AMERICAN BANKERS' ASSO- CIATION EXECUTIVE COUNCIL TO MEET HERE APRIL 26TH

Mr. Guy E. Bowerman, General Secretary of the American Bankers' Association, who has recently been in Pinehurst making final arrangements for the meeting of the Executive Council on April 26-30th inclusive, has announced the following tentative program for the Spring meeting. As announced the program devotes the mornings to business sessions and the afternoon to pleasurable features which have been provided especially for the entertainment of the financiers.

Monday Forenoon: Committee meetings, Administrative and Financial, Federal Legislative Committee and Council and State Legislative Committee and Council. Monday Afternoon: Golf qualifying contest and exhibition of fancy shooting by Annie Oakley. Monday Evening: Social features to be announced later.

Tuesday Afternoon: General Committee meetings. Tuesday Afternoon: Golf tournament. Tuesday Evening: Meeting of such committees as not provided for or announced in program to date.

Wednesday Morning: Council meeting. Wednesday Afternoon: Racing Matinee. Wednesday Evening: Family dinner and ball.

Thursday Morning: Council meeting. Thursday Afternoon: Golf finals and putting tournament for ladies, with trophy. Friday Morning: Final council meeting.

Secretary Bowerman expressed himself as exceedingly well pleased with the prospects for the Pinehurst meeting and with the arrangements made there for the reception of the council.

President R. S. Hawes has named the golf committee for the Pinehurst tournament as follows: Craig B. Hazelwood, Chicago, Chairman, J. Fletcher Farrell, New York, vice-chairman, Charles H. Sabin, New York, Harry J. Haas, Philadelphia, John G. Lonsdale, St. Louis. Donald Ross, who is one of the best qualified golf men in the United States, is cooperating with the golf committee in all arrangements of the tournament. Eight or nine cups are to be given as trophies.

The "Spring Tonic" Special carrying the bankers of the Mid-West to the spring meeting of the Executive Council will leave Chicago at noon on April 23. At least 200 passengers are expected, including the additions from St. Louis and Cincinnati. On arrival of the special at Atlanta around noon, the clearing house banks there will have a program of entertainment for the party until leaving time around 7 o'clock.

The Golfer's Wish

*A golfing bug lay dying, his strength was failing fast,
The putt he'd sunk the day before was doomed to be his last,
His eyes were turning glassy, beyond the slightest doubt,
The soul which feared no bunker deep would soon go drifting out, Then to his friends about him he turned and whispered low:
"I hope I'll find a Pinehurst in the land to which I go.*

*"I hope there'll be a Pinehurst in the realms beyond the stars,
Where all the golfers gather to brag about their pars.
I hope in some fair city where departed spirits dwell
And it may be up in heaven or it may be down in hell
That I'll find one haunt devoted to the glorious golfing kin Where I can sit and tell them of the shots I've made to win.*

*"I want to sit among them, all those gabby golfing chaps
And talk to them of hazards, ditches, chocolate mounds and traps.
I'll play earth's courses over with those golfers gone before
If they only have a Pinehurst on that far-off golden shore.
Oh, I'll live my golf life all over, in the rough and through the fair, And I'll be a happy angel, if they have a Pinehurst there.*

*"It is true that I've been nutty, it is true I've gone astray,
And I know that death can never wash
my golfing sins away,
But the men I've met at Pinehurst have all talked the same as I,
So with golfers I'll be happy in the land beyond the sky
As a gabby golf nut angel I can face eternity
If they only have a Pinehurst and hotel room for me."*

—Edgar A. Guest in the Detroit Free Press.

Ray F. McNally of the National Bank of Commerce is making reservations at St. Louis for the special cars which will join the Chicago train at Indianapolis. No circulars have as yet been issued upon the trip, but a total of 26 voluntary reservations have already been made. According to Mr. McNally, he anticipates no trouble in easily filling the two cars which will be allotted for St. Louis. Those making reservations to date are as follows:

W. Andrews and wife, First National Bank, Ft. Worth, Texas; H. B. Jones, Tucucari, N. M.; Albert Wilkerson and daughter, Austin, Texas; J. W. Butler, Galveston, Texas; J. R. Domnick, Traders National Bank, Mrs. R. J. Domnick, Miss Gertrude Masten, all of Kansas City; C. W. Carey, First National Bank, Wichita, Kans.; H. A. McCauley, Sapulpa State Bank, Sapulpa, Okla.; J. B. Jennings and wife, Moberly, Mo.; Robt.

E. Waite, Secretary Arkansas State Bankers Association, Little Rock, Ark.; Eugene P. Gum, Secretary Oklahoma State Bankers Association, Oklahoma City, Okla.; W. C. Gordon and wife, Marshall, Mo.; Messrs and Mesdames R. S. Hawes, R. F. McNailey, John G. Lonsdale, E. K. Ludington, Harry Vinsonhaler, W. B. Weisenburger, all of St. Louis.

EMPLOYEES DANCE AT THE HOLLY INN

The Annual Masquerade Ball of the Holly Inn employees was held on Wednesday last and far exceeded in size and costume any previous efforts in this line. The Ball Room was jammed to capacity with a mixed assembly of Turks, ballet dancers, cowboys, gypsies, clowns, darkies, pierrots and columbines, all swaying in frenzied rhythm to the lilt of the trombone and the bray of the cymbals. From the number of guests looking on it was judged that the employees were not the only ones having a good time.

Those who sat in judgment on the costumes and disguises were Miss Norton, Mr. Charles Smith and Mr. Jacob Wolfman, and it was no easy task that was allotted to them. First prize was awarded to Miss Irene Ranney, a ballet girl in red, white and blue; second prize to Miss Helen Griffin, as a Domino; third prize to Miss Gertrude Hollien, who came completely disguised as George Washington. The lucky number contest was won by Miss Alice Collina, who was attired in the fluffy raiment of a ballet dancer.

The Holly Inn guests contributed most generously to the fund raised to provide suitable prizes, and the employees are very grateful for their interest and support.
