

TIN WHIS'LES ORGANIZE

Constitution, Officers and the List of Members Made Public.

Certain Rites and Ceremonies to be Greatly Modified—Prizes No Longer Divisible.

The mystery surrounding the "Wow Wow Club," later known as the "Tin Whis'les," is past for the club now comes forward and announces not only its officers and membership, but a constitution, as well.

It is further intimated that certain rites and ceremonies which have been performed at "the eleventh hole" will be greatly modified and perhaps omitted, and strangest of all, it is said that sterling trophies, which are not so constituted as to be divisible in case of ties, will be offered for prizes in the future.

Furthermore, it is very doubtful if the members will again sing with the old-time fervor the familiar war-cry:

Can we golf and can we sing
Can we make the echoes ring!
Well, we rather think we can;
For the rest just "ASK THE MAN!"

Beginning in an informal way, more as a frolic than anything else, the members have formed a club which has for its object:

"To promote a golfing fellowship begun at Pinehurst, and to maintain there a neutral zone for a choice and chosen few from outside organizations, to which it will be pleasant to return year by year."

At a recent meeting of the club, organization was completed.

THREE "MONSTER CONTESTS."

Carolina Guests Devote an Evening to Jolly Frolics.

Bean carrying, nail driving and a clothes-pin passing contests filled in last Friday evening at the Carolina completely, furnishing fun not only for participants but for a large company of onlookers as well.

In the bean carrying contest, half a minute was allowed contestants in which to carry lima beans from one bowl to another by aid of a table spoon. Most of the beans found a resting place on the carpet, but Miss Barnett of New Haven, succeeded in transferring one hundred and forty, winning first prize with Miss Presbrey of New York, a close second in one hundred and thirty-six.

The clothes-pin passing contest was between teams captained by Miss Fannie Hefelfinger of Minneapolis, and Miss Merriam of Weston, Mass. In this event, a handful of clothes-pins were passed down the line and back again and considerable amusement resulted from the efforts of the contestants to handle the somewhat unruly bundle without dropping any part of them, Miss Hefelfinger's team won an easy victory.

The nail driving proved fully as difficult for the contestants and as amusing for the onlookers as when first tried two weeks ago. Mrs. A. G. Johnson of Spuyten Duyvil, N. Y., won first with seven strokes, Mrs. M. D. Paterson of New York, second with eight and several were tied for third at nine.
