THE ODOR OF GOLF.

Perhaps He Had Been Working, But
She Had Her Doubts.

It was customary for Perkins, on leaving his office at noon Saturday, says The Herald, to spend the afternoon joyously outdoors, engrossed with golf balls and high balls. Being a clever chap, he was a champion in both pastimes.

On one Saturday, however, he was compelled to spend the whole day disposing of pressing business matters.

His wife and little daughter, as usual were awaiting him on the porch. "No game today," he explained to Mrs. Perkins, as the little one rushed impulsively into his arms and he picked her up and kissed her. "No game today," he repeated.

Miss Margerie sniffed the air and said, "Well, papa, you do smell awfully of golf!"

Dining Room Chat.

"Pretty girl over there."

"Yes, she's smiling at me."

"You're foolish. She's smiling at me."

"Butt out, will you?"

"You make me tired."

"Waitress!"

"Yes, sir."

"Which of us is that young woman smiling at?"

"Neither, sir. She's smiling at her brother behind you."

J. D. FOOT OF APAWAMIS.

Whose defeat of E. B. Humphreys and H. C. Fownes were the sensations of Thursday's play in the spring golf tournament. He was defeated by W. R. Tuckerman Wednesday morning, four up and three to play.
