

THIS OLD FASHION IS STILL IN VOGUE

Cheney's Daily Grows in Popularity as More People Recognize Its Worth

There's one fashion that hasn't changed in over sixty years. Not only that, but it is one that is growing in popularity year by year.

It is the fashion—the habit—the necessity for taking Cheney's Expecto-rant for coughs, colds, bronchitis and other affections of the throat and lungs. Long ago when grandparents and other children Cheney's Ex-pectorant was a widely-known family remedy to relieve these troubles. It was given to children for croup, quinsy and whooping cough. Its action was so wonderfully soothing and efficient that in thousands of families all over the South, Cheney's Expecto-rant is, today, a household word.

It should be with you, too. If you haven't got a bottle of Cheney's Ex-pectorant in your medicine chest you are taking chances you have no right to impose on those around you.

Get Cheney's today to take with you on that auto trip. You may need it before you get back.

Too Whit, Too Who.

The owl, he is a noble bird,
And he has lots of grit;
This is the story that I heard,
To-wit:
He went to see his lady friend;
He didn't bill or coo,
But stayed with her for hours on end
To woo.

MUST HAVE GOOD MEMORY

Checker of Hats in Hotel Can Give No Adequate Explanation of His Power.

The checkers of hats in large hotels have remarkable memories. Doubtless many young men were employed and discharged before one was found who could learn to take 300 hats from men entering the dining room and distribute them as the diners left, without checks and without an error. In a city luncheon club with nearly 400 members, for example, says Edgar James Swift, the usual method of paging a man who is wanted has been changed to asking the colored man in the hat room whether the man in question has arrived. And a glance over the hat racks gives accurate information.

Conversation with those who display this wonderful and peculiar memory has always brought essentially the same reply. They have no system. They talk vaguely about something which, in psychological language, is association between the appearance of the hat and the face of the owner.—Scribner's Magazine.

Century-Old Woman Astronomer.

One of the most remarkable women living in England is Mrs. Thomas Styan, who recently celebrated her one hundredth birthday anniversary, and who is still an active astronomer. Each night she studies the sky through her telescope and makes notes of her observations.

Knew Where it Was.

Pat had got a job as steward on board a liner and on his first trip he was anxious to have everything as nice as possible so as to please the captain. Accordingly, the first thing he did was to have a good cleanout of the captain's quarters, and among other things he polished up the tea service, of which the captain was very proud.

Unfortunately, he let the teapot slip overboard and it sunk like a stone to the bottom of the sea.

He did not know what to do, but at last an idea struck him and, approaching the captain, he said:

"Captain, can anything be lost if you know where it is?"

"No; certainly not," replied the captain, rather sharply.

"Well, sir," retorted the Irishman, "your silver teapot is at the bottom of the Atlantic."

Nothing Serious.

Applicants for positions under the municipal government of a certain Middle Western town are required to undergo a physical examination. During the examination of one candidate the physician asked: "What did your grandfather die of?" The applicant looked nonplused for a moment and finally admitted that he did not remember, but hastened to add, "But I know that it was nothing serious."

He who has well considered his duty will at once carry his conviction into action.

The Winter Breakfast

which includes Grape-Nuts with cream or good milk, will have one dish that has both engaging flavor and true nourishment.

Grape-Nuts is more than "something good to eat." It is a building food in most digestible form; rich in proteins, carbohydrates, mineral elements and vitamin B—all vitally essential to the daily rebuilding of every part of the body.

It pays to keep oneself in the highest physical condition, for with the strength and vigor that go with health you can "do things" and be happy.
