NEWS IN BRIEF.

A new stock of dry goods has just been received at the Department Store.

Mr. Leonard Tufts and W. T. Jenney, of Boston, who are guests of Landlord Kimball, at the Berkshire, were out hunting one day this week and secured a large bag of quail.

A large line of canned goods constantly on hand the store.

The bowling alley, pool room and barber shop are open for the season under the charge of a competent man.

Mr. Carpenter returned from Richmond yesterday where he secured twenty fine horses to add to the already large stable.

Mr. G. A. Champlin, of Boston, Mass., who is in full charge of the post office this season, is rapidly getting accustomed to his new duties.

Mr. Ijams, chief clerk in the office of the General Passenger Agent of the Seaboard Air Line, was in town yesterday inspecting the numerous improvements made in Pinehurst the past year.

The many friends of Chief Steward N. C. Hopkins, of the Yarmouth line, who lost his life in the sinking of the Montecello, will unite with his family in mourning his loss. Many in Pinehurst remember him as the genial, courteous gentleman who made the Yarmouth one of the most popular boats sailing out of Boston.

Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Funderburg, after several months' absence from the city, have returned to the Hotel Schenley. Dr. Funderburg has entirely recovered from the injuries he received in the street-car accident something more than a year ago.—Pittsburg Life. Dr. and Mrs. Funderburg were guests at the Holly Inn, for a time both last season and the year before.

Mr. W. E. Chivers, the well known artist and decorator who has been doing much of the work on the Carolina, invited several of the boys to visit him at his room in the Terrace Monday evening. Mr. Chivers entertained them by drawing what he calls his five-minute pictures. These are really works of art which the boys appreciated very much as they were animal subjects, several of them in colors. Refreshments, always welcome to boys, were served, and Mr. Chivers presented the boys with the pictures he had drawn as mementoes of the occasion.

A reunion of the party which left Boston for Pinehurst, Oct. 29th, was held at the Cedars Monday evening. Mrs. Alice M. Stacey received the guests in the large parlors which were tastefully decorated with holly and evergreens. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. Milton Robinson, Miss Eugenie Webster, Miss Edith Eaton, Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Flint, Mr. E. B. Bary, Miss Carrie Huntington, Mr. E. L. Merrow, Miss Julia West, Mr. and Mrs. John Albee, Mr. Stevens and Mr. Richardson. A most enjoyable evening was passed. Games were played and light refreshments served. All present felt that these reunions should and would be continued at intervals during the winter.

A party composed of some of the officials of the Southern Railway and other well known railway men visited Pinehurst Friday. The gentlemen were driven around the town under the direction of Mr. C. D. Benbow. While their time was limited, yet they had time to inspect the new power house, enjoy a short ride on the electric road and visit the grand new hotel, the Carolina. This they, one and all, pronounced it to be the finest hotel in the State, and the equal of any in the South. A dinner, such as Landlord Kimball is so famous for getting up, was enjoyed at the Berkshire. Among the gentlemen were: Mr. F. S. Gannon, General Manager of the Southern; W. A. Turk, General Passenger Agent; Mr. O'Brien, Division Superintendent; J. M. Culp, Traffic Manager; H. A. Page, President of the Asheboro & Aberdeen Railway, and J. R. Page, Superintendent. The gentlemen were very much pleased at the many improvements made in Pinehurst during the past summer and predicted a most prosperous season.

Rev. Mr. Strickland, of Star, N. C., was in town Saturday. In conversation with THE OUTLOOK man, Mr. Strickland said: "I can hardly realize that this is the place I was in five years ago; then it was nothing but a sand-ridge, and no one around here could see any sign of a town, nothing but a depot. To-day you have a beautiful town and I am glad to have been able to see what a wonderful work one man can do. Mr. Tufts has done a work which places him amongst the great men of the South. Why, sir, if we could have more men like Mr. Tufts to come down here and show us how to work and build up our towns, with our favored climate and natural advantages, we would lead the world in a short time." What was said by Mr. Strickland is said by all who knew Pinehurst as it was and visit it to-day where we now have electric lights, electric railroad, good wide neat streets, well kept lawns surrounding substantial residences, modern hotels, and the best water in the State. No wonder the people are surprised and delighted to see the great change so wonderfully wrought in such a time.

The Magnolia.

The Magnolia opened its doors for guests this week. This hotel is centrally located, being only a step from the General Office, Department Store, Library and Post Office. It is a neat, pretty and homelike house built in such a manner that all the rooms receive plenty of good pure air and light. A wide veranda on three sides of the house affords ample room for the guest, where they may enjoy a sun bath or the cool evening air. From the large hall at the front opens to the left the office and writing room. In this room are good accommodations for gentlemen to look over and answer their correspondents. A door also opens from the office into the dining room which will seat twenty-five guests comfortably. The fire-place in the office has always attracted much favorable notice, with its neat Mosaic hearth and mantle in white and gold decorations. Opening to the right of the hall is a large double parlor, filled with choice designs in furniture and a fine toned piano. This room also contains a handsome fire-place with the mantle and trimmings in ebony and gold. A large electric chandelier depending from the centre of the ceiling, gives abundance of light. The kitchen in the rear is fitted with a large steam closet and other utensils for the proper preparation of food for the guests. The chambers on the next three floors are large, light and airy apartments, with steam heat and electric lights in each room. The rooms are comfortably, even richly furnished, the floors covered with rugs of neat design and the furniture is heavy antique oak. Bath and toilet rooms are on each floor so situated as to be handy to each chamber. Many of these rooms are en suite.

The manager, Mr. J. L. Pottle, is a hotel man of over thirty years experience. He has managed this house for the past two seasons very successfully, many of his guests returning each year to pass the winter with him. Mr. Pottle is one of those hotel men New England is so proud of whose reputation for hospitality is world wide. Having been in the business among the White Mountains of New Hampshire for many years, they have gained a knowledge of the wants of guests which few have had the opportunity of acquiring.

A select stock of ladies' and gent's fine shoes are now on sale at the Department Store.

A lady whose Christian name is Jane, and whose little daughter is named after her, engaged a housekeeper named Jane. To avoid confusion, the lady said to the new-comer, who was a tall, angular woman, with a rigid air and an uncompromising cast of countenance, "I think, Jane, it will be better for me to call you by your last name if you have no objection." "No'm: I have no objection," said the housekeeper, standing stiffly erect, valise in hand. "Call me 'Darling,' ma'am, if you prefer. That's my name."—Memphis Scimitar.

Your Druggist

Is always a convenience to you and often a necessity. Naturally, you wonder if you can get the same prompt, careful and satisfactory drug store service here that you have been used to at home.

It Is Our Business

To supply such service to just such an exacting demand as yours. We are obliged to carry a larger variety of drug store goods than can be found in many a large city store, because our customers come from every section and represent varied tastes. If we should not have in stock just what you want we shall be glad to order it for you, and we won't keep you waiting, either. We make use of telegraph and express service in every case where it is desirable. Come to see us or write us about your wants. Let us be your druggists.
