and chirped, and fluttered, and scratched about the sleeping babes, and finally flew away and returned with huge armfuls of leaves (from The Pinehurst Outlook,) with which they covered the dead children.

A pleasing variation from the program was next in order, a song by Mrs. St. John Smith, of Portland, Me., "Happy Days" by Strelzski. Mrs. Smith possesses a trained voice of much quality and richness, and her number was warmly received, and heartily encored.

"Keep Your Eye on the Ball," was the next tableau which was arranged by Miss Stackpole, of Ridgeway, Pa., and the presentation was another faithful picture of one of Gibson's drawings. Miss Florence Durstine, of New York City, was the central figure, who caused the golfers (Mr. E. A. Freeman of Montclair, N. J.; Mr. Mather, Mr. Davis, Mr. Lockwood and Mr. Warren) to neglect the game and gaze admiringly.

At this point another innovation of the program was made, a duet for the mandolin and piano, "Cupid's Garden" by Miss Marjorie Stone, of Mohawk, N. Y., and Miss Hipple, of Union City, Pa. The number was well-rendered and liberally applauded.

"A Story Without Words," arranged by Miss Bertha D. Stone, of Mohawk, N. Y., another replica of one of Gibson's pictures, followed and was very effectively given. Dr. G. W. Murdock, of Cold Spring, N. Y., took the part of the father, and Mr. McNeir impersonated the young man who seeks the hand of the daughter, who is intently watching the scene from a portiere at the rear of the room.

"Wireless Telegraphy" arranged by Mrs. Arthur C. Ketcham of New York City, another Gibson picture, was next upon the program, and it made a very striking tableau. Mr. Arthur C. Ketcham, of New York City, was the young man, who reaches across the front of the table and gives the young lady opposite (Miss Priest) a "wireless message" by press of the foot, and Mrs. M. J. Tabraham, of New Ipswich, N. H., was the stern chaperon who looks askance over her paper, a little suspicious, not just knowing why.

"Here it is Christmas; they began saying good-bye in August," arranged by Miss Check, was given by Mr. McNeir, and Miss Bradbury. The pair was posed against a dark background knee-deep in snow, with the flakes softly falling from above, oblivious to everything but the fact that "parting is such sweet sorrow." Mrs. Smith sang Becker's "Spring Song," at this point, and was encored.

"Types" a series of living pictures, arranged by Miss Edith Malcolm Tewksbury, of Lynn, Mass., next upon the program, proved to be among the most effective tableau of the evening. Types of New York, New Orleans, Chicago, Boston and San Francisco girls were shown, each an exquisitely gowned young woman, posed against a dark background, effectively lighted, in a massive gilt frame. The models were Miss Smith, of Portland, Me., Miss Bradbury, Miss Denton, Miss Stackpole, and Miss Marjorie Stone. As the pictures were shown a short descriptive verse was read by Mr. Malcolm. Each picture was received with prolonged applause, and a repetition was necessary.

"His Christmas Gift," arranged by Mrs. C. S. Horton, of Williamsport, Pa., was a living picture beautifully given. Mr. Warren was the grizzled Santa Claus, who presents the beautiful bride (Miss Tewksbury) to the waiting groom, (Mr. McNeir.)

The program was brought to a brilliant close with the tableau, "Pinehurst Cones" arranged by Mrs. Horton, and in which all of the young women who participated in other tableaux, and Mrs. A. E. Lard of St. Joseph, Mo., Mr. E. W. Walker of Louisville, Ky., Mrs. T. J. King, of Boston, and Miss Crary of Warren, Pa., in addition, participated. Miss Tewksbury, slightly elevated, was a central and strikingly beautiful figure, and about her the rest were grouped in various graceful attitudes, all in white. Pine boughs and strings of cones were used to heighten the effect. Tremendous applause came with the first glimpse of the picture and only ceased when it was shown for the second time.

In a large measure the success of the evening was due to the untiring efforts of a committee on which Mrs. Montgomery A. Crockett, of Buffalo, N. Y., was the leader.

BANNER WEEK OF SEASON.

Sportsmen Have Found Quail in Plentiful Numbers.

"The past week has been the banner week of the season," says Dr. C. D. Jones, manager of the Pinehurst Preserves. "The bags have been excellent and the birds plentiful."

Mr. W. A. Wood and Mr. C. A. Lockwood of New York City, have gone after a short trip. They made bags of eleven and nine birds in short hunts from the Village and on a two days trip to the Aberdeen section, secured twenty-four birds. On another trip eight covies were started and seventeen quail secured.

Mr. Frederick K. Gaston of New York City, who is here with three fine dogs, has made records that stand well with the best of the season. He secured in two days hunting thirty-five birds, and in a days outing, twenty-three birds.

Mr. J. E. Newell of Cleveland, Ohio, has also been holding his own with the best of them. His best bag is twenty birds picked out of eight covies. Mr. Newell uses a 20 gun.

Mr. W. C. Spaulding of New York City, is a recent arrival and he brings a favorite dog with him.

Many live birds are being secured which are used for stocking.

"AMATEUR" CAKE WALK.

Young People of The Carolina Plan for One.

An amateur minstrel entertainment and cake walk is announced for Friday evening, February 27th, in the Music Room at The Carolina. A committee of young people have the arrangements in charge and a rare treat is promised.

The minstrel part of the program will include singing, buck and wing dancing and a few choice bits in the way of original jokes, but the real feature is to be the cake walk. Ten or more couples are to participate and some original features are assured.
