ANNUAL LIVING PICTURES

Perfectly Carried Out They Prove Most Delightful of Series

Large Company Gathers and Seventy Dollars is Netted for Village Club Charitable Fund

PERFECTLY carried out in elaborate detail, the annual Living Pictures at The Carolina proved the most delightful of the annual series, a company which filled the music hall to overflowing showing its appreciation by repeated encores. The effect was perfection in its high lights and half shadows, the scheme heightened by a shadow box on the massive gilt frame and various backgrounds for different subjects. Among the most striking of the evening's pictures which included "figures" and "heads," was Miss Lady

Details of arrangement were in the hands of the Misses Fuller and Mr. Justus Kendall. A collection taken in aid of the Village Club charitable fund, netted seventy dollars. Dancing rounded out the evening.

BIRDS ARE MUSICIANS

Henry Oldys Makes it Quite Clear at Carolina Lecture

Seldom has a lecturer been listened to with closer attention than that shown Henry Oldys, assistant Chief of Bureau and Game Preserves of the United States Department of Agriculture, who addressed a large company in The Carolina music hall, Wednesday evening.

The most delightful feature were the clever and accurate reproductions of bird songs which he gave to illustrate that many birds are undoubtedly musicians in every sense of the word. His fund of anecdote and general information is also most entertaining.

Card Party at Berkshire

The weekly card party was enjoyed at The Berkshire on Tuesday evening; auction, bridge, five hundred and plain
