E. L. SCOFIELD WINS MID-WINTER TOURNAMENT

Donald Parson, Runner-up

E. L. Scofield, a member of Pinehurst's Winter colony and a dangerous opponent on the local courses, won first division honors and the President's trophy in the nineteenth annual Mid-winter tournament which came to a close on Monday of this week, by defeating Donald Parson, the favorite, and also a member of the cottage colony, 3 and 1 in the final round.

Scofield's victory was truly earned, for in the course of his match with Parson he made three holes in 2, and finished out the round with a medal card of approximately 73. Parson tied with R. C. Shannon for the qualifying medal, and by reason of the consistent brand of golf he has been playing all season, was regarded as the most likely one to annex the trophy, but Scofield's "wild deuces" were too much for the favorite and runner-up was his portion of the honors. Scofield, however, did not have an easy time all the way through. In the first round of match play he met Ned Beall of Sherbrooke, who took him to the nineteenth hole before the match was decided. In the second round he won from Dr. John W. Robb of Merion Cricket, and in the semi-finals he had to go to the nineteenth again to defeat John D. Chapman.

A large gallery turned out to follow the finalists. Both players started out badly, each taking a 6 on the first hole. Scofield won the second in 5 against 6 for his opponent, but the lead was of short duration, for Parson's birdie 3 at the third squared the match. Scofield then won three in a row, including a 2 on the sixth where he sank a ten-foot putt. This was the first of his three deuces. After the long seventh had been halved in 5's, Scofield got his second 2 by sinking another screamer, an 18-footer at the eighth. This was difficult golf to go up against, but Parson was not discouraged. He won the ninth in 3 and then played the next six holes in 4 strokes each, which reduced Scofield's lead to 1 up at the thirteenth, and halved the next three holes in 4's. Parson sliced his drive to the sixteenth and was so badly placed he was barely able to get out. He pressed his third in an effort to get home, but the ball landed in a trap at the right and just short of the green. Scofield hooked his drive into the woods here but the ball traveled beyond the real trouble and he was able to get out and on the green in 3 and took the hole in 5. The drives to the seventeenth found Scofield on the edge of the green while Parson's ball stopped just short of the trap at the right. He made a brilliant second shot and laid his ball close to the pin, but of no avail, for Scofield proceeded to gather his third deuce and sank his second for a winning 2, and won the match.
