RED CROSS WORK

The Red Cross Room at the School House, next to the Movie Theatre, will be open Tuesday and Friday mornings from 10.00 to 1.00. The principal work will be done on refugee garments, which are sorely needed by the starving and homeless peoples abroad. Wool will be given out and finished articles returned at the room. Volunteers for sewing are most welcome.

Moving to More Ample Quarters

Miss Mary M. Chapman, of Cleveland, assisted by Miss Claudia Fink and Miss Elinor Barta, this year opened a graded school for the children of the colony in the Elm Cottage. It was not only a success, but so much of a success that the forty-three children entered burst through the slender dimensions of the school house. Hence we are delighted to report that Miss Chapman has acquired the use of enlarged and adequate and beautiful quarters in the large Davis mansion, into which the school is being moved at present writing.

The pupils, who comprise most of the families in the colony, are from 5 years old to 16, and are provided with the best possible primary and secondary studies, as well as the use of a well equipped and satisfactory playground.

The Blessings of Peace

Include the unexpected coming of Lieut. and Mrs. Dickinson Bishop. The Lieutenant expects to get his immediate release and to spend the winter in the new house whose opening is proceeding as we write.

Tea at Drowning Creek

A party from the Pinehurst colony drove out to the Drowning Creek last Saturday afternoon, where Mrs. Roger Derby served tea for a small party given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Tuckerman, of Boston, spending a few days on the Plantation. Roger Warner, of Boston, escorting a French Griffon, came in from the hunting field to join the entertainment, whose guests included Miss Stella Garrett of St. Louis, Miss Katherine Mosser of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank McDavit, New York, Col. Craig McLanahan, Baltimore, Major Douglas Crocker and Captain William Cavanaugh of Washington.

Rank Desertion

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Ogden Jones and their son, little Ripley, are staying a short while at the Pine Crest Inn on their way to Florida for the winter. Incidentally, we are frank to say we think less than nothing of this desertion to Florida. Mrs. E. H. Ripley, Mrs. Jones' mother, is an old acquaintance of Pinehurst, and her sister, Mrs. Raphael Pumpelly, is the mainstay of the Sandhills upon its western borders at Samareand.

Visiting the Halls

Mr. and Mrs. Norwood Johnson, of Pittsburg, are spending the week with the Jay Halls on Society Hill. Mr. Johnson, who is well known in all Pennsylvania as "Lucky Johnson of the Oil Fields," is keenly interested in the outdoor life of the South, and during his short stay has seen most that the Sandhills has to offer in the field and on the river.

Captain Kenneth Parson

Will be given a particularly hearty welcome when he reaches Pinehurst this year. He has been through the maelstrom and was severely wounded in the big push. So he is on his way home, and is expected by his brother Donald to spend a breathing spell in the Sandhills before he returns to business.
