

WASHINGTON WEEK

 indication that the situation was much the same as that which preceded the German invasion of Denmark and Norway. The Germans were claiming to have evidence that France and Britain were planning their attacks on Germany through Holland, Belgium and the Nazi's were "beating them to the draw," so to speak.

"But the question remains and speaks for itself—who invaded?" Mr. Early added.

Following fast on the heels of the German invasion of Holland and Belgium, President Roosevelt moved to protect Dutch and Belgian holdings in this country from possible Nazi seizure. There is something like $366,000,000 in cash and short term credits in this country belonging to natives of the Lowland Countries. At the direction of the President, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau issued an order "freezing" these holdings, thus preventing the possibility of their falling into German hands before the opening of the American markets on the day of the German invasion.

The German embassy here in Washington is "not talking" or just "don't know" when it comes to matters concerning the latest developments on the European war fronts. Members of the embassy staff profess profound ignorance when asked questions concerning former Kaiser Wilhelm, who has made his home at Doorn, Holland since the day in 1918 when he hot-footed it out of the Fatherland after the ignominious collapse of his armies at the hands of the Allies.

A secretary at the German embassy answered a telephone inquiry on the day of the Nazi invasion of Holland and was asked if he thought that the Dutch government would intern the former Kaiser as a prisoner of war in the country which had given him refuge since he fled his own country at the end of the other World War.

"I don't know," replied the secretary, "you see, his status is unknown to me at the moment."

 "Do you mean, he was asked, "that he might already be reaping rewards from Hitler as a successful fifth columnist?"
 "I don't know," came back the weary reply.

The reporter questioning the embassy secretary began to get a feeling that he might be getting just a bit ahead of himself with this line of interrogation so he asked: "Do you know Holland has been invaded by Germany?"
 "I don't," he replied. "We have not been officially notified."

Came the dawn, and with that both the reporter and the secretary reached the conclusion that this whole telephone conversation was highly out of place and by mutual consent it was terminated, with the whole situation just as clear as mud to both of them.

State College Answers Timely Farm Questions

Question: When should hay feeding begin with a young calf?

Answer: Hay should be fed to the young calf about the same time as the feeding of grain. On account of the laxative nature of alfalfa, it is best to use a clean bright mixed hay for the first three or four weeks. Feed the hay sparingly at first and gradually increase the allowance as the calf becomes used to it. Be sure that the hay is not soiled as this kind of hay often causes scours. It is best not to feed any grass before the calf is five months of age, but after that time a good pasture will furnish a satisfactory roughage.

Question: What variety of soybeans is best for hay?

Answer: The fine stemmed varieties make the best hay and these include the Octootan for the coastal plain section, the Laredo in the piedmont, and Virginia for the mountain section. When other varieties are used, they should be cut very thickly to reduce the size of the stems. Do not cover the seed over one inch deep when planting. In the Mountain and Coastal Plain sections, soybean hay should be cultivated in rows or the weeds may choke it out while in the Piedmont section drilling gives good results.

Question: What proportions of minerals should be added to the ration of laying hens?

Answer: The usual mineral feeds are bone meal, oyster shell or ground limestone, salt, and grit. Of these, the oyster shell or ground limestone and grit are kept before the birds at all times. The oyster shell supplies calcium while the grit is an aid in grinding the feed. The other minerals are added to the laying mash. One per cent of steamed bone meal is added to the mash as a source of calcium and phosphorus. The salt is added at the rate of one pound to each 100 pounds of mash and is used as a source of sodium and chlorine.

CONGRESSMAN WEAVER'S 22 YEARS EXPERIENCE NEEDED IN WASHINGTON

This is no time for change. The tried, true and trusted should be the party nominees. Congressman Weaver's experience gained in the trying days of the World War of 1917-1918 are needed NOW in Congress for the trying days and months and years ahead.

More than a quarter of a century of experience in Congress coupled with his natural common-sense, inherited from a mountain ancestry, has given Congressman Weaver the Vision, the Foresight the perspective on National and International problems, that are needed for level-headed thinking in Washington.

President Roosevelt in his determination to keep America out of war, needs those of his legislators, who are not possessed with "War-Scare" Fever, or unsound and dangerous ideas. The district, the State, the Nation need men of long experience in these trying times in Washington. We owe it to ourselves to send men of this type back to the capital. Congressman Weaver should continue to be our man in Congress! It would be unwise to supplant him with any other man, at this time.
