ITS FASCINATION INFECTIOUS

event and while the contestants all looked wonderfully graceful and had had the benefit of an afternoon's practice, the scores were decidedly discouraging, and the question of dividing them into expert and novice classes was immediately abandoned. Mrs. M. D. Jamison of Chicago, captured high score trophy with a total of 400, Miss Bernadette Herman next at 200, and Miss Belle Conley of Brooklyn, Miss Dorothy Joyce of Boston, and Miss Anna Malcolm of Bethlehem, tied for third at 100 each; Mrs. L. E. Martin of New York, Mrs. Harmon Harris of Chicago, and Miss Jessie Thayer being among those who found the distance altogether too great, or the target altogether too small. In the tie shoot-off for third prize, Miss Malcolm dropped, Miss Conley and Miss Joyce tying for a second time with 400 each; Miss Conley winning the final test with 900, the best score made among the women.

Miss Conley	300	Miss Thayer	400
Miss Herman	—	Mrs. Jamison	100
Mrs. Martin	—	Mrs. Harris	—
Totals	1800		1600

The trophies included the cleverest travesties on prizes: an Indian pipe to the winner of the world's championship, the tiniest of pewter steins for the experts among the men, and a dainty loving cup for the women, a miniature Delft stein for the second prize for the men, and a small Dutch vase for the women; the third prize for women an imitation embroidered moccasin in china. There were imitation peaches and pears bestowed upon the women who shot with much grace, as "very poor archers," and two lemons were also awarded (with much difficulty) to the "very bum archers."

Interest aroused by the affair has led to plans for its repetition.

"GLORIOUS SUNSHINE SHEDS A WARM AND SUBTLE GLOW OVER ALL."

The climax of the evening came in the next event in which Mr. Porter and Mr. Malcolm met in the battle for the World's Championship, and at any time during the contest the golf course steam roller could have been run straight through the hall and out the window without attracting the slightest attention. Both contestants showed extreme nervousness and were promptly pulled to their corners and revived by their trainers between rounds, and when the last shot was fired both were carried from the hall in an unconscious condition. The following detailed scores tell the story, which ere this, has been flashed to all quarters of the globe:

MR. PORTER	100	200	500	200	100	500	1600
MR. MALCOLM	100	500	100	200	300	300	1500

The concluding event on the program was a "mixed foursome" team match in which Mr. Porter and Mr. Pierce chose sides, the Pittsburgher's braves winning with a score of 1800 to 1600. The scores:

PORTER	1100	PIERCE	1100
Hamilton	400	Dillon	—
