

MANY EXTRA HOLE MATCHES

Match Play Rounds Carry Couples Beyond the Eighteenth Green.

Midwinter Tourney Division Trophies Won Only After Bitterly Contested Matches.

THE match play rounds of the Midwinter tournament were characterized by close play throughout and an exceptionally large number of matches which required additional holes to decide them. Each division trophy was won only after hard battles, even Allan Lard, who took championship honors, finding plenty to keep him occupied in the semi-final match with C. L. Becker. In the final round for the first division consolation, William C. Freeman won out only after a hole for a hole battle and a brilliant rally. J. O. H. Denny played twenty-two hole and nineteen hole match as in the first and second rounds losing victory dearly bought to C. W. Inslee, in the semi-finals.
