THE BAND PLAYS DIXIE

South Outshoots North at the Gun

Todd Wins The United North and South Handicap Trap Shoot

The echo of old rivalries, and memories of "Longstreet's famous riflemen," were revived last Tuesday afternoon at the Pinehurst gun club, when a string of shooters from Yankeeland lined up on the firing line to try their skill at the flying targets against a team of Tarheels upholding the reputation of Dixie.

The occasion was the first annual United North and South Handicap Shoot. Sad to relate a solid six weeks of sunshine and calm was broken by a gale and a flood that day, putting a damper upon an otherwise enthusiastic and promising event. This attack by Boreas also militated against any very fancy scoring. But did not hinder J. D. Allen of Charlotte, T. T. Todd of Greenwood, N. C. and Charles Nucholls of Charlotte from banging out a Southern victory for the 200 targets, with a total of 522 breaks. They were up against the veteran B. V. Covert of Lockport, J. V. Hall of New York and Charles T. Crocker of Fitchburg, Mass.

Six hundred targets in all were thrown during this contest. It would be impossible for any battle to rage more evenly than this one for the major part of two days. On noon of the second day with only fifty more to go, the teams stood even to a dot. Both had exactly 406 breaks to their credit out of 550 targets thrown.

In the last stretch the principle glory and credit for the ultimate victory is due to Charles Nucholls. Firing in a heavy wind and under adverse conditions he smashed 45 of the fifty, which developed a lead of four over his nearest rival in the opposite ranks. This was Jay Hall, with a 41. J. D. Allen of the Southern team held Charlie Crocker even, and T. T. Todd, with 38 fell one behind Covert. But this left Nucholls' margin still a winner by 3 points—522 to 519.

The scores

SOUTH
Charles Nucholls, Charlotte	171
T. T. Todd, Charlotte	178
J. D. Allen, Greenwood	178
Total	522
NORTH
B. V. Covert, Lockport	180
J. V. Hall, New York	171
C. T. Crocker, Fitchburg	168
Total	519

These teams represented the high guns from their sections in the entire shoot.
