FIVE CENTS

SPECTACULAR FINAL ROUND

J. P. Gardner of Midlothian Wins Advertising Golf Tournament.

ASPECTACULAR nineteen hole match between J. P. Gardner of Midlothian, and J. P. Knapp of Garden City, winner of last year's contest, concluded the annual Advertising Golf Tournament Saturday, the Midlothian player winning the last hole with a long Kuapp won the eleventh, halved the twelfth, won the thirteenth with a bogey three, won the fourteenth with a par four, and halved the next three holes, Mr. Gardner saving the match with a win on the eighteenth in a par five to six of his opponent, tying the score. Mr. Knapp had the honor on the extra hole and outdrove Mr. Gardner, placing his second shot well up, but he missed his third, and fell eighteen feet short on his approach. Mr. Gardner was short on his second, some hundred yards away from the green, covering only half of this distance on his third, but he laid his fourth within eight feet of the hole and ran down the putt, Mr. Knapp losing his putt and the match.

and in the first round, William C. Freeman of Montclair, one up.

G. H. Barnes of Garden City, won the first division consolation final from Mr. Freeman, three up and two to play. Mr. Hamilton won the second consolation or defeated four, from Mr. Hazen on the nineteenth green; Mr. Purves the third or defeated two, from Maj. Morrow, by one up.

W. L. Crocker of Brae Burn, won the second division from W. G. Thomas of Glen Ridge, three up and two to play; E. J. Ridgeway the first consolation, Z. T. Miller of Dunwoodie, second, and W. T. Stern of St. Andrews, the third. W. J. McDonald of Midlothian, won the third division from Henry McSweeney

POP-POP—POP-POP-POP!

Fast Work Characterizes Opening Day of the Midwinter Handicap.

POP-POP—pop-pop-pop! It has been the week through at the trap shooting grounds where hundreds have gathered to watch, fascinated, the flying targets vanish in clouds of purple dust, for like the two events which have preceded it, the third annual Midwinter putt for a five, which the Garden City player failed to duplicate. The unusual features were the running down of a twenty-five foot putt for a three on the third or bogey five hole and the laying dead of an approach for a three on the fourth or bogey four hole by Mr. Gardner, and the holing of a one hundred yard approach on the fifth by Mr. Knapp, laying the ball dead to the hole from a bunker seventy-five yards away on the seventh, and the holing of a thirty-five yard approach on the thirteenth.

Mr. Gardner had the best of it going out being two up at the turn, after losing the seventh and eighth and halving the ninth. The tenth was halved, Mr.

Tournament has started out a winner.

In the big field the leading amateurs and experts of the country are fighting it out on the firing line and seldom has prettier work been seen here than that which characterized the opening event in the program, Wednesday's two hundred target race shot in twenty-target sweepstakes. Its special features were a tie between P. H. Powel of Newport, and Charles Nuchols of Charlotte, at one hundred and eighty-eight each, and the brilliant work of Professional George L. Lyon who scored one hundred and ninety-eight missing only his eighty-second and eighty-ninth targets, and rounding out an unfinished run of one
