

THE PINEHURST OUTLOOK

VOL. XXIII, NO. 15

MARCH 24, 1920

PRICE 10 CENTS

TO "BECK"

By Donald Parso.

To preside—not to speak—is my function to-night,
To act in a sense as a host,
Any yet I would crave your indulgence awhile
As I rise to propose a short toast.
To one whose opinions are valued as truth—
Whose word is as good as his cheque,
Tin Whistlers, I give you a toast to-night
To a man whom we love—named Beck.

You will search in vain through the annals of golf
For a sportsman as honest and keen,
And the years may go by, but they never will dim
His eyes on the putting green.
Out drive him you may, and out-second him too,
Yet every opponent must reckon
That the man who is down at the end of the hole
Is not necessarily Beck.

At cards he's a wizard, yet unlucky too—
Thus Providence shows its wise will,
For no one would play and the game would break up
If his fortune but equalled his skill.
His partners revoke, his finesses all lose;
He holds every deuce in the deck,
Yet I'll give you most of the aces and kings
If you let me sit opposite Beck.

This club is his monument, this is his work.
Let us pause and consider awhile
What Tin Whistle would mean, what Pinehurst would do,
If deprived of the light of his smile.
The heavens would darken, the tempest would rage—
Our bark but a drifting wreck—
Wise pilot, true captain, compass and chart,
You steer us in safety, old Beck.

You're clean as this Pinehurst air that you breathe;
You're an oracle, learned yet clear.
When perplexed, we consult you; your words, like the sun,
Makes the fog of our doubts disappear.
You are straight as a string, you are true as the pole—
Reputation without blemish or fleck—
You're a prince, you're a king—nay more, you're a MAN.
God bless you and keep you, our Beck.

—From Mr. Parson's address at the Annual Tin Whistle Banquet.

The Annual Masquerade Ball of the Employees of The Carolina Hotel which was held in the Carolina Ballroom on Wednesday, March 17th, was, as usual, a huge success, and far surpassed, in originality of costumes and brilliant color schemes, any of those held in previous years. Many of the guests attended, and unanimously declared that they had never seen its equal. The question of the evening was "Where did they get those costumes?"

Mr. James E. Maher, an Irish King, whose costume caused much favorable comment, led the march in a stately manner becoming to him. Geraldine Radcliff and Mabel Herrick, as colored cake-walk dancers were one of the hits but seldom seen anywhere, and positively brought down the house with their "Darktown" antics. The display of pink and dimpled knees and rounded shoulders proved interesting in the extreme to most of the audience, and received much applause.

The awarding of the prizes was declared by the judges to be one of the most difficult tasks ever imposed upon them, as without a doubt each costume called for a first prize

The judges were: Mr. Louis Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. George Mead, Mrs. Myron W. Marr, Dr. and Mrs. Gardener, Mrs. Allan Lard and Mr. H. Bradford Lewis. The employees wish to express, thru these columns, their appreciation of the generosity of the guests of the hotel, whose liberal contribution for prizes contributed greatly to the success of the dance.

Prize winners were as follows:

NOTABLE ENTRIES FOR COMING DOG SHOW

ON APRIL 7TH AND 8TH Pinehurst will hold its Third Annual Dog Show. This year's show will surpass in all respects last year's show. The entries of pointers, setters and shepherd dogs are always the outstanding feature of the Pinehurst Show, and it is expected that next month will bring to Pinehurst a collection of shepherd dogs of the highest class in the world. A recent importation into this country from Switzerland and Germany of fifteen shepherd dogs, or "German Police" dogs, as they are often called, marks an epoch in the breeding of these beautiful animals in the United States. The entire lot of fifteen was purchased by Mr. L. F. F. Wanner, Mr. Jay Hall and Mr. Reginald Cleveland of New York, and most of them will be shown in Pinehurst next month, if they have recuperated sufficiently from the effects of their long journey across the water. If any one in Pinehurst happens to run across Mrs. Wanner with a big strapping dog of fourteen months on the end of a leash, wearing the most distinguished air of any shepherd dog they have ever seen, the young fellow in question will without doubt be "Argus," the choicest one of the lot. He was brought over by Mr. Hauri, former trainer for Mr. Benjamin Throop, who, by the way, is coming down to Pinehurst for the Show.

Other entries of international prominence is the famous International Champion "Double Shear," an Irish Terrier belonging to Mr. Stuyvesant Peabody. The Peabodys are always noteworthy exhibitors at the Pinehurst Shows. There is an excellent possibility that Mr. Bates will show his sensational imported bitch, "Wonderful Biddie."

Mr. Lewis will bring the wonderful "Lansdowne Sunflower," a Greyhound that won highest honors of the Show last year against "Prides Hill Tweakem," and voted the best dog at the big show held recently in New York.

Premium list for the show, continued from last week, will be found on another page.
