Pinehurst's Sixty-Holes of Golf Superior To the European Product

War's Embargo Brings Village Into Prominence as World's Leading Exponent of Ancient Game

THE WAR'S embargo on European golf has no terrors for Americans, bringing Pinehurst as it does, into preeminence as the world's leading exponent of the ancient game. ¶ Sixty holes—twelve miles of golf—three eighteen and one six hole course, is the equipment which claims an army of golfers annually. Scouts on the field in October, skirmishers spreading out for action early in November, companies now on the firing line; reinforcements of regiments and battalions hurrying Southward as December advances. ¶ First big battle scheduled for early in January with never a sign of truce until the last gun of the "United" Championship in April. ¶ Regulars and recruits; combatants and non-combatants; signal corps and red cross; commissary and ambulance; all intent from breakfast prophesies to nineteenth-hole good nights!

THE ADVERTISING GOLFERS

Full Week of January Eleventh Will Be Their Very Own

The full week beginning January eleventh, belongs to the Winter Golf League of Advertising Interests—the advertising golfers—and, mark, 'twill be going some! ¶ The program will be a full one, all sorts of tournament combinations for both men and women, with socially, teas, entertainments, dancing. The climax is the big ball, annual dinner, and a minstrel show which "Lew" Hamilton, Guy Pierce, and H. R. Mallinson are arranging; not to mention Scotch foursomes and the portable nineteenth hole! ¶ "Pop" Freeman is again looking after tournament details and President Walter W. Manning and Secretary R. R. Mamlok are picking up loose ends; thus early prophesying the largest and most enjoyable outing in the history of the Association.

The Other Fellows Golf Story

"In golf as in bridge" says James Montgomery Flagg in the American Magazine, "the fascination lies in the post-morteming. It speaks well for the self-restraint of men that there are not more cases of manslaughter, mayhem and homicide in golf club cafes than are on record. Surely no man can listen to the detailed account of another's shots without a growing desire to take human life.

"And yet no man who has ever played eighteen holes can refrain from cornering another golfer who is trying to slink off the porch, and telling him how he made the eleventh hole in two, how he fozzled his approach on number twelve and just missed holing out in three, and how his caddie stepped on his ball on the thirteenth and tried to sell it to him for a dime and bla, bla, bla... The other golfer doesn't give a whoop in Idaho. He only listens because he has lost his breath telling another man about his round!"

Thrills, Heart Throbs, and Smiles!

The reopening of Pinehurst's moving picture theatre is announced for early January, with thrills, heart throbs and smiles on every program.
