Paul Earle, of Starr, S. C., has to his credit the greatest number of breaks in the North Carolina State Shoot. He missed his first bird in the opening session and then shot a sensational unbroken run of 120. He led all the amateurs on both days. The three North Carolina professionals found themselves at the foot of the list in the State Shoot, and the North Carolina Amateur Title Holder was out-shot by three men from South Carolina and one from Maryland. Morson, however, registered long runs of 51 and 63.

The North Carolina Handicap Event was captured by W. M. Webb, of Morehead City, with a break of 91 out of 100, shooting from the 18 yard line. This gave him a safe lead over J. L. Morehead of Charlotte, who broke 87 from the 17 yard line. The leading scores of men from North Carolina:

W. M. Webb, Morehead City (18)	91
J. L. Morehead, Charlotte (17)	87

The final event of the April meeting was the Consolation series held on the morning of the 24th. The event consisted of 100 targets. Paul Earle again demonstrated his class by connecting with 97 targets. He broke 60 running, and missed three on his fourth brace. Morson, who came in second with a score of 96, broke his last string of sixty without a miss. The scores:

P. E. Earle, Starr, S. C.	97
---------------------------	----

A. Morson, Charlotte, N. C.	96
J. I. Chipley, Greenwood, S. C.	92

PAN AT PINEHURST

*Great Pan is dead, they say,
He who was wont to play
Such wondrous music in the long ago.
But nay! but nay!
I know it can't be so,
For from a wide magnolia tree to-day
I marked his melodies outflow:
Verily—merrily—
I listened to the mellow pipes ablow.
What golden floods of joy I heard
Without a touch of grief;
Old Pan come back—a lyric mocking-
bird
Singing behind a leaf.*

ROMANCE AT THE CAROLINA

I WAS SITTING at one end of the porch. I noticed them seat themselves quietly at the other end of the porch, and although I was not so rude as to stare I could not help noticing that something had gone wrong; the course of true love evidently was not running smoothly. They sat apart. She was troubled. He was plainly indifferent. I saw her bend over and whisper in his ear; but there was no response. She patted his head, tenderly and affectionately. I felt intensely sorry for her. It pained me to think that I, unknown to them, had witnessed, and thereby profaned, these intimacies; it pained me to think that here before my eyes possibly there was being enacted a little scene that might seal the fate, the happiness, the future, of two young lives. What had passed between them? What had he said, and would not repent of? A cruel word spoken hastily. I felt it was something trivial, and, reflecting that all tragedies have their origin in something that a little look, a little word, a little kiss, might have remedied, I seized my book hastily, upside down, and with a lump in my throat endeavored to read. But, presently, I heard her voice, more vibrant. It was loud and commanding. I felt that the climax had come! My heart was in my mouth, as I heard her cry out: "Speak! .. Speak! .. Speak to me, Hector!" And Hector, sitting up on his haunches, broke forth: "Woof! .. Woof!"
