Explained at Last.

She wore an ostrich feather
And somehow to my eyes,
Although I am no critic,
It didn't harmonize;
It seemed to stand out lonely,
A vain addition patched,
For I could not discover What thing it was it matched.
But after the theatre
We went to get a lunch,
And when I had considered
The quite expensive bunch
Of viands she had ordered The thing was simple, quite;
She wore the ostrich feather
To match her appetite!

AT FORTRESS MONROE.

Captain and Mrs. Chamberlain Give General Story Farewell Dinner

FORTRESS MONROE, VA., Feb. 3.—One of the recent brilliant social events was the farewell dinner given to General John P. Story by Captain and Mrs.
Chamberlain at The Chamberlin. The guests included Dr. and Mrs. Rafferty and General and Miss Sullivan. Red, the Artillery color, was used for decoration.

Lieutenant Ramsey D. Potts, who succeeds General Story in command of the Artillery School, has arrived and taken up the duties of his office.

The cruiser, Charleston, was successfully launched at the Newport News ship yard last week. Miss Helen W.
Rhett, daughter of Major R. G. Rhett of Charleston, christened the ship. The Cuban Minister, Senor Gouzais de Que-sado, was present at the banquet which followed the launching, and responded to the toast "Cuba." The company attended an informal dance given in their honor at The Chamberlin, in the evening.

Recent guests include the following:

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Stern, Mrs. H. J.
Slocum, Mrs. H. J. Slocum, Jr., Mrs.
Beverly Dunn, Miss M. Garvey, Miss L.
McEnerney, Mr. A. Moore, Mr. John E.
Robinson, Mr. F. W. Stone, Mr. Hugh McKay, Mrs. E. Simpson, Miss Holmes,

A DAINTY BOOKLET.

Seaboard Air Line Prints Something Unique in "A Bride and a Bridle."

One of the daintiest advertising booklets, if it may so be called, that has ever come to our notice is, "A Bride and a Bridle," published by the Seaboard Air Line Railway.

Not a line may strictly be called "advertising" appears in the publication, which is nothing more or less than an interesting short story, well illustrated, finely printed upon deckle edge paper,
and bound with soft gray boards, bearing a cover design in white.

To be sure the Seaboard Air Line is mentioned several times throughout the booklet, but this fact does not mar in the least the pleasure which one finds in reading the story which it contains.

SILHOUETTES AT THE LENOX

Guests Spend a Merry Evening Figur- ing Out the Identity of Each.

A "Silhouette Party" provided a merry evening at The Lenox Friday, and many guests from outside joined with the company in the enjoyment of the occasion.

The early hours were spent in making the silhouettes, the Misses Josselyn of Lawrence, Mass., assisted by Mrs. J.
Milton Robinson, performing this portion of the work with much secrecy.
When all had been "silhouetted" the pictures were hung upon a large white curtain in the dining room and the company was allowed to guess the identity of each.

Miss M. E. Chrysler of Williamsport, Pa.; Miss Elizabeth Macfarlane of Troy Hills, N. J.; Miss Morris of Bridgeport, Conn.; Mrs. H. S. Eldredge of Milford, Mass., and Miss May E. Freeman of Bridgeport, Conn., tied for the prize offered with thirty-seven correct guesses, Miss Chrysler winning on the cut.

Manager Robinson still finds it possible to provide accommodations only when changes are brought about by departures.

Poster Fiends Will Want Them.

Poster collectors will be interested in the two attractive posters issued by the Southern Railway, announcing Christmas and New Year excursions on the Southern, and the Mardi Gras Festival at New Orleans.
