faculties of mountainside construction. The best roads encountered were over the Capital Highway from Savannah to Pinehurst, and he predicts great popularity for this route when the direct strip between Richmond and Washington is complete. "The Capital Highway leads to the points the northern tourist desires to visit," he asserts, "and until it is opened it will not be easy to interest northerners in winter touring."

Mr. Cobb, last year, toured 28,000 miles and this year expects to exceed the sum by several thousand. He plans to reach home on Christmas day, stopping at Raleigh, Richmond, Washington, Philadelpiha, New York, Boston and Portland on the way northward.

SHOOTING NEVER BETTER

Many Sportsmen Enjoy Opening Sport and Excellent Bags Rule

J. D. Foot Secures Daily Limit Easily and Hobart J. Park Flushes Coveys by the Score

QUAIL SHOOTING has never been better and excellent bags have been the rule among those who have enjoyed the opening weeks' sport; the average kill in the vicinity of the dozen mark with the Buick. Leaving Rockland October 25th, they journeyed to Savannah for the races, over the National Highway, arriving November 8th. Leaving on December 4th, they are proceeding northward over the Capital Highway, spending a day here in an interested inspection of the Village. The register shows the distance from Rockland to Savannah, to be approximately 1660 miles; the 2200 mile-mark being reached when they arrived at Pinehurst, with about 1100 more miles before them on the homeward journey.

Mr. Cobb says the National Highway is far from complete and following the Glidden tourists as he did, he got the very worst of conditions. The stretch just below Roanoake, he says, will be hard to perfect for some years, owing to dif-

Fox Hunting Plans

M. F. H., James T. Twitty of the Pinehurst Hunt, arrived yesterday and the fox hunting season opens up with his coming. For over a month past Mr. and Mrs. Twitty have been at training quarters in Warrenton, N. C., enjoying several preliminary hunts with success.

On a camping-out hunt five splendid runs were had and four brushes the result; two being secured in one day; the shortest race one hour and forty minutes and the longest three hours. "The pack," says Mr. Twitty, "is the finest I have coveys running from eight to ten. High line among the sportsmen is James D. Foot of Rye who spent three weeks here and rarely failing to secure the limit of fifteen daily, often in a morning or afternoon trip, for Mr. Foot devoted a portion of his time to golf.

Hobart J. Park of New York had excellent success, starting twenty-one coveys in a single day, and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hibbard of New York found ten coveys in an afternoon's shooting.

David Gregg, Jr., of Brooklyn spends a portion of his time in the field with good success and George H. Crocker of Fitchburg has been delving into the mysteries of the sport, confident that a golf ball is more accurate than a gun.
