

The Week in Pinehurst

Where the golf stories are written. The Pinehurst cottage of Major Harold E. Porter—"Holworthy Hall."

The beautiful winter residence of Mrs. A. Craig Spring of Boston, Mass.

LAST THURSDAY'S fox hunt turned out to be a deer hunt when the hounds deserted Reynard in favor of a young buck who happened to appeal to them. For the hunters it was just as much fun to chase the deer as the fox.

Mr. J. Haggarty, who apparently eats, sleeps and has his being on the back of a horse, was huntsman for the party, in place of Mr. Coffee; and among those who followed the pack were Mrs. E. P. Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. McDermott, Miss McClure, Miss Dwyer, Miss Churchill, Miss Gillispie, Miss Brady, Miss Kolb and Mr. Cameron.

AT THE WEEKLY Bridge Party at the Holly Inn, Thursday, Mrs. C. A. Wright won the first prize for ladies', with Dr. C. E. Hoover, the winner of the men's prize. Mr. C. E. Kaltenback won in the consolation for men and Mrs. W. F. Luick won in the consolation for women.

Despite the fact that most of the people diverted their attention to cards on Thursday night at the Holly Inn, the dancing floor was well filled. Dancing is coming more and more into its own at the Holly Inn. Among those of the cottage colony who are to be seen almost every dance night there are: Mrs. Butterworth, Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong, Dr. Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden and many others.

MR. AND MRS. T. L. PRICE, of Jefferson City, Mo., who spent some time this winter at the Holly Inn, left for their home last week. Mr. and Mrs. Price were accompanied here by their charming daughter, Julia. This is the first time the Jefferson City financier has visited this part of the country, and, indeed, he liked it so much that he promised to pay another visit next season. Miss Julia Price will be greatly missed by the dancers at the Club, as she was a remarkable dancer. The golf links and horses were like home to Julia. She was, as one would express it, a "regular sport."
