

Jungle Boats

THIS ODD SIGHT—a truck-full of assault boats in the middle of primitive jungle—was photographed deep in central Burma. The British and Indian soldiers taking fabled Mandalay had to fight their way through jungle, scrub and swamp, bringing their own boats with them to cross the many streams and rivers. These boats are being unloaded in the jungle ready for the British 36th Division's crossing of the Shweli River. At zero hour, the troops carry their boats through the jungle down to the river's edge.

Farm Life Aided By Four-H Work

By ANNAMERIE ARANT
N. C. State College
Raleigh, May 1.—The social and economic life of rural communities is greatly improved through the 4-H training program, and the boys and girls are also given excellent training for leadership.

Some of the activities in Wilkes, Surry, Durham, Vance and Person counties show the scope of the social improvement plan and present good examples of the work being done at this time.

In Wilkes County the Moravian 4-H club is working on the improvement of the school grounds. Joe Brewer, president of the club, is vitally interested in the plans and has divided the club membership into various committees, each of which has a definite part in the plans. Mrs. Bernice Greer is the neighborhood 4-H leader and the boys and girls work under her general guidance.

At present they are planning to plant shrubbery around the buildings and follow a landscape plan prepared with the help of the county agent, home agent, and faculty leader. Other improvements will be made during the year. This project has created much interest in the club and the entire community.

Durham County
The Lowe's Grove Junior 4-H Club of Durham County held an Easter Party at the school gymnasium with approximately 200 boys and girls present. They were divided into groups and a leader directed the games in each group. Prizes were awarded to winners of the different contests, after which soft drinks and cookies were served.

Vance County
Vance County 4-H club boys and girls were represented by two sets of twins from the Middleburg Senior 4-H club on the radio program of station WPTF in Raleigh on March 24. Those on the program were Anne and Becky Mabry and Walter and Wallace White. We have heard many favorable comments on the program.

Red Cross Worker

Mrs. Ida Deatherage, 84-year-old Red Cross production worker of Clay County, Missouri, has crocheted hundreds of wash cloths from salvaged bits of string. The cloths are sent by the Clay County Red Cross Chapter to soldiers in hospitals in this country and to our fighting men in combat areas overseas.

Judge Hayes Praises OPA Job

Raleigh, May 3.—In Federal Court in Raleigh, addressing the Grand Jurors, Judge Johnson J. Hayes discussed briefly the principal charges on which defendants will be tried at this term of Federal Court, and in speaking of OPA violations he gave a hint of what might be expected of defendants charged with violation of OPA rules and regulations.

"The Office of Price Administration," Judge Hayes said, "was designed for the good of the common masses of people, but the OPA has had hard luck because of its administration. The OPA was designed to prevent soaring prices, such as were experienced in the last war, and to keep some people from wallowing in plenty and others from having little of anything."

He drew several examples of the differences in the food situation in this war and in World War I, and pointed out that there are OPA workers today who are trying to solve certain food problems which have become drastic, such as the meat situation.

"There's some common sense to the OPA and some good in it," Judge Hayes declared, "or else President Roosevelt would not have put his name to it and approved it for the common people... President Roosevelt made a passionate fight for the rights of the common people."

"People who lived through the depression of 1932 now are living in plenty; there are jobs for all, but a lot of people want more and are never satisfied with what they have. There is not enough manpower to permit the OPA to investigate the numerous violations, and even some citizens who abide by OPA regulations feel that it is a shame. But man cannot console himself by violating any law which remains upon the statute books."

Judge Hayes spoke of the thousands of fighting men "over there," and declared, "I would be ashamed to be a red-blooded, full-bodied man living the United States of America making my money by violation of the law. There is plenty of work for all, and there is absolutely no excuse for engaging in crime."

Laid end to end, 250,000 of the smallest bacteria would measure only one inch.

U. S. Citizens To Have Less Food With Victory

Washington, May—Judge Samuel I. Rosenman has told President Truman that the United States must bear the major burden of feeding and equipping war-ravaged Northwestern Europe, and he called for a clear statement of policy and a campaign by the Government to prepare U. S. civilians for shorter rations.

Rosenman, special counsel to the President, headed a mission which investigated supply needs of liberated areas of Northwest Europe. He was assigned to the mission by the late President Roosevelt. A summary of his report was released as the House passed overwhelmingly and sent to the Senate "a food for all" bill authorizing United States membership in the International Food Organization drawn up at Hot Springs, Va., in 1943. Membership would cost the United States $625,000 for the first year and not more than $1,250,000 annually thereafter.

Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the interagency committee on foreign shipments, reported meanwhile that U. S. civilians will get less food this year than last, but he promised a "decent American diet" will be maintained. He said military requirements will rise from 13 to 16 per cent of the overall supply. He would not estimate the cut for civilians, but the committee estimated that U. S. food production will be from five to 10 per cent off from last year. It said rationing of some commodities must continue long after V-E Day.

A similar picture of what civilians face was presented by food officials of the United States, Great Britain and Canada. They said in a statement that United Nations requirements are higher this year and supplies are lower and that the problem will extend into 1946. Either the United Nations must find the answers or millions of persons throughout the world will meet disillusionment and disappointment following in the wake of victory," they said.

Rosenman recommended a dual publicity program to convince the American public that it must share its food and supplies still further and to inform the peoples of Northwestern Europe of the shortages in this country and how the Americans are sacrificing for them.

"Since allocation of civilian supplies to liberated countries in all probability will cut into the ration of the American consumer," he said, "a widespread official and public campaign should be undertaken to inform the American people of the gravity of the needs of our allies in liberated Europe."

"Conversely, there is no adequate understanding by the ordinary civilians in these liberated areas of what the Americans and British have done for the civilian population of these countries. Nor do they realize that in the United States, too, there are grave shortages.

them to the undersigned on or before May 3, 1946, or this notice will be pleaded in bar of their recovery. All persons indebted to said estate will please make immediate payment.
