Notes of the Week

It seems but a very short time since the Orchestra at the Holly Inn played "Home Sweet Home" as the closing concert number for last season, but on Monday of this week that hospitable and home-like hotel again swung wide its doors and is well on its auspicious way toward another season. Many old friends were on hand for the opening and with the arrival of a deluge of trapshooters who came to take part in the annual Midwinter shoot this week the Inn filled up rapidly. Manager and Mrs. Fitzgerald have been here sometime getting ready for the opening, and say the advance bookings are greater than ever before.

The Sunday evening concerts at the Carolina, under the direction of Wiley Pope Swift, director of the Carolina orchestra, are indeed delightful, and many of the Cottagers as well as guests from the other hotels find rare entertainment in attending them. These concerts are held every Sunday evening and all Pinehurst guests are cordially invited to attend.

Last Sunday's program was:

- Concert Mazurka—"La Gauloise".....Ganne
- Overture—"Der Freischutz".....Weber
- Song of the Boatmen of the Volga.....Cady
- Romantic Suite—"Valse Gracieuse," "Souvenir," "Gypsy Dance,"
.....Edw. German
- Unfinished Symphony (First Movement).....Schubert
- Sylvan Scene—"Woodland Whispers".....Czibulka
- Violin Solo—"Caprice Viennois".....Kreisler

Mr. Raymond Monaghan

- Excerpts from "Rigoletto".....Verdi

Most of the younger set returned to their respective schools after New Year and many dinners, teas and dances marked their going away. Among these was a delightful farewell party at which Miss Louise Emery entertained a large number of her young friends at dinner at the Carolina, after which the party attended the "movies" and later adjourned to the Carolina where dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Among those present were the Misses Lucy Winton, Clarissa Metcalf, Anne Merrill, Louise Way, Caroline and Laura Butterfield and Messrs. John Winton, John Dailey, Oliver Redfield, Nelson Howard, Alan Dailey, Ellis Heath and Glen Covert.

At the Country Club on Thursday afternoon Mr. James B. Waller gathered a number of friends for tea and dancing. His guests were the Misses Muriel Wilson, Sally Peters, Roberta and Katherine Lewis, Caroline Butterfield and Messrs. Francis Harrison, Richard Watson, Jerry Healy, H. C. Buckminster, Nelson Howard and N. B. Wallace.

Another delightful affair for the younger set was a dinner-dance given by Miss Virginia Burrage. Her guests were the Misses Anne Merrill, Louise Emery, Katherine Ormsbee, Elizabeth Cheatham, Clarissa Metcalf and Messrs. Glen Covert, Ellis Heath, Donald Grosset, Henry Swoope, Lambert Splane, Nelson Howard and Stuart Maurice.

Mr. Ellis Heath entertained at dinner at the Carolina on Tuesday evening for the Misses Laura and Caroline Butterfield, Virginia Burrage, Ann Merrill, Louise Emery, Clarissa Metcalf and Messrs. John Dailey, David G. Carter, Alan Dailey, Nelson Howard and Glen Covert.

Mr. James J. Storrow, of Boston, Fuel Administrator, and friends in his party returned to Boston this week after an enjoyable and successful five days of quail shooting.
