THE CAROLINA OPENING.

Large Number of Old and New Friends are Thus Early Registered.

Holly Inn Filling Rapidly and Congenial Company Assembled at The Berkshire.

THE formal opening of The Carolina, Friday, caused general pleasure throughout the entire Village as well as among the large number of guests who affixed their names to the register upon the opening day. Thus and one is glad to hear that "Charlie" Colby is still steward, and that Chef Milgate will once more meet the most exacting requirements of the epicures.

Your room is just as you left it last April, your favorite easy chair is in its accustomed place in the spacious lobby, the same quiet refinement pervades the parlors, the dining room looks as if it had never been closed, and ever and always the consciousness that God's out of doors is close at hand and beckoning, is emphasized by the broad verandas, the bright sunshine, the fresh air, and the distant landscape which the hotel overlooks.

AMONG THE GUESTS.

Among the first to register were Mr. and Mrs. Allan E. Lard of Washington, D. C., who return for their annual sojourn, welcomed by a large circle of JAY V. HALL, PITTSBURG.

To Mr. Hall's efforts the success of M. & M. Minstrels was largely due.

early a goodly company of congenial people are assembled here, finding pleasure in doors and out, and the coming week will witness an influx of old and new friends.

The same air of comfort and luxury pervades the hotel, obliterating the lapse of time and making it home in every meaning of the word to those who have anticipated returning for weeks past. Manager and Mrs. Priest greet one as of yore, Clerk Wingate beams behind the desk, with quiet Bookkeeper Hobbs and genial Front Clerk Hunt close at hand, acquaintances, for both are widely known and generally popular here.

Dr. and Mrs. Albert H. Hoy and Miss Elizabeth Hoy of New York, formerly of Chicago, are here to remain until spring, finding diversion in doors and out.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Ball and child and Miss Ames of Muncie, Ind., will remain indefinitely.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Rhinehart, Jr., and family of Stamford, return for their annual sojourn.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. North of Chicago,
