BIG MENAGERIE COMING

New Entertainment Feature of Exceptional Interest Announced.

Lexington and Norumbega Park Animals and Birds Will be Located Here During Season.

NEW entertainment feature of exceptional and general interest, announced for the present season, is the coming of a Menagerie including over one hundred and fifty rare specimens of wild animals and beautiful birds; the combined collections shown at Lexington and Norumbega Parks, Massachusetts, during the past summer.

The exhibit will occupy a spacious, well-lighted and airy pavilion, now in process of construction, located within easy walking distance of the Village, be-and purveyor and educator of wild animals to President Roosevelt, Timothy Woodruff and others of prominence.

THE EGGS EXPLODED.

Member of Governor Glenn's Staff
Recalls Amusing Incident.

"I never see a hen" said a member of the staff of Governor Glenn of North Carolina, during a visit to the Poultry Farm, "without being reminded of my first and a most unusual experience with a setting hen.

"Receiving an exceptionally choice lot of eggs and having no setting hen at hand, I recalled having heard that eggs varnished and buried in sawdust, would keep indefinitely, so I carefully coated the lot with shellac and stored them away.

"Some weeks after a setting hen appeared and producing the varnished eggs I placed them carefully under her. Everything went well for a few days and then suddenly, one of the eggs exploded, naturally much to the discomfiture of the tween the Palmetto gate and the Pine Grove, on the road to Thagard's.

Many unique features will be introduced to make it especially attractive. Trainer Benson will not only devote his personal attention to the entertainment and instruction of visitors, but will give daily lectures on natural history, using the animals and birds of the collection as the subject of his talks. A unique feature which will appeal especially to the children, will be the riding of trained animals. The attendants will all be uniformed and the smallest details will be looked after with scrupulous care.

The date set for opening is January fifteenth and the exhibition will continue until late in April, being open daily. A nominal admission fee of twenty-five cents for adults, and ten cents for children, will be charged.

The exhibition will be known as "Benson's Zoological Garden" and will be in charge of John T. Benson, who is the owner of a large number of the animals, and controller of the rest. Mr. Benson is a trainer of international reputation, hen. After loud cackling and very extended reconnoitering, however, she returned to the nest with evident distrust which had hardly disappeared, when a second egg blew up.

"This was a little too much for the would be mother and after several surveys at a safe distance, she decided to sleep over the matter and that night roosted with the flock. In the morning, however, she again returned to the nest with considerable apparent trepidation, and not long after a third explosion took place

"That convinced the already thoroughly suspicious hen, and not stopping to examine, she fled precipitately and for several days cackled hysterically. No amount of persuasion would induce her to return even to the nest, and ever after when she laid an egg, she would run from it with frantic cries of alarm."
