Four Ball Match Between Travis-Lynch, Moller-Evans, Was a Rattler.

Two Down on the Fourteenth Champion and Partner Take Last Three Holes and Match.

Hardly a day has passed since the arrival of the first delegation of visiting golfers, Sunday morning, that matches of importance have not taken place, and large numbers of Villagers have thronged the course to witness the play of the experts.

One of the first matches of importance was between Walter J. Travis, the amateur champion, and John M. Ward, runner-up in last year's championship tournament which resulted in a victory for Travis, by three up.

The important matches of the week, however, were seen in a four ball match Tuesday between Walter J. Travis and Jasper Lynch against John but missed a putt for a five and a halve, and making his score one down.

On the fifteenth Moller laid his second dead and went down in three and Travis followed suit a stroke behind, making his score three down, two to play.

Matters were interesting from this point, but the champion and his partner took the last three holes in five, three and five, respectively, and the match by one up.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON'S MATCH.

Tuesday afternoon's match developed almost as close a contest as the morning. At the turn Travis and his partner was three up, but they lost the tenth and eleventh, won the twelfth and thirteenth, lost the fourteenth, halved the fifteenth and sixteenth, and the match, by halving the seventeenth; two up and one to play.

Moller approximated his medal play score for the round at seventy-nine and Travis must have been a few strokes better.

SUFFICIENT CAUSE IN CAPITALS.

Bill—I feel like dere's er fight goin' on in me stomach.
Sykes—No wonder; you've bin eatin' scraps fer er week.

Moller, Jr. and W. J. Evans. The first match, Tuesday morning, resulted in one of the prettiest and closest contests of its kind ever seen here and a victory by the small margin of one up, for Travis and Lynch.

TUESDAY MORNING'S MATCH.

Travis and Lynch in starting, took the first three holes in three strokes each and took three up for a lead; rather a satisfactory combination.

Varying fortunes followed the players to the turn where Travis and his partner started home in the lead, two up, but the tenth and eleventh holes went to Moller and Evans and even up, the players halved the twelfth and thirteenth holes.

On the fourteenth Moller sliced off of the course and lost a stroke getting into play, but made up for it with a beautiful third from which he reached the green and ran down a putt for a five.

Travis got a beautiful drive, a good second and reached the green with four,
