THE TIN WHISTLES

Battle With Par

The Tin Whistles four-ball best-ball tourney versus par, for one set of prizes, played on December 5, resulted in a tie between J. R. Bowker, F. T. Keating, H. G. Waring and H. G. Phillips on the one hand and H. C. Fownes, J. B. Eisaman, Thomas Morrison and C. G. Fownes on the other, who came in even with par figures and comprised the leading foursomes in the field of forty-four players. The remainder of the field were unable to better or equal the figures and were strung out from one to six strokes below par.

Another tie, at 1 down, resulted between J. Barber, L. Barr, H. B. Swoope, and G. M. Howard, and Adams, Steese and D. R. Meigs.

The field finished in the following order:

BRILLIANT FUTURE FOR PINEHURST and SAND HILLS

ulous group under roof in one neighborhood in North Carolina is not hard to accept.

The influences that brought Pinehurst up out of the sand barrens are still existent, and are more powerful as they are better known. With the original influences are those which have been developed, such as the excellent hotels, the good roads, the admirable golf courses, and those other auxiliaries that bring out the benefits of climate and location. The continued development is logical. The village having pretty well filled up the overflow goes farther out, and continued overflow means reaching to the Midlands farms, Mid-Pines, Knollwood and Edgemoore. These will all be stimulants to Pinehurst and part of the community, for Pinehurst has already ceased to be the village and become the community. It is the center and the heart of the expanding unit.

I don't undertake to say what Pinehurst is to be in the next twenty-five years but it is easy to see that it is to be something as much bigger than the present as the present is bigger than the past.
