A BRILLIANT PROPHECY!

Invitation German Opens Winters Series of Formal Social Affairs.

Mr. C. Appleton Warren of New York and Miss Bessie Baltz of Philadelphia Lead.

THE usual series of formal affairs, which are always a delightful feature of the season's social life here, and which are enjoyed not only by the younger set which participate, but by the older people who are onlookers, were given a brilliant opening at The Carolina Friday evening, with an invitation German.

Sixteen couples participated and many pretty gowns were worn by the women. The affair takes its place as one of the pleasantest of its kind ever held here, and it is a significant prophecy for the events to come.

Mr. C. Appleton Warren of New York, and Miss Bessie Hentz Baltz of Philadelphia, led through a series of unique and varied figures, and the favors were numerous and in excellent taste.

A most amusing incident occurred in the curtain figure where invisible partners were selected by grasping the ends of many colored scarfs. When the curtain dropped, Mr. F. Walter Hentz found his partner to be a monster doll which the managers insisted he should dance with, much to his discomfiture, and to the keen enjoyment of the company.

The dances included the familiar tally-ho, candle and bottle figures.

The patronesses were Mrs. J. Henry Hentz of Philadelphia, Mrs. William C. Freeman of New York, and Mrs. William E. Barnett of New Haven.

Mrs. I. B. Johnson of Spuyten Duyvil, N. Y., and Mrs. William Sawin Whiting of Brookline, Mass., presided at the favor table.

The ushers were Mr. F. Walter Hentz of Philadelphia, Mr. Allen S. Whiting of Brookline, Mass., and Mr. George F. Valentine of New York.

THE PARTICIPANTS.

OH SO DIFFERENT!

Putting Looked Easy Until Participants Tried It.

An invitation putting contest for prizes given by Mrs. William E. Barnett of New Haven, Conn., provided a pleasant evening at The Carolina, Wednesday, which was enjoyed not only by a large list of participants but by the guests generally, who were onlookers.

It looked very easy to the spectators, and before trying the participants thought the hole about this size:

O

But when they began to putt it suddenly became reduced in about this proportion:

O

GOLF HAS EQUAL INTEREST FOR BOTH PARTICIPANTS AND ONLOOKERS.

Mr. H. L. Downey, New York, and Miss Florence Bradbury, Providence, R. I.

Mr. H. Nelson Burroughs, Philadelphia, and Miss Alice Peters, New York.

Mr. N. L. McCutcheon, Greenwich, Conn., and Miss M. Eleanor Freeman, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Valentine, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Beebe, Pittsburg, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Jillson, Worcester, Mass.

No Birthday Party Tomorrow.

The birthday party at the Poultry Farm, announced for Sunday on page four of this issue, is called off owing to a mistake in calculations.

Mr. C. Appleton Warren of New York, won the mens prize with the remarkably low score of four with Mr. F. Walter Hentz, Philadelphia, and Mr. LaFayette Lentz, Jr., of Mauch Chunk, Pa., tied for second at three.

Mrs. M. D. Paterson of New York, took the womens trophy with five, her nearest opponent being Miss Presbrey of New York, who scored three.

Following the contest there were sweepstake events, Mr. Le Roy W. Johnson of New York, winning the first and Mr. J. Henry Hentz, Jr., of Philadelphia, the second, Mr. Hentz made a perfect score a possible eighteen.

Kindergarten Opens.

Miss Edith G. Bearse of Orange, N. J., has arrived and opened the recently established kindergarten at the Persimmon cottage.

JOHNSON AND HENTZ WIN!

Carry Carolina Colors Through Holly Inn Lines in Hard Battle.

Members Handicap Match Play Tournament is one of the Season's Best Club Events.

THE handicap match play tournament, open only to season members of the Golf Club, begun Saturday, proved one of the best club contests of the year and resulted in a hard battle for the possession of the Village trophies offered for the winner and the runner-up.

Interest centered on the semi-finals, in which representatives from The Carolina and The Holly Inn, through I. B. Johnson of the Ardsley club, New York, and J. Henry Hentz, Jr., of the Mt. Airy country club, Philadelphia, and J. A. Baker of the Glen View golf club, Chicago, and Marshall C. Parshall of the Warren golf club, Pennsylvania, were matched against each other.

When the smoke cleared The Carolina's colors were floating triumphantly over the breastworks.

Johnson had an easy time with Baker, winning five up and four to play; but the match between Hentz and Parshall was a rattler, and nineteen holes were necessary.

In the final round, Johnson beat Hentz five up and four to play.
