HARDING IS BEST DRESSED PRESIDENT (United Press)

Every American boy is born with the possibility of being President.

One of the requisites of the job is to wear the right thing at the right time; to make a good appearance. For the benefit of boys who aspire to the presidency, here are some facts about the wardrobe of President Harding, who is said by J. C. Wineman, Washington merchant-tailor designer, to be the best dressed President for many years:

For dinner he wears a Tuxedo suit of black cloth, with a dark silk waistcoat.

For evening the conventional full-dress suit of black cloth, with a white silk waistcoat.

For afternoon a cutaway frock coat with striped trousers and a waistcoat the same material as the coat.

His riding and golf suits are English tweed, with caps of the same material.

With his afternoon and evening clothes he wears the conventional silk hat; with his morning or business suits a soft hat.

His morning suits are cut in the sack coat style, and are made of different materials in subdued business shades.

And by the way, he has at least 25 or 30 morning suits!

What F. O. B. Meant

"F. O. B." does not mean full of booze." This is the point over which Norman Atkinson, local attorney of Houston, Texas, encountered many difficulties in quieting a "rural" client who believed he had been victimized in a mail order swindle. The client had answered a magazine advertisement which read: "Quart bottles, F. O. B. Houston, for $8 a gross." The bottles were full of nothing when received, the client deplored.

Appearance and Performance

The fine new banking house of the

BANK OF PINEHURST

is universally admired, and it deserves to be. But it is not the fine home of the bank that is the prime feature of the institution.

The incomparable safety that those strong walls ensure, and the wide range of perfect service that the organization affords are what make the substantial and useful factor it has grown to be in the community work.

THE BANK OF PINEHURST

The bank has a new home because its service to the people make it necessary to enlarge the space in which the work is done, and in making the new home it was wise to make one that would enable the service to broaden and to maintain the greatest safety.

That is what we offer. Safety without qualification, and service of any kind that a bank can offer.
