THE LAND OF THE BALSAM.

By
WALTER H. CANDLER.

Land of the Balsam, smiling in splendor,
Out from the borderland, mystic and old.
Sweet are thy memories, precious and tender.
Linked with thy summers of azure and gold.

Old North Carolina, land of my dreamings
Land of the lover, the loved and the lost;
Cherish thy legends with tragedy teeming,
Legends where love reckoned not of the cost.

Land of the brave, my heart's in thy keeping.
And life's sweetest story, how can I forget?
Calm are the vales where silences sleeping,
Wake into memories tinged with regret.

Let the full chorus of life's music throbbing,
Swell to full harmony, born of the years;
Or for the loved and lost, tenderly sobbing,
Drop to that cadence that whispers of tears.

Land of the balsam, here's to thy glory!
Here's to thy daughters as fair as the dawn!
Here's to thy pioneer sons, in whose story
Valor and love shall live endlessly on.

DEATH OF MRS. WILLIAM HARRIS.

On the third day of April the death angel visited the home of Mr. William Harris and claimed the loving companion and mother. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hunnicutt, now deceased. She was born May 19, 1883. She professed religion when 16 years old, joined the Scotts Creek Baptist church and was baptised by Rev. W. E. Conner. She lived a consistent member until her death. She was a loving companion and mother. She was always lively and full of fun. She always met you with some pleasant word and a sweet smile and bade you welcome to her home.

But now the door is closed; those sweet smiles are hidden; gone, never more to return. But she is now waiting at the pearly white gate to welcome you to her happy home. We miss her, not only those in her home, but all who knew her. We believe she is singing around the throne with her precious father, mother, sisters and many loved ones who have gone on before to welcome her to her happy home.

May God's blessings comfort the sorrowing husband, brothers and sisters to try harder to meet the great day that is to come.

Lizzie's death was not a surprise to her friends, as she had been in bad health for quite a while. While her passing away to her heavenly home was peaceful and quiet, she suffered untold misery; yet she never murmured; she bore it patiently, like one whose hope is both sure and steadfast; there is no dark valley. So her eventide was light.

She shared life's troubles with her companion and children but a short time in this vale of tears. A heavenly hand has taken her away and she is now with the angels, and in her purity awaits in patient affection until the Master shall bring you to His feet and, with her, give you a place among the angels.

It is not hard to die when we can go into the presence of our Savior at peace with God and the world.

The time for transplanting had come. She was called in the bloom of life. Lizzie had filled her mission and the master had need of her. Sweet be her rest till the resurrection morn.

To her loved ones: We sorrow not as those who have no hope, but with trusting hearts we look forward to a happy meeting in the future.

Lizzie was married to William Harris December 25, 1903. She leaves a husband, four small children, and two sisters, Mrs. Wesley Harris and Miss Jane Hunnicutt, and two brothers, Bill Monteith and Losin Hunnicutt, all of whom were at her bedside, with the exception of Losin, who is in Texas, when the end came. All was done that was in the power of her friends, but of no avail.

The funeral service, conducted by Rev. R. L. Cook of Addie, was held at the Old Field church and the remains were laid to rest in the Old Field Cemetery, Friday, April 4, 1913.

Through all pain at times she'd smile,
A smile of heavenly birth;
And when the angels called her home
She smiled farewell to earth.
Heaven retaineth now our treasure,
Earth the lovely casket keeps,
And the sunbeam longs to linger
Where our sainted sister sleeps.
