PUNGENCIES.

"Faith," said the Irish policeman, examining the broken window, "this is more sayrious thin Oi thought it was! It's broke on both soides!"—Exchange.

"William, I wish you would go and weed out the flower bed." William went and inspected it. Then he returned. "It would be a simpler job, Marie," he said, "to flower out the weed bed."—Chicago Tribune.

Willie: "How would you define a true sportsman?" Papa: "He is a man who believes in giving every kind of game creature a chance for its life, and then is disgusted if the poor creature escapes with it."—Life.

A lady was looking for her husband, and inquired anxiously of a housemaid: "Do you happen to know anything of your master's whereabouts?" "I'm not sure, mum," replied the careful domestic; "but I think they're in the wash."—Pathfinder.

A new boy had come to school fresh from the country, and the ready "sir" and "miss" of the city child were quite unknown to him. "What's your name?" queried the master. "George Hamilton." "Add 'sir' to that, boy." "Sir George Hamilton," came the unexpected reply.—Boston Courier.

"You are from the country, are you not, sir?" said a dandy young bookseller to a homely-dressed Quaker who had given him some trouble. "Yes." "Here's an essay on the rearing of calves." "That," said Aminabad, as he turned to leave the shop, "thee had better present to thy mother."—Exchange.

A lady just returned from Europe tells the following: "There were two haberdashers in London on a quiet street. One, to rival his fellow-tradesman, erected a sign with Latin, 'Mens Conscia Recti,'—'A mind Conscious of Right.' The other, not to be outdone, copied the the sign, adding, 'Men's and Women's Conscia Rectis.'"—Women's Tribune.

A digger in a Western Australian town consulted a doctor, and then went to get the prescription. "How much?" he asked the chemist. "Well, let me see. There's seven-and-sixpence for the medicine and a shilling for the bottle." He hesitated as if uncertain. "Oh, hurry up, boss," said the impatient miner. "Put a price on the cork, and let us know the worst."—Exchange.

William Gillette, the actor, hired an yacht one summer for a cruise on the Sound. One day his party drifted leisurely toward a point of land where set a solemn Yankee, fishing. In a few hours the boat passed the point, and the fisherman asked, "Where are ye from?" "New York," replied Gillette, with a yachtman's pride. "How long?" "Since August 1." After a pause a voice over the water asked, "What year?"—Exchange.

The Commission of Fish and Fisheries recently received a letter from a lady who wished to know if the distribution of fish was kept up. "If so," continued the letter, "I wish a large salmon sent me. I expect to give a handsome entertainment on the —th of this month, and wish to serve salmon at the dinner." She was informed that the fish distributed are only about one inch long; and she, no doubt, thinks the government a flat failure.—Exchange.
