

Notes of the Week

With the hotels full to capacity, the cottages welcoming many guests, and the home-coming of our young folk from school and college for their Easter recess, the town is fairly humming with animation. The time is all too short for these young people, so each hour must count itself well spent. To this end tea-dances, golf-matches, picnics, gymkhanas, dinner-dances and ever so much more is planned,—and of the week past we are able to record numbers of these delightful affairs.

Box Court, the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Tyler L. Redfield, opened wide its doors to welcome a gathering of friends for an evening of entertainment provided by Mr. and Mrs. Price of New York. These gifted and ingenious performers found their audience in a sympathetic mood for their well-rendered songs and recitations, making the evening one of gratifying success. Some of those who were fortunate enough to hear Mr. and Mrs. Price were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Melville, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Jenks, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Bauscher, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Merrill, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hornblower, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Whitin, Madam and Miss Spring, Mrs. S. A. D. Shepard and Miss Child, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Atherton, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Huguley, Mr. George N. Towle, Mrs. DeMott, Mrs. D. B. Cooper, Mr. Edward Dann, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. C. Rumsey, Mr. and Mrs. Smithers, Mrs. Merrill, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Andrews, and ever so many others, a truly representative and notable gathering of Pinchurstians. Refreshments were served to about eighty guests, all of whom were happier for the well spent evening.

The private dining-room at the Country Club was appropriately decorated on Friday evening when Mrs. W. V. Kellen of Boston, gave a very smart luncheon for twelve guests. To Mrs. Kellen's rare charm as a hostess was added a delicious and well-planned luncheon, served at a table made alluring in green and white, with clever St. Patrick's day favors at each place. Mrs. Kellen's guests included Mrs. Henry Hornblower, and her house-guest, Mrs. Prentiss, Mrs. C. L. Bauscher, Mrs. W. B. Merrill, Madam and Miss Spring, Mrs. Homer H. Johnson, Mrs. Henry Whitin, Mrs. Tyler L. Redfield, Mrs. Ralph Hornblower, and Mrs. H. A. Tucker.

On Tuesday last Mrs. Lawrence Barr gave an evening of bridge for her daughter, Mrs. William E. Gray, Jr., of Larchmont Manor, N. Y., who is spending some time with them in their new cottage, Silva Nidus. Mrs. Barr thoughtfully invited ladies whose husbands were attending the Tin Whistle banquet. Among them were Mrs. A. C. Judd, Mrs. Walter Stall, Mrs. George Barber, Mrs. H. W. Priest, Mrs. Myron Marr, Mrs. A. C. Gilman and daughter, Mrs. Merrick, Mrs. A. S. Higgins, Mrs. J. T. Newton, Mrs. See, Mrs. M. W. Ewer, Mrs. Alvin Hutzler, Mrs. J. D. C. Rumsey, Madam Tufts, Mrs. Wykoff, Mrs. Cheatham, Mrs. G. W. Statzell and Mrs. A. S. Newcomb.

Prominent among those entertaining at the Carolina was Mrs. Frank Melville, Jr., of New York, who entertained at dinner on Tuesday evening Mrs. John Kent of Brockton, Mrs. R. W. Poor of New York, Mrs. A. D. Sykes of Buffalo, Mrs. Charles Bigelow and Mrs. F. S. Little of New York, Mrs. F. W. Norton and Mrs. Henry Whitin of Whitinsville, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Gubelman of New York, entertained a party of six, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Selwyn Bywater, Mr. J. C. Thoms and Doris and Ronold Gubelman, making a nice little family party. Thursday night there were various little informal dinners, notable among which was one given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Book of Pittsburg, their guests being Mrs. Francis E. May, Miss Josephine Chapin, and Mrs. James C. Ames of Chicago, Mrs. David K. McCarthy of Washington, Miss Agnes Batley of London, and Messrs. F. A. McCune, J. M. Lockhart and Wilson Book, all of Pittsburg. On the same night, Arthur Yates entertained at Dinner Captain and Mrs. A. T. Roberts, Mrs. Evelyn P. Spencer, Edward Statler, Mrs. R. H. Barlow and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Parson. Mr. and Mrs. John M. Delano of Boston, gave a dinner for Miss Harriet Ellison of Boston, Miss Gertrude Meecham of Brooklyn, and Mrs. J. C. Smythe of Richmond, Va. Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Graham entertained a party of six, and Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln had Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Swoope for their guests, all of these folk remaining for the dancing in the evening.

Miss Marion Weckesser was hostess at dinner and dancing Saturday evening, her guests including Mr. J. T. Leonard, Miss Marion Witherill, Miss Dorothy Barber, Miss Abbie Lee, Mr. Haydock, Miss Bicknell, "Buck" Blue, Miss Crolia, and C. S. Woolworth. Mr. and Mrs. John M. Delano of Boston, assisted by Miss Priscilla, entertained a gay little party on the same night, and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Habberly of Lynn, gave an informal dinner for Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Atherton and Mrs. A. W. Huguley. Mr. H. T. Converse of Albany, had for his guests Mr. and Mrs. Trumbull Dana.

Another beautiful Sunday tempted the folk who love to picnic to take a lunch out to Hunters Grove, where it was eaten with the keen appetites that a brisk ride in this fine air gives. Mr. Gates, Mrs. Spencer, the Misses Julia and Laura Butterfield, W. C. Blanding, Mrs. A. T. Roberts, Mrs. Russell Grinnell and Lt. Col. Gibson rode to the Grove, and Mrs. Gibson with Mrs. Barlow joined them.
