.

It would be presumptuous at the present day to state what the concrete form of such an educational ideal would be. I wish to say, however, that the society corresponding to the above ideal would be that of an aristocracy of mind. Is this the type toward which we are tending? Is the aristocracy of birth and wealth to be supplanted by the aristocracy of personal worth and merit? This has been the philosopher's dream from the day of Plato's "Republic" to the present hour. It is the tendency of nature. It would be the aristocracy of nature to have every individual stand independently upon his own personal merit and not upon the achievements of his father.—Professor Paulsen in Forum.

Endure Hardship.

As a gladiator trained the body, so must we train the mind to self sacrifice, "to endure all things," to meet and overcome difficulty and danger. We must take the rough and thorny roads as well as the smooth and pleasant, and a portion at least of our daily duty must be hard and disagreeable, for the mind cannot be kept strong and healthy in perpetual sunshine only, and the most dangerous of all states is that of constantly recurring pleasure, ease and prosperity. Most persons will find difficulties and hardships enough without seeking them. Let them not repine, but take them as a part of that educational discipline necessary to fit the mind to arrive at its highest good.—New York Ledger.

Earnest Fights.

"You men are too cold blooded and mercenary," said a young woman with a mission, according to the Indianapolis Journal. "You cannot make an earnest fight for principle as women do." "Ah," replied the man with a gift for epigram, "then I am to infer that it is principle that makes you scrap so earnestly at the bargain counter."

GAMES FOR HALLOWEEN.

Fireside Diversions In Keeping With the Traditions of All Saints' Day.

Any innocent joke, perpetrated in a spirit of friendly mischief, will befit Halloween night. The idea of the olden time centered around the pairing of lad and lass, hence the chestnuts were put before the fire to test the future of those whose names they bore. If they burned steadily, the courtship would go well; if they popped apart, the course of true love would not run smooth. Handglasses, with apples beside them, should be placed here and there, so that the modern Eve may eat her apple and wait for Adam to peep over her shoulder.

Greater pleasure, however, will be found in the games which all may play. The tub of water, with floating apples which must be lifted out by the teeth alone, and the fork suspended from the ceiling, with its lighted candle at one end and the apple, from which a bite is to be taken at the other, will cause much merriment. The search for the ring in flour is also much enjoyed. The flour containing a ring is packed upon a large platter. The guests each cut off a slice with a knife, and the one uncovering the ring must pick it up with his teeth.

Lead, melted in large iron spoons, may be dropped in water and fortunes told from the shapes which it assumes. Great amusement may be had by placing two hickory nuts about three inches apart on the hearth in front of an open fire. One is supposed to represent the girl who places it there and the other her as yet undeclared but mentally chosen lover. Should the nuts burn brightly, a happy marriage will result. Should the nut named after the man jump toward the nut named after the girl, she may expect a proposal before the next new moon.—October Ladies' Home Journal.

BEE BUZZES.

Lack of ventilation often causes dampness in the hive.

To winter safely bees should have 30 pounds of good stores.

Granulation in honey is a proof of its purity and superiority.

If bees are to be moved, it should be done before cold weather.

It is seldom profitable to go into winter quarters with weak colonies.

Only pure, clean, unbleached wax should be used in making foundations.

Comb honey during the fall and winter should be kept in a warm room.

Try a broken butcher knife with a blade 2 inches long for prying up supers.

Bees never bore for nectar, but seek only of that which is fully exposed.

Grade all honey carefully and then set prices to correspond with the grade.

If colonies are in proper condition in every respect, robbing seldom occurs.
